EDITORIAL COMMENT

HAPPY NEW YEAR

The Bulletin of Bibliography wishes all its readers a most pleasant and prosperous New Year. The Boston Book Company extends the season's greetings to all its customers and hopes to merit their orders during the coming twelvemonth.

THE NEW SERIES OF THE BULLETIN

With this issue we appear in a new cover, and with the page trimmed slightly, so the magazine can be shelved on ordinary shelves. Inside, however, is the greater change, — the addition of two new features, which we hope will be acceptable, especially to the smaller libraries.

The series of Portraits of Librarians and Bibliographers, which here begins with Justin Winsor, the first president of the American Library Association, and the new department of Applied Library Economy in which we hope in each issue to describe one phase of one library's work, and to give a series of "Useful hints" on as broad a variety of subjects as possible. Contributions to this department are solicited if you have some useful method, or some short-cut that would interest others. Perhaps you have a better way of handling some of the problems which this issue mentions? Write us, and make this new department a forum for the exchange of ideas.

INDEX TO REFERENCE LISTS, 1913

We give in this issue, in addition to the regular departments, the Annual Index to Reference Lists published in Library Bulletins. This will be especially useful to smaller libraries. Copies of the Bulletins noted may usually be had if stamps for their mailing are sent to the library issuing them.

SWEDISH BOOK TERMS

Another of Mr. Axel Moth's compilations — Swedish book and printing terms — is begun in this issue.

NEW BOOKS

We have in press, by Mr. J. B. Kaiser, an exhaustive manual on "Law, Legislative and Municipal Reference Libraries, which with its appendices and index will make a work of over 400 pages, the first to cover this field, now so much in the forefront of recent library progress.

The Dramatic Index for 1913, and the Magazine

Subject Index for 1913 are well under way, and should be ready by the end of February. Several new periodicals have been indexed.

MAGAZINE NOTES

Our old friend the English Illustrated Magazine is no more; August, 1913, was the final issue.

The rush of magazine publishers to increase the size of their magazines goes merrily on:

Book News Monthly for November, volume 32, no. 3, appears as a quarto with this naïve statement: "The greatest blunder that people who do things can make in the present day is to contribute to the general monotony of life," and later, "We wish to give its exterior the same note of freshness that typifies its contents." Let us hope freshness will not demand more changes in the middle of a volume. Pity the poor binders!

Independent became quarto in size with the issue of October 2d, 1913. "New in appearance, but old in spirit; modified only to meet the changing conditions of new times." The new size begins vol. 76, the publishers having had the foresight abruptly to terminate vol. 75, and thus avoid possibility of any new suicides among the binders.

New York Teachers Monographs becomes a quarto with Oct. 1913, vol. 16, no. 1, and changes its name to "Teachers Monographs of the Public Schools." No comment appears in this issue concerning the changes made.

Moody's Magazine, formerly octavo, became quarto in size with the July 1913 issue, vol. 16, no. 1, and has thus also joined the rapidly increasing list of quartos of which American Magazine, Metropolitan, Chautauquan, and Survey are also members.

New York Libraries, issues, with its November number, an index to vols. 1-3, making that useful periodical easily available for reference.

The Journal of the American Chemical Society will absorb The American Chemical Journal beginning with 1914 issues.

We have received the first issues of Journal of Agricultural Research (vol. 1, no. 1, Oct. 10, 1913), published by the Department of Agriculture, Washington, and of The Psychoanalytic Review, a journal devoted to an understanding of human conduct (vol. 1, no. 1, Nov. 1913), published quarterly at $5.00 a year by the Journal of nervous and mental disease publishing Co., Lancaster, Pa.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF LIBRARIANS AND BIBLIOGRAPHERS

I.

JUSTIN WINSOR, 1831-1897

Among the eminent men who laid the foundations, broad and deep, of the modern library movement in this country, Justin Winsor holds an exceptionally distinguished place. He was born in Boston, Jan. 2, 1831, and died in Cambridge, Oct. 22, 1897; he was deeply interested in books all his life; and the last thirty years of his life were intimately associated with library work. A man who served as the first President of the American Library Association, and who also served, in turn, as the chief executive officer of two such important libraries as the Boston Public Library and the Harvard University Library, could hardly have lacked some elements of distinction, in any case, but Mr. Winsor's personality was such that his distinction would inevitably be due less to the positions which he might hold, at one time or another, than to his own inherent qualities and characteristics.

As more than one student of Mr. Winsor's career has observed, there are few men of his time who have united in their own persons so exceptional an equipment of scholarly tastes and accomplishments with so exceptional a capacity for administration. His natural endowments were well supplemented by his early training. Born in Boston, of an ancestry linked for successive generations with the history of the Plymouth Colony, he profited both by the thorough training of the Boston Latin School, and by that of Harvard College. After entering college, however, he was attracted, after a year or two, by a welcome opportunity of going directly to Europe, where he pursued his studies, at Paris and at Heidelberg. Although not graduating with his class, in 1853, Harvard University later granted him the degree of Bachelor of Arts, as of the class of 1853.

It is natural to conceive of Mr. Winsor, after all these years, as essentially a specialist in history. While this is true, he was a man of so wide interests that an attempt to "label" him too specifically would surely be misleading. It is well known that one of the unrealized aims of his life was the publication of a Life of Garrick, for which he had accumulated a large amount of material; and on such recondite subjects as the bibliography of the Shakespeare quartos and folios, few men on this side of the Atlantic were so completely at home.

Mr. Winsor came naturally by his strong bent for history, however, having very early begun the collection of materials for his "History of Duxbury, Mass.," which was published in 1849. A noteworthy volume of his which appeared in 1880 was entitled "The reader's handbook of the American Revolution." Under his editorship, there were issued in the years 1880-82 the four noble volumes of the "Memorial history of Boston." This was one of the earliest instances (as it is, to this day, one of the most conspicuously successful,) of co-operation on a large scale, in historical work, under the direction of a single mind. The reception given to this notable work led naturally to Mr. Winsor's other great work of a similar nature, "The narrative and critical history of America," the eight volumes of which were published in the years 1884 to 1889. A noticeable feature of the latter work is the very unusual bibliographical equipment supplied with each chapter, usually from the hand of the editor, Mr. Winsor.

Four other substantial contributions to American history, from his pen, appeared within the next eight years, namely, "Christopher Columbus," "Cartier to Frontenac," "The Mississippi Basin," and "The Westward Movement." The volume last named was completed only a short time before his death, in 1897. Mr. Winsor also gave much care and pains to the editing and publication of the "Record of the 250th anniversary of the founding of Harvard College, 1886," published in 1887. In his mastery of geographical studies and the digesting of the information supplied by early maps, Mr. Winsor occupied a position where he had few rivals; and his labors in this field have had a marked influence on subsequent researches in American history.

It is interesting to notice that Mr. Winsor's entrance into the librarian's profession, like that of some other eminent librarians, was through the gateway — so to speak — of service on the governing board of a library. He became a member of the Board of Trustees of the Boston Public Library in 1866, and was chosen Superintendent in 1868.

One of the first fruits of his vigorous administration of the Boston Public Library was the publication of the very welcome and practically useful guides for readers, which made the work of that library widely known. These included not only special annotated lists under the head of history and other subjects, but detailed lists of references, appended to the quarterly bulletins. Some of the latter were expanded later into the volume already mentioned, entitled "The reader's handbook of the American Revolution"; and in the "Preface" to this book he has summed up the underlying principles, as follows: "I wish the user of this Handbook to understand its purpose and limitations. It is like a continuous foot-note to all histories of the American Revolution." "I believe it a part of the duty of a public librarian to induce reading and gently to guide it, as far as he can, because I know that as a rule there is much need of such inducement and of such guidance. I am no great advocate of courses of reading. It often matters little what the line of reading is, provided it is pursued, as sciences are most satisfactorily pursued, in a comparative way. The reciprocal influences, the broadening effect, the quickened interest arising from a comparison of sources and authorities, I hold to be marked benefits from such a habit of reading."

Mr. Winsor remained at the head of the Boston Public Library from 1868 to 1877; and then followed the twenty years, crowded with skilful service, not only to undergraduates, but to a wider public, in which he acted as Librarian of the Harvard University Library, from 1877 to 1897.

Of the men who were pre-eminently leaders in the American library movement, one may well say of each one of them, (as Mark Antony said of Brutus,) that "the elements were so mix'd in him" as to call for admiration and gratitude, but these "elements" were mixed in noticeably varied proportions. In one, enthusiasm was plainly predominant. In another, insight was the conspicuous element. In terms, the shelf arrangement was next considered. How could the most extensive use by the public be assured? How could the staff be made to realize that any book may be useful in reference work? A separate reference room would be decidedly antagonistic to this idea. The book room of the new building, containing about 40,000 volumes, the working collection of the library, is arranged on the alcove plan. If the reference books on scientific and technical subjects could be placed in the alcoves with the circulating books on these subjects, they would not be overlooked by the public. For this reason, the collection was divided into "Reference," or, those treating of general and miscellaneous subjects, and "Alcove reference," or, those dealing with specific subjects. The "Reference" books are shelved in one alcove near the information desk as a hub or center. "Alcove reference" are placed in the alcoves at the beginning of their subjects — classification being by the Dewey decimal. So arranged, all the 600 alcove reference books are at the beginning of the useful arts in the Book Room. Besides bringing these books before the public, this method obliges the staff to consult the section, where practically all the library resources on a given subject are shelved.

A natural criticism of the scheme is that people will wish to take out alcove reference books. Would that be entirely objectionable? Reference books might well circulate for limited periods. To permit this a special "limited loan" form was devised, bound in books of fifty; on the stub the borrower's name and data are filled in, and also on the "tear-off," which is two by five inches to file in the tray of book-cards.

The reference books have neither book cards or pockets, but are provided with dating slips. When the book is returned, the slip is taken from the time tray and filed for statistical purposes, the entry cancelled on the stub in the reference charging book, and the book returned to the shelf. The decision in each individual case as to whether the book shall circulate, and if so, the time of circulation, is left to the person in charge.

Many of the details of the scheme may be revised to meet conditions, but the motive purpose of centralizing and socializing reference work in the public library is certainly of permanent value. M. W.

HELPFUL HINTS

"NOVEL NOTES."

Generally speaking, all fiction is ordered by this Library on approval. Each book upon receipt is assigned to a member of the Library staff for review. This novel-reading is wholly voluntary, and is done outside of Library time. When a book is approved for acceptance, a note is made by the reviewer according to the following plan:

Scene and time.

Subject.

Treatment.

Recommend to ?

These notes are typewritten, inserted in a loose-leaf note-book and kept in the Circulating Department for ready reference on the part of the staff. Borrowers may not have direct access to the "Novel Notes," but the members of the Circulating Department employ them constantly to assist borrowers in their choice of reading.

Pratt Institute Free Library, Brooklyn.

FILING CURRENT PERIODICALS.

A method of keeping current numbers of periodicals in the reading room is to treat them like books on shelves with the backs only showing. This involves placing the periodicals in temporary binders of some kind, with name on the back. It is also well to divide the shelves into sections perhaps a foot wide by partitions. The saving in space over the common method of displaying periodicals broadside is very great, as well as saving of expense of a periodical case oftentimes. The periodicals may be arranged in three series according to height, with distances between shelves of about 12, 15 and 20 or more inches for the three heights.

New Haven Public Library.

LARGE WEEKLIES WITHOUT BINDING.

All back numbers of technical periodicals indexed in the Engineering Index are kept. Some are bound, others, principally the large weeklies, are cared for as follows:

Advertising pages are removed, and the numbers for one month are sewed through three holes stabbed along the back. A piece of bond paper two inches wide is folded to make a hinge and pasted on edge of front and back page over sewing. To these hinges are pasted covers from one of the numbers. A strip of book cloth is then pasted on the back, extending about half an inch over the sides and on this is printed title and date.

The same method is used for monthly periodicals, three months making a volume.

Free Public Library, Newark, N. J.

RESERVE FICTION.

In order that a borrower may not be obliged to leave a post card to secure a work of recent fiction, half of the number of copies of such a work are placed on the open shelves for general circulation. The other half, which may be reserved, bear the letter R in red ink on the 7 day label and book pocket.

Cambridge Public Library.

IMPROVED BOOK SUPPORTS.

Libraries having steel shelving might do well to inquire of the makers whether they cannot furnish more satisfactory book supports than what are generally used. The New Haven Public Library has a very satisfactory support furnished by the makers of the stack, which fits in the turned front edge of the shelf, is easily put in place, easily moved and perfectly firm in use, and without the thin edge which invites the injury of books inadvertently pushed over it by the public. It is quite likely that the manufacturers of steel stacks can furnish satisfactory supports if the demand is made for them.

The support used in this library is not of my invention and I have no interest in the matter except to wish that all libraries may have a satisfactory book-support.

Willis K. Stetson.

INEXPENSIVE BOOK SUPPORTS.

The New Bedford Public Library uses bricks or book supports, but instead of covering them as so many have done in the past, paste-board boxes of grey color are used. These little boxes, the covers of which are just as deep as the boxes themselves, are just the size of a brick.

They cost $8.75 for 500, and the cheapest sort of bricks costing $11.50 a thousand are used.

"BANNERS" INSTEAD OF "DUMMIES".

Pratt Institute Free Library, Brooklyn. Through the first floor of the Circulating department (the open shelves) banners are used instead of dummies for representing all circulating classed books shelved elsewhere. Duplicates of circulating books which may be found in the Reference departments are also noted in this way.

The "banners" are hung at the end of the stacks containing books with the corresponding class numbers. These banners are 27 inches long by 7 inches wide. They are made of binder's board covered with binder's cloth, and, on the principle of the postal card album, each banner allows for the insertion of seven cards. The cards used are L. B. 33 size cards; light weight; commercial ruling; buff; without punch.

The class numbers, each noted but once, are entered in large figures to the left of the cards. The book numbers, with location letter written above, are placed well apart to allow room for inserting new numbers when necessary.

"PROCESSIONS" OF NEW BOOKS.

In the Yale University Library, new books received are dated and shelved by themselves, arranged under some 26 separate subjects — a shelf being allowed for each. After one month's exhibition, during which the professors and others interested have examined and gotten acquainted with them, the books take their regular places in the stack. In each division these books, while on view, are shelved in order of receipt, so that the right end volumes are the newest, and the left end volumes are constantly being removed to stack as the thirty-day period expires.

BINDING POINTERS.

1. In binding periodicals never use leather unless the volumes are to be constantly used.
2. All books should have French joints.
3. It is never wise to stitch sections lengthwise by machine and then sew by hand. Modern methods of overcasting are much preferable.

Wilmington Institute Free Library.

ART EXHIBITS.

"I wonder why more libraries that have the means, do not take advantage of the opportunities given by the American Federation of Arts, Washington, D. C., which loans exhibitions of paintings at the bare expense of transportation one way, and a proportionate expense of insurance, boxing, etc. We have had several of these exhibitions and they are extremely satisfactory." —George H. Tripp, New Bedford Public Library.

EXHIBITS OF PHOTOGRAPHS.

In the Hartford Public Library, strips of picture moulding placed horizontally from one to two feet apart, at convenient height, are used for supporting exhibits of mounted pictures and photographs. The mounts are held in place by the little tin clips, which hang onto the moulding, and are thus given a rigid support, much better than cords give, no matter how tightly stretched.

AN INEXPENSIVE RECORD BLANK-BOOK.

A useful blank-book is one used by teachers called a roll-book, and found at stationers. It has vertical columns for the days of the month, but no printing. It is useful for entering receipt of current periodicals, also has sufficient number of columns for all the Decimal classes, both adult and juvenile, hence circulation records, and any other records according to classification can easily be kept with a minimum of trouble, and the cost of the blank books is small.

—Willis K. Stetson, New Haven Public Library.

TO INDUCE NEEDED APPROPRIATIONS OR GIFTS.

Surrounding a placard reading, "What we need". one library posts the beautiful series of exterior and interior views of the Denver branch libraries, recently sent out by the librarian. Here is an idea worth copying where branches are wanted. Seen at Hartford Public Library.

PAPER TOWEL ROLLS.

Most libraries as well as other public buildings, place the rolls of paper towels so high that in reaching for them the drip from the wet hand runs up the sleeve.

Towels should be elbow high.

READING LIST ON EUGÈNE BRIEUX (1858—)

Compiled by Eleanor B. Woodruff, Pratt Institute Free Library, Brooklyn, N. Y.

EUGÈNE BRIEUX.

Eugène Brioux, the son of a carpenter, was born in Paris, on the 19th of January, 1858. To his humble associations and surroundings in youth and early manhood is undoubtedly due his understanding and appreciation of working-class character, shown in many of his dramatic studies.

Having failed in his early efforts to make a living by his pen in Paris he removed to Rouen where he joined the staff of The Nouvelliste de Rouen later becoming its editor-in-chief. It was while he was engaged in editorial work that his first plays were written and unsuccessfully offered to various managers. The tide finally turned with the production of Menages d'Artistes by Antoine at the Théâtre Libre.

Two of his plays, L'Evasion and La Robe Rouge, have been crowned by the French Academy. In 1909 Brioux was elected to the chair of Halévy in the Academy.

All of his plays "are essentially didactic, being aimed at some weakness or iniquity of the social system." A list in chronological order follows:

Bernard Palissy (1879) in collaboration with M. Gaston Salandri; Menage d'artistes (1890); Blanchette (1892); M. de Réboval (1892); L'engrenage (1894); Les bienfaiteurs (1896); L'évasion (1896); Les trois files de M. Dupont (1897); Le résultat des courses, (1898); Simone, (1898); Leberceau, (1899); La robe rouge, (1900); Les remplaçantes, (1901); Les avariés, (1901); La petite amie, (1902); La couvée, (1903); acted privately at Rouen, (1893); Maternité, (1903); La déserteuse (1904), in collaboration with M. Jean Sigaux; L'armature, (1905); Les hannelons (1906); La Française (1907); La foi (1909); Suzette (1909); La femme seule (1912)..

There are slight disagreements in dates given in various lists. Those used have been taken from the Encyclopedia Britannica up to the year 1906. Later ones have been found in the article by Temple Scott in the forty-seventh volume of the Forum and more recent magazine articles.

WRITINGS.

Blanchette and The escape, two plays, with preface by H. L. Mencken; tr. from the French by F. Eismann. Bost. Luce. 1913.

Three plays; with a preface by Bernard Shaw. N. Y. Brentano's. 1911.

Contents: Preface; Maternity, tr. by Mrs. Bernard Shaw; The three daughters of Monsieur Dupont, tr. by St. John Hankin; Damaged goods, tr. by John Pollock; Maternity (new version), tr. by John Pollock.

Published also by Fifield. London, 1911.

"Far less brilliant in witty paradox or humorous sophistry than Mr. Shaw, Brieux impresses the thoughtful reader with his substantial knowledge of the subject which he is treating, his profound appreciation of the enormity of the abuses which he assails and the sincerity of the indignation which prompts his attack. He does not expose himself to the suspicion of seeking notoriety for the sake of profit by the means of cheap sensationalism, although, in his zeal to demonstrate his case, he is often guilty of some of the most flagrant tricks of sensationalism, such as violent exaggeration, illogical deduction of general results from specific instances, the excessive use of coincidence, the employment of unnecessary grossness, both of speech and incident." Nation.

Reviewed in Athenæum, 1911, 1: 667, June 10.

Reviewed in Blackwood's Magazine, 189: 857-860, June, 1911. Sharply critical from the standpoint of the unsuitability of the subjects for stage representation.

Reviewed in Bookman, N. Y. 33: 576-580, August, 1911. Criticises the preface at much greater length than it does the plays.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The Bulletin of Bibliography and its Library Use

How best can we make it known that this Bulletin is not for the Public, but a help to and friend of the librarian and the library staff? In many libraries the BULLETIN is treated like the general magazines, checked off by the mail clerk, and placed in the rack with the rest. "Please put me on the librarian's desk, or give me to the reference librarian," is this BULLETIN's appeal.

The order department should see the advertisements and announcements, the children's librarian will want the Fairy Tale Index. Reference room assistants will find many of our lists of great help.

The Annual Magazine Subject-Index, 1913, The Dramatic Index, 1913

The annual volume of the MAGAZINE SUBJECT-INDEX AND DRAMATIC INDEX for 1913 is now ready, bound uniform with the previous volumes. It makes a book of 644 pages, or an increase of 23 over the volume for 1912 and of 154 over 1911.

The Index for 1913 is notable in that there are included in it twenty-eight English periodicals, no one of which is elsewhere indexed. In no other index are more than six English reviews now covered.

THE DRAMATIC BOOKS PUBLISHED DURING 1913, a pamphlet of 37 pages, is now ready, forming a useful list arranged by author and title. It has also been added as an appendix to the DRAMATIC INDEX.

Magazine Clubs and Premiums

Sometimes a proposition made in all seriousness has its humorous side. We are reminded of the approach of Spring by a magazine subscription agent who makes us a proposition to increase our circulation by clubbing THE BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY with a lady's fancy-work magazine (one of those on the Massachusetts preferred list), and offering six ever-blooming roses as a premium. In our modesty, we dare not even think to what heights our subscription list would soar with such inducements. Library gardens would have a new and subtle influence and the odor of roses pervade the newspaper reading rooms. Librarians' offices would become more cosy when the pillow-covers, made from the lady's magazine patterns were in place, and just imagine what a charm the table scarfs would give your reference room!

Helpful Hints

We have had many words of commendation for our new department of Applied Library Economy. Evidently there is a place for such ideas and time-saving methods. The plan we have adopted has already taken concrete form in the decision to have an exhibit at the coming A. L. A. Washington Conference of Labor-saving Devices. We ask a "hint" from each of our readers. Remember others are interested in any short-cut or helpful idea you have adopted.

Principal Contents of the Library Press

We have adopted a suggestion made recently and in this issue give a list of the principal contents of the American and English library periodicals. Thus one can at a glance see what each periodical includes in a given issue. Shall we continue this plan quarterly? Do librarians find such a table useful?

Exorbitant Prices for Bound Periodicals

In a communication to The Library Journal (March, 1914, page 256) Mr. F. K. W. Drury states that National Intelligencer 1845-55, 10 years, uncollated, was offered his library for $225 or $22.50 a volume, while a set of the same journal for 1826-45, 20 years, was offered by another dealer for $38, or less than $2.00 a volume, and furthermore, when collation discovered imperfections this price was reduced.

May we add the additional fact that the $38 offer was made by THE BOSTON BOOK Co.

MAGAZINE NOTES

Cassier's Magazine, after a certain period of suspended animation, is dead.

Vol. 42 was complete in 5 issues (July to Nov., 1912). Nothing appeared from Dec., 1912, to May, 1913, inclusive. June, 1913, was called vol. 43, no. 6 being the only issue of that volume. Then the name was slightly changed to Cassier's Engineering Monthly, and the price reduced to 15c. Vol. 44 consists of July, 1913, (44, no. 1) and Sept., 1913, (vol. 44, nos. 2-3). Thus another well-known periodical has sickened and died. We suggest binding vols. 42, 43, 44, as one book.

The Journal of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers has made its appearance, a substantial octavo of which vol. 1 no. 1 is January, 1914. It has a great many folding diagrams.

The Unpopular Review comes from the press of Henry Holt, N. Y., and bids fair to find a place, if no. 1, Jan., 1914, is an earnest of what it is to be.

We call attention to The Political Quarterly, of which no. 1 Feb., 1914, comes from the Oxford University Press, London. A welcome new-comer in a field of increasing interest. Its stiff covers make temporary binders unnecessary.

The Mid-West Quarterly, "owned and controlled by the University of Nebraska," and published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York, has appeared. Vol. 1 no. 1 is dated October, 1913, and is edited by P. H. Frye. It aims to open a field for the intellectual essay of a critical character.

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

KAISER, J. B. Law, Legislative and Municipal Reference Libraries. A new field will be most thoroughly covered by the issue of Mr. John Boynton Kaiser's book, "Law, Legislative and Municipal Reference Libraries, an introductory manual and bibliographical guide." It contains 470 pages. The first section describes the materials found in a law library for the benefit of students of political science, law and law library work, and a discussion of law library methods. Chapter two discusses the legislative reference bureau, its development, materials and methods. Municipal reference libraries, similarly treated, form the subject of the third section. Then an appendix of 90 pages, in which are collected the laws of the various states, and many other useful lists, bibliographies, etc., which all librarians will be glad to have between the covers of one book for ready reference. Mr. Kaiser has had a training specially fitting him to be the author of such a volume, and those who have had an advance reading of the manuscript are unanimous in saying that this is a needed book, well written, and covering the subject fully and accurately. See announcement on our inside front cover.

Boston, The Boston Book Co. Cloth, 470 p. $4.00 special net.

BOSTWICK, ARTHUR E. The Different West. Although this delightful little book has been published for over a year, we would like to mention it here, as we wish to make note of all books by librarians, and so if possible encourage more to venture into the field of literature.

The book in its 178 pages gives a vivid comparison of the customs, education, transportation, and even the weather and vegetation of the West and East. These little essays are very readable and especially interesting to those who have had opportunity to travel in our broad land. The author is a keen observer and optimistic writer.

GUIDE TO PERIODICALS

The third edition of "A Guide to the Current Periodicals and Serials of the United States and Canada" compiled by Henry Ormal Severance, of the University of Missouri library, has just come to hand. It is one of the most welcome volumes we have had for some time, as it gives the price and place of publication of over ten thousand periodicals. It makes, with the "Classified List" at the end, a volume of 462 pages.

We commend it to all booksellers, subscription agents and librarians, and will be glad to receive orders for it.

COMMERCIAL LAWS OF THE WORLD

Another of the South American volumes of this important work is at hand, covering Chile and Paraguay. It is a book of about 500 pages. The laws of Chile are printed in the Spanish original form on one page, with the English translation on the page opposite. The Commercial Code covers Merchants and Commercial Agents; Mercantile Contracts; Maritime Commerce; and Bankruptcy. The laws having to do with the Commercial Code are also given.

For Paraguay, inasmuch as the Argentine Code of Commerce has been adopted as the law of the country, the system of legal procedure only is here given. The volume, forming vol. 6 of the set, has a good index.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF LIBRARIANS AND BIBLIOGRAPHERS

II.

WILLIAM FREDERICK POOLE, 1821-1894

Born in Salem, Massachusetts, December 24, 1821, Dr. Poole was descended from a family whose American progenitor, John Poole, was the leading proprietor of Reading,

Mass., in 1635. Under the necessity of making his own way in the world, his early education was delayed, and his course at Yale College was interrupted by three years of teaching, so that he graduated with the class of 1849, at the age of twenty-seven. His career as a librarian and as a compiler of periodical indexes began in college, where he was librarian of a leading literary society and published, while yet in his junior year, the first edition of his Index, an octavo of 154 pages, which was at once recognized as one of the most useful literary tools. Becoming librarian of the Boston Mercantile Library in 1851, he proved markedly efficient, putting the library into excellent condition, and bringing out a printed catalogue on a plan of his own, which became a model largely followed by other libraries. At the same time he was busy with a second edition of his Index, which was published in 1853, and covered three times as much ground as the first edition. He was librarian of the Boston Athenæum from 1856 to 1868, then after a year spent as organizer of several important new libraries, among them the Cincinnati Public Library, became the librarian of the latter in 1869, leaving it in 1873 to take charge of the nascent Public Library of Chicago. He devoted fourteen years to this institution and brought it into a state of the highest efficiency. At the end of this time he was called upon to organize and direct the work of the Newberry Library of Reference, established in Chicago by a bequest of nearly $3,000,000. This congenial task occupied the closing years of his life.

In 1876 Dr. Poole became one of the founders of the American Library Association, of which he was the second president, holding the office for two years. To the Conference at Philadelphia in 1876, at which the Association was organized, he presented a plan for the preparation by co-operative effort of a new edition of his Index. The plan was heartily entered into by about fifty collaborators, and the work appeared in 1882 in a royal octavo of 1442 pages. Dr. Poole himself did a large share of the work on this volume and on the first 5-year supplement, issued in 1887.

Dr. Poole was truly a pioneer in librarianship. His work was largely done at a time when there were no accepted standards or methods in the profession, and he was recognized as a leader in the development of library work, whom many were ready to follow. His advice and assistance were constantly sought by less experienced and self-reliant librarians and by those in charge of new library enterprises, and were freely given. While a leader in the newer librarianship, which lays stress on the utilization of books, he was an "old-fashioned librarian" in the sense that he had an intense love for books as literature and for bibliography. In this way librarianship was to him a fine art, and he had little interest in tendencies to make of it a technical pursuit. His spirit was infectious and those who grew up in the libraries under his charge were marked by a certain large and generous view of the calling, and had the feeling for him indicated by the soubriquet "the good Doctor" which was applied to him in his later years.

Dr. Poole's tastes were scholarly, and being blest with an iron constitution and constant good health, he was wont to bury himself in his study for a long evening almost daily, whence resulted not only his Index, but a very large number of contributions to the periodical press and of separate papers. These were mainly of a critical character and in the field of American history, in which he came to be recognized as an authority. He received the degree of LL.D. from Northwestern University in 1882, and in 1893 delivered the Phi Beta Kappa address at that institution, on the subject "The University Library and the University Curriculum." In 1887, in recognition of his high standing as a writer on American history, he was elected president of the American Historical Association, his presidential address the following year being on "The Early Northwest."

It is an interesting circumstance that Dr. Justin Winsor and Dr. Poole, leaders in librarianship, and successive presidents of the American Library Association, were also of such eminence as scholars in American history that they were successively chosen as president of the American Historical Association.

In 1893 Dr. Poole was chairman of the committee on Literary Congresses in connection with the World's Columbian Exposition. His friends felt that his unstinted devotion to the work of this office, added to his other labors, hastened his end, which came a few months later, March 1, 1894.

Personally Dr. Poole was one of the most genial and attractive of men. "To know him was to love." He was blest with a happy homelife and shone in the domestic circle no less than in the larger world. His life was rounded out by a firm and intelligent religious faith.

DEPARTMENT OF APPLIED LIBRARY ECONOMY

I. HAVERHILL'S MOUNTED PICTURE COLLECTION

II. HELPFUL HINTS

The Editor will welcome "hints" for this department, whether original or not. They will be new to many libraries though an old story to you. Will librarians also send word of anything on which they would like information concerning the practices of other libraries.

The following requests for information have been received. Will our readers please reply?

- (a) Description of devices for mounting and displaying maps.
- (b) Shelf labels and label holders.
- (c) Satisfactory method of marking shelves.
- (d) Devices for filing and circulating sheet music.

THE HAVERHILL MOUNTED PICTURE COLLECTION

By John G. Moulton

The mounted picture collection at the Haverhill (Mass.) Public Library was begun about 1900 when the periodical called "Masters in art" presented half-tone reproductions of the paintings of the great masters in inexpensive, but worthy form. Several copies of each number of "Masters in art" were bought, one to be cut up and mounted, the others to be bound in a cheap binder and treated as a book.

The pictures were for home and school circulation and the collection had to be made as cheaply as possible. Regular photograph mounts cost too much, and it was found that the mounting card could be bought in the quality called "seconds", if bought by the sheet in quantity. The cost of "seconds" by the sheet, 22 by 28 inches in size, is about \$3.25 per hundred. Each sheet is cut by the dealer into four equal parts, making mounts 11 by 14 inches. This has proved the most satisfactory size. Larger mounts are used occasionally. The cutting costs about 40 cents per hundred sheets. The cost of each mount is, therefore, about $\frac{4}{5}$ of one cent. The mounts are bought of Carter Rice & Co., 246 Devonshire Street, Boston.

About twice a year the librarian looks over the stock of "seconds" and buys what is desired. The weight of the stock that has proved most satisfactory is 10 ply. The best color for most photographs and all black and white half-tones and woodcuts is steel or ash gray, and for carbon photographs and colored prints the best color is buff or brown. Labeling is done in black ink. White ink is not permanent and typewriting does not look well. Printed descriptions are used, if possible.

The mounting is done by the library assistants at one of the branches at odd times.

All kinds of paste have been tried. Some cost too much and some were too troublesome to make. We found that ordinary flour paste was as good as any. Now we use a prepared dry powder used for paste in the shoe factories. It costs 50 cents by the bag of five pounds. It is called "Tip top paste powder" and is made by the Arabol Manufacturing Co., 100 William Street, New York. It is simply mixed with cold water, as it is needed. Cooking improves it. The paste is used as dry as possible. The pictures when mounted are placed under weights, and allowed to dry for several days. They then generally remain flat.

All pictures in the collection are mounted well and permanently. Temporary mounting on heavy paper or cheap, brittle board was not successful and is no longer done, and is not recommended. Pictures mounted this way can not be stored well or circulated. Our pictures are circulated in bundles wrapped in a piece of dark green duck about a yard square.

As the collection is intended for popular and constant use both with the study clubs and schools and for exhibition purposes at the library, popular subjects are chosen, such as the well-known subjects in painting and sculpture, portraits, pictures of places, animals, birds, flowers, trees, articles of commerce and science, and illustrations of trades and occupations. Many pictures are cut from duplicate magazines and discarded books, as the Walter Crane picture books. The white margins are cut off with a photograph cutter, and when mounted the pictures make a good appearance. Many colored post cards of places are used, and two usually are put on one mount.

As a foundation for the collection, inexpensive pictures such as the Perry, Brown, Cosmos, Harper Black and White, Elson prints, Mumford's colored bird and nature pictures, Wilde Bible pictures, and those of the Bureau of University Travel were mounted. Photographs are used when they can be bought cheaply, and many colored photographs of the Detroit Publishing Company are used. Expensive photographs are not used in this collection, as it is more desirable to have a large collection covering a great variety of subjects for popular home and school use, than a small, expensive collection of high-priced photographs of use chiefly to art students. The library has in addition, however, many expensive photographs and engravings which are used and stored, etc., in an entirely different way.

In addition to those just mentioned the following books and collections were cut up and mounted. "Das Museum," a German work of half-tones devoted chiefly to painting and sculpture, and "Souvenir albums, edition illustrato" published by Wehrli, a series of half-tone portfolios covering places in Europe and the contents of the great museums, supplied a great number of pictures of well-known subjects. These can be bought through G. E. Stechert & Co., New York. Stoddard's "Glimpses of the world" and similar portfolios of views were good because they had text with the pictures. Other books which were cut up were Blanchan's "Bird neighbors," "Birds that hunt and are hunted," and "Nature's garden," Chapman's "Bird life," Dugmore's "Bird homes," and Hervey's "Wayside flowers," "Flowers of the field," and "Beautiful wild flowers of America."

Portfolios of local views are always bought by the librarian when on vacations. The "National geographic magazine" has fine half-tones, and several copies are bought for mounting purposes.

The picture collection has grown so rapidly and occupies so much space that the storage question is a difficult one. Elaborate and expensive cases were used at first, but it was soon found impracticable to add to these. Now the pictures are stored like books, standing upright on their edges, on wooden shelves 14½ inches wide. Each shelf is divided into pigeon-holes 12 inches high and 4½ inches wide by thin upright partitions and the pictures are crowded rather closely into these pigeon-holes. This helps to keep them flat and to keep out the dust. This arrangement would not be good for expensive or large photographs, but it serves our purpose well, as storage space and expense must be kept small. For a popular collection which has a large use this arrangement is good enough. The pictures do not get as dusty as one might think they would, and no more so than books.

The arrangement is planned for rapid handling and ease in finding the pictures, and for simplicity in cataloguing. Pictures of paintings are arranged alphabetically by artists. This includes portraits, if the artist is known. A classified arrangement of artists by schools, etc., is unnecessary and unwise for a popular collection. For portraits, when the artist is known, and paintings with an historical or well-defined subject a simple subject catalogue card is made. Portraits, when the artist is not known, are arranged alphabetically by the person, and with the portraits are the statues and homes of the person, and scenes from his books, if any; in fact a biographical arrangement.

Sculpture is divided into Greek, Græco-Roman and modern and then arranged alphabetically by sculptors.

All other subjects are classified by the Decimal classification, just as our books are. No catalogue for these is necessary, as the pictures form a catalogue themselves. Christmas and Thanksgiving pictures are numbered 394, birds are 598.2, divided by "resident," "migratory," "non-New England," "winter," "summer," "nests and eggs;" flowers are 580, divided by season. The history number is used for pictures of places and historical subjects. Under England and France the cathedrals and castles are arranged alphabetically. The pictures are numbered in black ink on the back, in one corner and the pigeon-holes are minutely labeled.

Our collection and its arrangement is the result of experience and natural, rapid growth, and it has proved to be practical, useful, and popular, one of our most appreciated departments, and most useful in advertising the library. It requires, however, much care, and is on the whole expensive, as picture collections to be really efficient and not a continual disappointment must be large and constantly growing. I would suggest that the small library with limited means should not attempt to do much with mounted pictures unless the librarian is a born collector and loves pictures, and is glad to put into the making of the collection much unpaid-for time and labor.

HELPFUL HINTS

Use of Book "Jackets."

At Brockton, (Mass.) Public Library, the paper covers of new books are put together in bunches of 20 or more, the top left corners punched, and the bunches hung to nails on the Bulletin Board by strings, so anybody may look them over. Much space is thus saved over the usual method of posting the jackets separately on the Bulletin.

"The cards are sent out as soon as we receive the first number of a periodical, if it has already completed at least one volume; if not, as soon as the first volume is complete, if it still lacks the title-page and index. When returned, the cards are filed alphabetically in a drawer of their own, where they are easily consulted. We have found that the prompt use of these cards often prevents our having to hold up a volume which is ready for binding. It is probably needless to add that the cards are sent out with both sections stamped, and are thus of use only in the case of periodicals published in this country. We attribute much of the success of these cards to the fact that no writing is necessary on the part of the person addressed."

Lantern Slide Sorting and Filing.

I have for the last ten or more years used this method of keeping my collection of lantern slides in order by classes, and at the same time right-side up, and facing the same way.

I paint a stripe with water colors on the edge of the black paper binding of the slides, using different colors and different distances from the centre of the slide to designate different countries or classes. For example a red mark one inch from the centre would indicate a British scene. Two red marks Switzerland. A yellow mark means Colorado view, two yellow marks California. A wide white mark 1½ inches from center may mean a view of a library and used with the other marks will show where the library is.

One can easily devise a classification scheme that will be a great help in keeping slides in order, and quickly finding those wanted. If no line is put exactly in the centre of the edge, any slide faced wrong will be at once caught when with the others as there will be a break in the line of color. If a slide is upside down, no color mark at all will show. I detest having slides come on the screen upside down or wrong side out as so often happens with a poor operator. My color-band scheme will insure all slides being right to use.

When slides are to be sorted away again, the bands make a job of a tedious eye-strain task.

Moving Pictures: Stereopticons.

Mr. Charles E. Rush, librarian at the Free Public Library, St. Joseph, Mo., sends us the following hints:

The Edison Home Kinetoscope, the marvellous little moving picture machine recently put out by Thomas A. Edison for use in schools, libraries and homes, makes a splendid advertising agent, especially for Branch libraries in connection with their story hours. This wonderful little machine is both a stereopticon and moving picture outfit and a complete equipment costs only about $100. Address, Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Orange, New Jersey.

It will be well for all librarians to investigate the little "Aristocrat of Stereopticons," manufactured by the Victor Animatograph Company, Davenport, Iowa, and called "The Victor." This instrument is remarkably simple and economical, it requires no special wiring or other equipment and produces exceptionally fine pictures from standard lantern slides. The outfit costs only about $42.50.

Use of Process Slips, or "Travelers."

The Public Library of the District of Columbia.
The following plan for the use of the process slip has been put into operation.
When the book is accessioned the accession number and date of accessioning are stamped on the process slip, a reproduction of which is here given. The slips are about 5 x 3 inches. Space is given on the slip for the initials of the boy who perforates the book, and of the one who does the "extra perforation," or perforation of colored plates, to prevent their being removed.
If the book is to be assigned to a special department, as "Reference Room" or "Children's Room" the slip is so stamped at the top, as a memorandum that the book is to be stamped also. Any notes containing information of use to the catalog department are also written on the slip. As the order card is used for the accession record, it is refiled alphabetically in the order list after the book has been accessioned, there to remain until the book is cataloged and shelf-listed. Then it is withdrawn and filed numerically. The shelf-lister fills in the author and title of the book on the process slip, if a duplicate, and the slip is then returned to the order department as a memorandum to withdraw the order card and file it numerically. The process slip is then destroyed. If the book is a new title a copy of the author entry in the catalog is sent to the order department as a memorandum. In this case the process slip is not needed and can be destroyed after the book is cataloged. Although it is convenient to have the entries for the various processes printed on the slip it has been found that a blank slip can be used just as effectively.

The Cambridge Public Library.

The Cambridge Public Library uses a slip similar to the above about 8 x 2½ inches, called the "traveler," ruled off into sections which are labeled as follows: "Author, title, price, date, examined, assigned, accessioned, source, stamped, classified, shelf-listed, bulletin slips, cataloged, revised, cut, pasted, marked, shelved." As soon as a book is received one of these travelers is placed in it and remains there until the volume has gone through the various processes of preparation for the shelves, each person who deals with it placing his initials in the proper place. After the book has been "shelved," the slip is returned to the catalog room (a line to that effect being printed at bottom) and is there filed with others. At the end of each month the slips are carefully counted, compared with the record of accessions as given in the accessions book, and used to obtain the count of classified accessions for the month.

This slip was adapted from one in use at the Public Library in Washington, D. C.

The following notice in use by the Kansas City Public Library is timely and will be a help to other libraries.

SUGGESTIONS FOR LIBRARY SERVICE THROUGH PARCEL POST.

Books may be sent from or to the Library by parcel post at the following rates:

Weight	First Zone
	Local rate	Zone rate
1 lb.	$0.05	$0.05
2	06	06
3	06	07

Books will be delivered by parcel post if postage and library cards are received with request. Since it may be impossible to fill requests immediately, please state the limit of time in which the books will be of use to you. If they cannot be supplied within that time, postage will be returned.
Borrower is responsible for books until they are received by the library. Books lost in post must be paid for by borrower, as they are mailed at his risk.
Send a card and 6 cents to the library for each book desired. If on the shelves, same will be mailed immediately. If less postage than received is required, excess will be returned with book. If additional postage is required, slip stating amount due will be placed in book pocket and card held until cleared. If postage is due, place same in book pocket with postage due slip, when book is returned. If book asked for is not on shelf, card and postage will act as a reserve, and book will be sent when available.

In figuring overdue penalties, subtract date book is due, as shown by card, from date returned, at 2 cents per day: viz: date stamped on card 2, date returned 5, 3 days overdue, or 6 cents; or, date stamped on card 28 (month of 31 days), date returned 4, 7 days, 14 cents. Overdue penalty will date from time of deposit in post office. When returning overdue book, place postage covering penalty in book pocket.

If a card is held for fine or postage, no book will be issued on card until cleared.

To return books to the library by parcel post, books must be well wrapped, taken to post office or sub-station, prepaid, addressed to Kansas City Public Library, Kansas City, Mo., with sender's name and address on package. Printed labels (see sample below) will be furnished patrons at library. Borrower's card must be left in the pocket in the book. Do not seal package, or first class rate will be charged. Do not leave package on mail box. If another book is desired, enclose list and postage.

Labels on books delivered by parcel post will show amount of postage necessary for their return. If not received by parcel post, weigh and use rate given on labels furnished by library.

Books (other than those limited to 4 or 7 days) may be reserved and sent by parcel post on deposit of library card and sufficient postage to cover carriage. If a postal card (or 1 cent additional) is left, the patron will be notified on mailing of book.

It is desirable that patrons using the parcel post send in a list of several titles desired, arranged in order of preference. Requests will be filled in order of list arrangement.

Books cannot be sent on telephone request, unless the card of the applicant is in the library, together with a deposit to cover postage.

Return label (gummed), actual size 5 X 3in.

SAFE AND SANE MAGAZINES

The Massachusetts Library Club, "viewing with strong disapproval the alarming decadence in tone of many of the leading American periodicals," appointed a committee to report on this matter. Evidently fearing that the publication of a list of undesirables would defeat the object of the movement, the club has adopted the following "white list" of fifty, dividing it into groups of ten. For a library subscribing to but ten periodicals, Group one is recommended. If appropriations will allow of more, Groups two, three, and so on are to be added until the needed number is reached. A special group of 20 is added from which may be selected periodicals on such special subjects as a given community may need, supplementing those in any group or groups chosen. Here is the official list of "sheep"; of course all others are not "goats." The committee hastens to add words to that effect, yet one cannot help wondering why certain well-known magazines are among the missing, and others placed as they are in the groups.

Group 1

Atlantic, Harper's Monthly Magazine, National Geographic Magazine, Outing, Outlook, Popular Mechanics, Saint Nicholas, Scientific American, Survey, Woman's Home Companion.

Group 2

Century, Delineator, Garden Magazine, Hints, Independent, Journal of Education (weekly), Literary Digest, Nation, World's Work, Youth's Companion.

Group 3

American Homes and Gardens, Boston Cooking School Magazine, Current Opinion, International Studio, Modern Priscilla, North American Review, Review of Reviews, School Arts Magazine, Scribner's Magazine, Technical World.

Group 4

American City, American Magazine, Bulletin of the Pan American Union, Craftsman, Dial, Etude, Illustrated London News, Popular Science Monthly, Scientific American Supplement, System.

Group 5

Education, English Review, Forum, House Beautiful, Living Age, Popular Electricity, Punch or Life, Rudder Spectator, Travel.

Special List (20).

Aeronautics, American Architect, American Photography, American Poultry Journal, Annals of the American Academy, Bird Lore, Bon Ton, Country Life in America, Engineering Magazine, Forest and Stream, Gleanings in Bee Culture, Keith's Magazine, Keramic Studio, Manual Training Magazine, Missionary Review, Musician, National Municipal Review, Political Science Quarterly, Printing Art, Yachting.

The Magazines Themselves Speak

One can imagine the excitement the publication of the above list caused among the magazines themselves. The following remarks were overheard one night at a big city news-stand after the shutters were up:

"I don't care, I don't care," blithely sang Cosmopolitan, overtopping all the piles of its companions on the stand. "Why such joyful abandon?" said McClure's from the neighboring pile, almost as high. "My publisher," replied Cosmopolitan, "says I'm America's greatest magazine, but Massachusetts not seeing my motto, 'I can't be beat,' is holding its Club over me. But I'm not afraid, my circulation is improving. You're not on the list either, Mac, for all your Gibson girl covers. We should worry!"

"I think," said Miss Atlantic, "that the list is a decidedly appropriate thing for such a splendid organization as the Massachusetts

Library Club to promulgate; it will make us known in wider fields, and tend to offset the obscurity into which you loud-talking, fifteen-cent serials, with your garish pictures, have thrown us. I almost wish we might have another war, so I could again appear with my cover embellished with the dear old flag." "Flag or no flag, what ice do you cut, a high-brow, non-illustrated monthly," said Munsey. "Why, you have to be ordered in advance west of the Hudson River; who ever saw you on a news-stand, even if you are number one in Group one?" "Yes," added Review of Reviews from Group three, "I heard a lady ask for Atlantic in Chicago recently, and the news clerk after a fruitless search, told her he was sorry, but their copy for April must have been mislaid or sold." "Whatever is all this discussion about?" said Ladies' Home Journal, its Easter bunny-covers standing on tip-toe all over the outside of the counter. "Oh, you're not among the select either, tabooed by order of the Massachusetts Pilgrims" said Woman's Home Companion. I have at last achieved a place in Group one. You poor L. H. J.! to think that Delineator and even Modern Priscilla, Boston Cooking School, and Hints (whatever that is) are all listed, you are not even among the afterthoughts in Special List with the American Poultry Journal." "There's some grave mistake," cried the lady from Philadelphia; "either these insignificant sheets have 'Clubs' of their own, and so have escaped censure, or else they are published in Boston, which of course is open sesame to any list. You, Woman, may have gotten on by aid of your Kewpies, but I suspect it was that whale story you published years ago, for the head of the Censor Committee is just crazy about whaling. You're no lady, anyway." "Friends, friends!" said Youth's Companion, "don't make such a fuss, we elders who are on the list won't desert you. The Outlook is good in this Living Age for any Independent periodical to do its share of the World's Work in this Nation. Take a Survey, formulate a System, the Century is young." "Yes, and I'm — proud of it," said Century, who had been listening from its corner near Harper's and Scribner's, "though I feel hurt that Life should have called me a 'frankfurter' and a 'hot dog' in its issue of March 19th. I know I almost missed a place with the elect on account of that white linen story, but I'm on all right now, so forget it." Harper's blushed at such slangy language from her near neighbor, and drew her skirts closer about her. "You would think Century was one of us to hear her talk," said Hearst's to Harper's Bazar, who was admiring her slit skirt and purple wig in the Dramatic Mirror. "That giddy old Bazar flirt is getting too wild for me," said Good Housekeeping. "I really believe my acquaintance with her lost me a place in the groups."

"I'll wager Life had a jolly struggle to get on even after he hid behind me," said Punch. "He's too blasé, and those Cushing styles a bit vulgar, don't you know. His guessing contests and such bally rot would never do in old London." "Hooray," yelled Life, "I'm the magazine with the Punch! Get the habit, see my immodest coupon on the southwest corner of my cover." "Consider for a moment," said Literary Digest to Scientific American, "what it means for you and me and your appendix, beg pardon, I mean Supplement, to be listed with the London News, that good old illustrated soul!" "Yes, you for the moment may feel exalted," said Leslie's, "but I tell you I'm clean and I have the pictures. I was not known to the committee, or else that white slave story queered me." "Never mind, Frank, come over here with us," said Collier's and Harper's Weekly, "we think more of our news-stand sale than any reading room circulation, clamped into stiff covers. I'm a bit sorry not to be on the list," said Harper's Weekly, "though I admit I did let loose a bit when the change came after so many years of restraint, but I'm all right again now, the journal of civilization, and I court close scrutiny. My art is no longer irregular." "Speaking of your 'art,'" said Collier's, "it was my lungs which lost me a place, I shouted too loud at the patent medicines."

"Can anyone of you imagine why I was not put on the 'white list,'" whined Everybody's. "I certainly am paged consecutively, and have never run all my ads. among the text like American, yet Ida is in Group four, and I'm out here with Top Notch, Peoples, All Story and that bunch who never saw the inside of a library." "Don't you worry, Tommy, Ida's the only fifteen-center on the list and she won't stay long," said old Dr. North American. "I've been the foremost review of the country since 1815, born and raised in Boston and Cambridge, yet here I am put down in Group three. It's scandalous."

I belong in group one. Even Colonel Harvey says so. Still, Forum (I can't abide that young politician) is in group five, which is some consolation."

And so during the whole night the magazines discussed their new rating and in the morning were as far from understanding the reasons of their selection or omission as they were the night before. "It looks to me," said Journal of Education, to Spectator, "as if we who are least wanted by the public are the ones recommended for library reading rooms." "Yes, a crowd in a library is so disconcerting, you know." F. W. F.

READING LIST ON PAUL ERNEST HERVIEU (1857-)

Compiled by Tommie Dora Barker, Reference Librarian, Carnegie Library, Atlanta, Georgia

PAUL ERNEST HERVIEU.

Paul Ernest Hervieu was born Nov. 2, 1857 at Neuilly on the Seine. His early education was rather fragmentary. He graduated in law in 1877 and qualified for the diplomatic service. However, he resigned from this in 1881 and began to contribute sketches and stories to the newspapers and periodicals. He also published several novels. In 1890, his first play was produced. It was quite evident that it was in the realm of the drama that Hervieu was destined to attain his greatest distinction, having now attained to a place foremost among the exponents of modern French drama.

The following is a list of his plays in chronological order:

Point de lendemain (1890); Les paroles restent (1892); Les tenailles (1895); La loi de l'homme (1897); L'énigme (1901); La course du flambeau (1901); Théroigne de Mericourt (1902); Le dédale (1903); Le réveil (1905); Modestie (1908); Connais-toi (1909); Bagatelle (1912).

DRAMAS.

Hervieu, Paul Ernest. In chains (Les tenailles); tr. by Ysidor Askenasy. Bost. Badger, [c. 1907] $1.50. (See also Poet-lore, Mar.-Apr., 1909, 20: 81-112.)

Also published by Wessels, N. Y. .50.

A woman is married to a man she does not love; no more does he love her. But she loves another and confesses as much to her husband, declaring her intention of leaving him. Her husband will not let her go. There is a child. In the heat of the moment, the woman reveals to and even taunts her husband with the statement that it is not his child but one by her lover. He is quite willing to let her go now, but she refuses to leave. They must stay bound together, however unwillingly, for the sake of the child.

— The labyrinth (Le dédale); a play in five acts; tr. by Barrett H. Clark and Lander MacClintock. N. Y. Heubsch, 1913. $1.

"The thesis, baldly stated is this: A man and a woman once married are married until death, if there be a child. Let the law supervene, let vagrant passion demolish the social structure, this stark, naked fact remains — the flesh of the child unites the parents in the bond of eternity." — Huneker, Iconoclasts, p. 213.

VACATION DAYS

At this time when the staff is more or less depleted by vacations, few book accessions are made, as so much time has to be given to cataloging and preparing books for the shelves. Is not the summer a good time, therefore, to order a few sets of reference periodicals, where a whole file can be cataloged on one card? The Boston Book Co. is prepared to furnish them bound to your order, in any style, and your shelf numbers can be added. For summer orders, buy periodical sets and save on your labor. Our advertising pages offer suggestions. Such books are always of use, and never need replacement.

LIBRARIES OF NEW YORK CITY IN 1854

In Norton's Literary Register for 1854 is a description of New York's libraries which makes interesting reading to-day. The Astor Library was then the foremost library, just moving to its new building in Lafayette Place, with 80,000 volumes.

Next in importance was the Society Library with 36,000 volumes, and a new building on University Place was contemplated.

The Mercantile Library, "intended especially for the benefit of merchants' clerks, who pay $2.00 annually as a fee for membership," is given third place, with 39,500 volumes. The other libraries are listed as follows:

Apprentices' Library, 17,000; Mechanics' Institute, 5,000; Columbia College, 16,000; Union Theological Seminary, 18,000; Episcopal Theological Seminary, 12,000; New York Historical Society, 25,000; New York University, 1,500. "We feel confident," says our author, "that there are few cities better supplied with opportunities for obtaining books." The total number of books available in all the libraries was 295,500.

FAIRY TALES INDEX

We have the manuscript nearly ready for a comprehensive Index to Fairy Tales, which we shall publish in book form, probably in the fall or early winter.

This index will be much larger than the one we have been running serially in the Bulletin of Bibliography, and from comments on the value and usefulness of such an Index which we have received, we feel sure this new book in our Useful Reference Series will be most welcome.

MAGAZINE NOTES

Westminster Review, if not dead, is very sick, not having been able to appear in public since the issue of January, 1914. The proprietor is in poor health, we understand, and when he recovers, the Review will resume publication.

Candid Quarterly Review of public affairs, political, scientific and literary. This English review, conducted by Thomas Gibson Bowles, and published by Frederick Henry Garratt, 26 Maiden Lane, London, is a substantial newcomer, and should make itself a place. Number 1 is dated February, 1915, 5 shillings a number.

Annals of the Missouri Botanical Garden, volume 1, number 1, March, 1914, has appeared and is a worthy organ for the Botanical Garden, in St. Louis, whose name it carries.

It is to be a quarterly, at $3.00 a year, and is designed to contain only scientific contributions by the staff of the Garden, by the faculty and graduate students of the Henry Shaw School of Botany of Washington University, and by visiting botanists doing work at the Garden. This, with a monthly Bulletin, will supersede the annual Report, of which the 23d will mark the close of that series.

New England Magazine. February, 1914, contained the indexes of vols. 44, 45, 47 to 50. There is no vol. 46, as after number 1 the rest was called 47.

Vocational Education will be combined with Manual Training Magazine with the September, 1914, issue. Manual Training Magazine will then be published ten times a year, and its price raised to $2.00.

The Chautauquan is dead; it had been "weekly" since June, 1913, and we had been expecting its end for some time. The final issue was June 1, 1914. The Independent has absorbed it. The Chautauquan was a most useful magazine in the monthly form, and libraries will miss it. At first an overgrown quarto which wouldn't fit any ordinary shelf, it changed to "standard" octavo size in 1889, and then in 1906 adopted a pocket duodecimo shape which made for easy loss, if not for easy use; and by making three issues complete a volume, caused a binding expense out of all proportion to its use. It has gone to its reward.

Have you seen The Little Review (Margaret C. Anderson, editor, Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Volume 1, number 1, March, 1914, 25c, $2.50 a year)? The initial number, octavo in form, has forty-eight pages of text, and unfortunately pages in its advertising pages (we have sent Miss A. our protest).

The field The Little Review covers is a large one—"Literature, Drama, Music, Art." Number one is a very interesting issue, opening with a "good speed" letter from John Galsworthy. There are articles on "Mr. Faust," Mr. Fickes' play; "Paderewski and the New Gods"; "The Poetry of Rupert Brooke"; "Tagore as a Dynamic"; "Succession, a comedy of the Generations," Miss Sidgwick's new book.

The Journal of the American Water Works Association, Baltimore, vol. 1, no. 1, March, 1914, has appeared. A thick octavo, with illustrations and maps, it will, as a quarterly, supersede the annual Proceedings.

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

WARD, GILBERT O. The Practical Use of Books and Libraries. New and enlarged edition.

This useful little book has been brought down to date by its author, the chapters on "Reference Books" and "Magazines" have been largely re-written to conform with the present. Minor changes have been made throughout. There are ninety-seven pages exclusive of a full index; quite an increase over the earlier edition. We believe every library will find it worth while to own the new edition of this very handy manual.

The Boston Book Co. 1914. Cloth. $1.00 special net, delivery free.

HICKS, FREDERICK C. Aids to the Study and Use of Law Books.

We are sure Mr. Hicks will have the grateful thanks of many users of law books for his concise and handy volume, listing and annotating publications relating to law literature, law study and legal ethics. The scope of the book may be seen by the table of contents: Law study; How and where to find the law; Legal bibliographies; Legal terminology; Text-books and treatises; Case law; Statutes and session laws; Law collections in the U. S.; Legal ethics. A full index completes the volume.

New York, Baker, Voorhis & Co. $1.00.

COUTTS, HENRY T. Library Jokes and Jottings, a collection of stories partly wise but mostly otherwise.

At last we have a Library joke book, and librarians may now spend a pleasant hour in reading Mr. Coutts' little volume, and laughing in the privacy of the office at blunders which could only be received with serious face in the presence of the would-be library borrowers. We are not so much surprised to find that English borrowers make the same blunders Americans do, as to discover that at least one Englishman has seen the "humour" of it all.

We are grateful to the author for this little volume, and its clever arrangement of "smiles," but oh, why did his publisher put such an atrocious cover on the book! Librarian-authors should always appear dignified, even in the presence of the clown. The book is cheapened by the glaring yellow binding.

RICHARDSON, ERNEST CUSHING. The beginnings of libraries.

In this little book, Dr. Richardson interestingly traces the beginnings of libraries. First the imaginary Libraries of the Gods, and Preadamite libraries, then Pictorial object libraries, Mnemonic object libraries, Picture book libraries. He describes all the different types, their contents and administration. It will be a surprise to many to find such an early library history available, so long before the existence of any books, but our author in his chapter on "Bibliography" gives us a long list of references to material of this nature, so one is forced to believe what otherwise would seem the result of a rather vivid library imagination.

Not the least interesting part of the book is the index. There are six illustrations.

BISHOP, WILLIAM WARNER. Practical handbook of modern library cataloging.

Mr. William Warner Bishop, who is Superintendent of the Reading Room, Library of Congress, has, in this little handbook, set forth most clearly the catalog in all its many relations to the library. Chapter 2 covers the catalog room, its equipment and location, the kind and weight of cards best suited to the use they are to have. The planning of the catalog in advance of actual work upon it is shown to be very necessary.

One chapter is given to the "Organization of the cataloging force," while Chapter 5 on the "Use of printed catalog cards," is most welcome, as such use is rapidly growing everywhere, and none of the older articles on cataloging touch upon it at all.

The final chapter devoted to "Subject Headings," warns the beginner of the difficulties to be met at every turn unless a careful plan is adopted in the beginning, and strictly adhered to.

A good index completes the book.

LIBRARY ASSOCIATION YEAR BOOK FOR 1914

A new handbook of the Library Association of the United Kingdom has appeared, under the editorship of L. Stanley Jast, Honorary Secretary. This is the first issue since that of 1909, and contains an up-to-date list of fellows and members, the Royal Charter and By-Laws, information relating to the professional examination, with the examination papers of May, 1913, and list of the successful candidates. There is also a list, with officers of Branch Library Associations, and a list of the papers communicated to the annual and monthly meetings of the Library Association from 1909 to 1913. The pamphlet closes with a list of Public Libraries of the United Kingdom, and a catalogue of the publications of the Association.

MODERN DRAMA

A notable contribution to the field of modern dramatic criticism is Professor Archibald Henderson's European Dramatists. Here are essays by the biographer of George Bernard Shaw, on Strindberg, Ibsen, Maeterlinck, Wilde, Shaw and Barker. We have intimate studies of these men through their works, by a keen student of present-day drama, a book not only as interesting as a novel, but a reference work which will have a wide usefulness. It appears when all eyes are focused upon the modern drama.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

Who's Who in Music and Drama. Edited by Dixie Hines and Harry P. Hanaford, is at last published, after several years spent in compilation.

In addition to the short biographies of hundreds of players and musicians, there is a record of all première performances (with casts) in New York City, June 1, 1910, to August 30, 1913; a record of grand opera, casts Nov. 1910–June 1913, both in New York, Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia.

AN UNIQUE LIBRARY MAGAZINE

We call attention to The Newarker, the attractive and unique magazine published by the Newark, N. J., Free Public Library. Mr. John Cotton Dana has made more than a library bulletin of this magazine; it covers the activities of his whole city, and shows how intimately the library is linked to every work the city's inhabitants are engaged in.

Volumes one and two are now complete. Bound in half pigskin, they make a set of great interest, and well worth the $5.00 charged; this amount also includes subscription for the current year.

LIBRARY ACTIVITIES DURING 1912-13

In the Commissioner of Education Report, 1913, vol. 1, recently published, Miss M. E. Ahern has a very valuable summary of library progress. The article covers pages 313–41, and takes up the subject under these heads: National and State aid, Traveling libraries, Library legislation, Co-operation, Pensions, Library schools, American Library Association, American Library Institute. Publications, special collections opened to the public in 1912–13, school libraries, Necrology, Expansion in large cities.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF LIBRARIANS AND BIBLIOGRAPHERS

III.

CHARLES AMMI CUTTER, 1837-1903

Mr. Cutter was born in Boston, March 14, 1837. He was graduated from Harvard College in 1855, at the early age of eighteen, standing almost at the head of his class. In September, 1856, he entered the Divinity School of Harvard University, graduating in 1859. He was not ordained as a clergyman, however, but at once began his life work of librarian. Indeed, while still in the divinity school, he became in 1858 librarian of that institution. In 1860 he entered the library of Harvard College and remained there about eight years. He was chosen librarian of the Boston Athenæum December 14, 1868, taking charge of the library January 1, 1869, and withdrawing from the position in 1893. Soon after, he accepted the place of librarian of the Forbes Library, Northampton, and, having declined an offer to become head of the reference department of the new public library in Brooklyn, remained there until his death, September 6, 1903.

Mr. Cutter had great natural qualifications for the occupation of librarian. He enjoyed study of library methods and planned with real pleasure the tools needed in their adoption. At the same time he was an excellent scholar and capable and earnest in aiding students and persons engaged in popular researches. He had an international reputation for his skill in cataloguing, which was manifested in the admirable work which he did in preparing the catalogue of the Boston Athenæum which was issued under his auspices, volume by volume, during the years 1874–1882, and in a careful compilation of rules for making a dictionary catalogue which was issued as the second part of the great work on the libraries of the United States, published by the United States Bureau of Education in 1876, and kept up to date by revisions.

Mr. Cutter engaged ardently in the accelerated library movement of 1876. He had been a valuable contributor to the first volume of the work issued by the Bureau of Education in the year just alluded to. He took hold with enthusiasm of the project for the convention held in Philadelphia at which the American Library Association was formed, and helped largely to make it successful. He continued his labors in the general library cause until the end of his life. Mr. Dewey speaking of his own hesitation and that of such older librarians as Mr. Winsor and Mr. Poole, in taking the first steps and calling the conference of librarians, said at the meeting of the American Library Association at Lake Placid in 1894: "The one man who from the first, through the whole history of the association, has always had faith, not only said, 'I think it can be done,' but also, 'I will help' and did help, was Charles A. Cutter of the Boston Athenæum. The other older librarians were often in doubt, but Mr. Cutter never failed to join heartily in every advance movement." Mr. Cutter's direct efforts to advance the library cause were shown not only in the part which he took in the meetings of librarians and as a member of the executive committee of the American Library Association, but as chairman of the co-operation committee of that organization, ably helping in that position to formulate wise methods of conducting libraries to be communicated for public use through the Library Journal. Then, too, he made valuable suggestions in the Journal on various subjects. Moreover and especially when the Library Journal was projected, its conductors naturally looked to this scholar among librarians as the proper editor for the department of bibliography. For many years the material in this department came in his own handwriting, testifying to the painstaking accuracy that was characteristic of him; and for the last ten years of his long connection with the Journal, he shared the responsibility of its general editorship.

Mr. Cutter was the author of the Expansive Classification for the arrangement of the books of a library on its shelves. It was unfinished at the time of his death and was placed in the capable hands of his nephew, Mr. W. P. Cutter, for completion. The latter wrote a year or two ago: "There are now 65,000 entries in the index, and none of the four hundred pages of science are indexed. The mere printing and composition would cost thousands of dollars, enough to make the Expansive cost over twenty thousand dollars from its inception."

Mr. Cutter was a very hard worker as has been undoubtedly surmised from statements already mentioned. He was learned and accurate, a man, too, of intellectual power and impressionable in the presence of beauty and sublimity of nature, of fine taste in art, architecture and literature. There was humor, too, in his composition. Withal, he was a modest man. "His unfailing gentleness," writes one who knew him well, "his readiness to help others, his simplicity of spirit, the catholicity of his interests and enjoyments, made him as delightful as a companion as he was lovable as a friend." He was also very unselfish. Mr. Cutter came very near to receiving the offer of the librarianship of Harvard University. He was fond of outdoor life in pleasant surroundings and never lost an opportunity to climb mountains. He belonged to the Appalachian Club. He was on a driving trip in New Hampshire with his wife when attacked by his last illness which ended in his death in a few days. As an illustration of the catholicity of Mr. Cutter in seeking entertainment, it may be stated that he was very fond of dancing and engaging in private theatricals.

I. GARY (Ind.) SHELF-LIST RECORD AND ORDER-CARD.

II. HELPFUL HINTS.

The Editor will welcome "hints" for this department, whether original or not. They will be new to many libraries though an old story to you. Will librarians also send word of anything on which they would like information concerning the practices of other libraries.

THE GARY (Ind.) PUBLIC LIBRARY SHELF-LIST RECORD AND ORDER-CARD.

By L. J. Bailey, Librarian.

We use our shelf list card for the purchase record first and keep a record of the steps through which the book goes in purchase. When the book is received and classified the call number is entered on the card. We check the card when the book is cataloged and then it is ready for the shelf list.

	GARY PUBLIC LIBRARY

Gary Shelf-List Card, Size 3 x 5 in.

The steps the card serves are these:

Proposed purchases.

We file cards under this head as we learn of books, by filling out the card with whatever information we have. If the title is taken from the A. L. A. Booklist we can thus give on our card the usual information, L. C. number and suggested classification.

Books ordered.

As soon as a book is ordered we stamp or write in the proper space the information as to date and of whom purchased. We use small rubber stamps and can easily stamp up a hundred cards. For instance, we buy of McClurg, Baker & Taylor and of our local dealer, so we have stamps for their names. This is a timesaver, that is all.

Awaiting invoice.

We sometimes receive books before we get the bill for the books. The card for each book is checked up with the date received and card filed under this heading to await the bill. Conversely when we receive the bill for the books first the cards are checked with prices and date of invoice.

For classification and cataloging.

Cards are filed under this head while the books are being classified and cataloged. When that is done the book number is entered on the card and they are checked as cataloged.

Ready for shelf list record.

The cards are checked up and the record of the classes of books added is entered in the shelf list record.

Ready for shelf list.

Cards are held here until filed in the shelf list.

Our shelf list record is an oblong sheet 14 x 8 1/2 inches, which gives us a continuous and up-to-date record of the number of books in the library, not only the total number but by classes. We have had this special sheet printed for loose leaf ledger, but before that we used a common wide leaf book, hand-ruled. Such a book serves just as well though it may not look so neat.

These sheets are ruled into 27 columns on each side. Printed in the first column are the following headings. The blank columns are used for a weekly or monthly summary of books added.

In Gary we use the following sheets:

- Gary Purchases, adult books
- Gary added by binding, adult
- Gary added by gift, adult
- Gary withdrawals, adult
- Gary purchases, juvenile
- Gary additions by binding, juvenile
- Gary added by gift, juvenile
- Gary withdrawals, juvenile
- For our branch library:
- Tolleston, adult additions
- Tolleston, adult withdrawals
- Tolleston, juvenile additions
- Tolleston, juvenile withdrawals

These twelve sheets serve all our needs for one year. It is easily possible to add up the totals at any time and tell just how many books are in the library, or how many in any class. At inventory time the results may be checked up in any class at any time with the utmost ease.

As the number of volumes in the library is ascertainable from this record we do not have or use any accession numbers nor do we have to carry them through the catalog work. The value of the book if lost is immediately ascertainable from the shelf list card without looking any further. The whole record of the book appears on the shelf list card.

At the end of the fiscal year the number of books by classes and by total is easily found and the net totals entered on new sheets for the new year.

In practice we do not add the books to the shelf list record oftener than once a week and sometimes only once a month.

The advantages we feel that we obtain by using this system are as follows:

- Great time saving.
- Most flexible and conveniently handled order system.
- No rewriting of entries or cards.
- No accession number.
- More complete record of number of books in library.
- Greater ease in handling all records.
- More up to date all the time.
- Lessens time in getting books to public.
- Insurance values of books more easily obtained.

The only disadvantage suggested is that it is a card record and requires more careful handling. That applies to many things in library work; though it is undoubtedly true that the work of keeping this record should not be given to careless and slipshod workers.

HELPFUL HINTS

Suggestions for Entertaining.

At the Somerville (Mass.) Public Library, a few months ago, a Bulletin board above a table, had a typed list of some forty books of games, dances, etc., with the caption.

“This list is a selection and does not represent the entire resources of the library.”

On the table below the list were placed many of the books themselves so that the public might consult them and make a choice.

Free Exhibitions of Pictures.

In connection with Mr. Tripp’s suggestion made in the January Bulletin of Bibliography, it has occurred to me that few librarians take advantage of the very interesting and original paintings and drawings which may be borrowed for exhibition purposes from a considerable number of publishers. These pictures are generally done by some of our leading artists and when exhibited with the books which they illustrate they form an interesting display.

C. E. Rush, St. Joseph (Mo.) Pub. Library.

Order-Cards Without Printing.

Medium and small libraries generally incur the heavy expense of printing a detailed order card for use in the office. Librarians and assistants know what items to secure in preparing an order without having it down in black and white on each separate card. Both time and money can be saved by using plain white cards.

St. Joseph Pub. Library.

Use of Card Catalogues.

A card of blue is used by Somerville Public Library, once in each catalogue drawer. The top line is printed on a long “tab” which shows above rest of cards. (See reproduction, top of page 63.)

Any unexpended balance on deposit refunded to depositor on application. Date _____ 191_____ Unpunched figures show credit balance.

Temporary Card-Index to Advance Sheets of Public Documents.

As each shipment of documents comes the loose sheets are examined and those picked out that we think will be likely to be needed for immediate use, and in fact for continuous use until they are replaced by bound volumes.

For these we make temporary cards for an index kept in a filing box reserved for documents alone. The sheets are simply numbered and the card has of course the corresponding number. The entry is made under the subject.

We find this most helpful and a time-saver as we have so many debaters making almost constant use of these documents.

Reference Librarian, Public Library, Worcester, Mass.

Parcel Post Book Delivery.

The Chicago Public Library has made the Parcel Post available to its borrowers by issuing two cards, one blue, one yellow, 3 x 5 inches with rounded corner.

The yellow card is reproduced on page 63. It will be noted that around the edge are figures adding up to 100 cents, which are punched out as the money is needed. On the back of this Subscriber's Receipt Card are spaces for book numbers and loan dates.

The blue card has the same record of 100 cents around its edges and the registration number, name and address of borrower at the top. Printed on the blue card are the following rules which the borrower by signing at the bottom agrees to:

BOOK DELIVERY BY PARCEL POST

Any registered borrower, upon depositing one dollar to cover the cost of mailing books, may participate in this service, subject to the general rules of the Library governing book loans. A receipt card will be furnished, and the various charges for postage will be punched on this card so that it will at all times show the balance to the credit of the borrower.

Loan period (2 weeks) begins on date of mailing, not date of arrival at destination. In like manner loan period ends on date of return mailing, said date in case of doubt to be determined by the postmark. Fines for over-due books will be assessed in accordance with this rule.

In all cases of doubt or dispute the Library records must be accepted as accurate and conclusive evidence.

Responsibility for losses or damages incidental to transportation must be borne by the borrower.

Shipment of books made only when the card accompanies the order. One renewal for additional two weeks is permitted. When renewal is desired, books need not be sent in, but borrower's card must be mailed for restamping.

Books to be returned by parcel post must be securely wrapped and tied, but not sealed. Damages or excess postage charges caused by careless wrapping will be assessed against the sender. Sender's name and address preceded by the word "From" must appear on the wrapper.

No book will be mailed from the Library unless balance remaining on deposit is sufficient to cover all charges. When credit balance falls below ten cents, borrower will be notified to permit prompt remittance for renewal of deposit. Postage for correspondence relating to parcel post shipments will be charged against deposit.

Any unexpended balance remaining on deposit will be refunded to the depositor on application.

The borrowers are requested to state on their orders the limit of time in which books will be of use, if it is not possible to send them promptly because in circulation at the time of request.

Books may be sent from or to Library by parcel post at the following rates:

Weight	Local Rate	Zone Rate	Weight	Local Rate	Zone Rate
1 lb.	$0.05	$0.05	4lbs.	$0.07	$0.08
2 lbs.	.06	.06	5 lbs	.07	0.09
3 lbs.	.06	.07

The above conditions are understood and accepted by the undersigned.

BJÖRNSTJERNE BJÖRNSON (1832-1910).A BIBLIOGRAPHY.*TRANSLATIONS, BIBLIOGRAPHIES, AND CRITICISM IN ENGLISH.

Compiled by Professor Archibald Henderson, M.A. Ph.D., University of North Carolina.

BJÖRNSTJERNE BJÖRNSON.

Born in the mountains of northern Norway, he caught the feeling for nature in his early years in the Romsdal district, went to school at Molde, and prepared himself for the national university at the same school in Christiania attended by Ibsen. His first play was written when he was only twenty; his last when he was seventy-seven. Humane in his outlook, publicist in spirit, he sacrificed his personal interests as man of letters for the larger interests of the welfare of his country. Though recognized at the time of his death as the last of the Viking poets, and perhaps the most leonine figure in European literature, it cannot be doubted that much of his work lacks the ultimate refinement of style, the force of sustained reflection. Ibsen hopelessly distanced Björnson as an international force in the drama; but Björnson anticipated Ibsen, in notable instances, in the dramatic vitalization of leading modern ideas. As poet, as short story writer, as novelist, as dramatist, Björnson maintained a remarkably high level of excellence; it was only rarely that he reached the highest peaks. For his selfless leadership of his people, throughout a long lifetime, he came to be beloved as her "grand old man," as "Norway's uncrowned king." His dramas in chronological order, are as follows:

Mellem Slagene (1856), Halte-Hulda (1858), Kong Sverre (1861), Sigurd Slembe (1862), Maria Stuart i Skotland (1864), De Nygifte (1865), Sigurd Jorsalfar (1872), Redaktören (1874), En Fallit (1875), Kongen (1877), Leonarda (1879), Det Ny System (1879), En Hanske (1883), Over Evne I (1883); Geografi og Kjaerlighed (1885); Over Evne II (1895); Paul Lange and Tora Parsberg (1898); Laboremus (1901); Pa Storhove (1902); Daglannel (1904); Når Det Ny Vin Blomstrer (1909).

Bulletin of Bibliography

And Quarterly Dramatic Index

Vol. 8, No. 4. OCTOBER, 1914

The BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY is published by the Library Department of THE BOSTON BOOK COMPANY four times a year, in January, April, July and October. Terms, $2.00 a year. 50 cents a number. Back numbers, as far as they can be supplied, 30 cents each, 1897-1913; 50 cents each, 1914. Volumes 1-6 consist of ten numbers, vol. 7, of 7 numbers, with title and index. Price in buckram binding, $3.00 a volume, except vols. 1 and 6, which are $3.50, and vol. 7, $2.50.

In addition to the DRAMATIC INDEX, and DEPARTMENT OF LIBRARY ECONOMY, such original bibliographical and other material is included as seems of value to libraries. The advertisements of "Periodical Sets" in each issue are recognized as the "Prices current" of magazine files.

Correspondence concerning the BULLETIN is solicited, and lists or articles suitable for publication are desired. Address

THE BOSTON BOOK COMPANY, 83-91 Francis St., Fenway, Boston, Mass.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

LOOSE TITLE PAGES AND INDEXES OF PERIODICALS

You have constant bother keeping track of the title and index portion of your periodical subscriptions. Miss Gertrude P. Hill, who has charge of the periodical subscriptions in the New York Public Library has compiled a list of periodicals that supply loose titles and indexes to subscribers only on request. The Boston Book Company has printed this list, arranged in three alphabets—American, British (including colonies), Foreign (other than English)—in the form of an oblong pamphlet just the size of a standard catalog card. It will go into your card tray for ready reference. Printed allowing space on each page for additions and annotations.

Mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in stamps.

HANNAH P. JAMES

All who were so fortunate as to number Miss Hannah P. James among their friends will be glad to see such an excellent portrait of her as we publish with this issue. The biographical sketch by Miss Poland of Wilkes-Barré will give to newcomers in the library field a knowledge of one who for many years stood high in her chosen profession and may well be classed as one of the pioneers in the public library movement.

WAR CHANGES

The present European conflict will of necessity produce many peculiarities of issue among the periodicals of the countries involved. We shall try to give a record of these as they come to our notice, and would be glad of information about any omissions, consolidations or other changes that may come to the attention of our readers. Pall Mall Magazine in our Magazine notes below is one of those affected.

MAGAZINE NOTES

Harper's Weekly has again changed its shape in the middle of a volume. We all remember how the American Magazine, having done the same mean trick, in a measure retrieved its reputation by including the odd number in its index of the previous volume. Now Harper's Weekly, having issued three numbers of volume 59 (and by error having called two of them volume 58), reduces the width of its page with the issue of July 25, 1914. We welcome the happy idea which made the publisher decide to page volume 59 continuously, instead of beginning each issue at page one as he had done before, but what shall we say to our binder? Our first idea was to bind those three wide issues (July 4, 11, 18) as part of volume 58. But the Readers' Guide, the only place where Harper's Weekly is indexed (the periodical itself being title-and-index-less since some years ago), calls special attention to the fact that though labelled vol. 58 the first numbers of July are really 59, "the publisher says so," and proceeds to index them as 59. So our next plan is to bind the three misfits where they belong, leaving the covers of our book covers awkwardly protruding an inch or more into space, or as one librarian suggests, have the binder trim those three wide numbers down to the text on both inner and outer edges, first removing the centre picture for special folding and mounting.

Art and Archæology, an illustrated magazine, published by the Archæological Institute of America at $2.00 a year, monthly, vol. 1, no. 1, July, 1914. This new magazine will take the place of the Bulletin of the Archæological Institute, while the Annual Reports will appear hereafter in a single volume in December, retaining the name and numbering of the Bulletin.

The first issue of the new periodical is an interesting one, with many fine half tones.

Bindery Talk has suspended with its issue of Nov.-Dec., 1913, to be resumed if some new subscribers are found. There was much practical information for librarians about bookbinding in this little periodical, and we are sorry it did not succeed better.

W. E. Reavis, bookbinder, of Los Angeles, was its editor.

Pall Mall Magazine, London, and Nash's Magazine London, have united, and the October issue appears as Nash's Pall Mall Magazine, vol. 11, no. 1, thus taking the volume number of Nash's. The publisher states that the amalgamation is temporary, caused by the scarcity of paper in England, and adds:—"When the present universal disturbance has subsided and the shock and strangle of armed conflict have ceased, we shall proceed to separate and continue Nash's and Pall Mall and issue them as individual magazines." We hazard a guess that the union will be permanent.

New England Magazine for June, 1914, is the last issue — so far.

National Geographic Magazine has at last decided to make two volumes of a year's issues. Volume 25, therefore, is complete in six numbers, and makes a heavy and substantial volume. We have been endeavoring to have this done for the last two years. But we must wait until the end of the year for title and index.

Munsey's Magazine, since giving a complete novel in every issue (a feature that Lippincott's has had for many years), has, beginning with October, 1913, made its volumes complete in four issues instead of six. Volume 50 covers October, 1913, to Jan., 1914, and seems as thick a book as its predecessors.

Mississippi Valley Historical Review, volume 1, number 1, June, 1914, is before us. This substantial quarterly, published by the Mississippi Valley Historical Association, will find a welcome, if the standard set by number one is kept up. There is undoubtedly a place in the great middle West for such a Review.

Suburban Life, the Countryside Magazine becomes The Countryside Magazine and Suburban Life with the October issue. Otherwise the periodical is as before, both size and volume numbers being left. We sometimes think publishers do this sort of thing just to mix up would-be users of their periodicals.

It is rumored that The Live Issue is dead; Aug. 8 is the last we have seen. Sad that a magazine of such a name should die.

STEINER, BERNARD C. Life of Reverdy Johnson.

Reverdy Johnson, a native Marylander, was an eminent lawyer, and from the death of Daniel Webster, for more than twenty years he held the proud position of leader of the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States. He was keenly interested in politics and became United States Senator just before the Mexican War. He was Attorney-General in Taylor's Cabinet, and in 1862 was again elected Senator. Later he was United States Minister to England. His influence during reconstruction times was far reaching.

The life history of such an eminent Border-State man, who had so intimate a connection with the Union during the Civil War, is a welcome addition to the many books upon this period.

PEARSON, EDMUND L. The Secret Book.

Although published last spring, we fear not all librarians and booklovers have discovered this modest little volume. A treat awaits you, take it home some evening (of course no librarian buys books to read, it is so convenient to order through the library), and enjoy the genial Librarian's satire on things bookish, and people booky. At first you think you are deep in a library fairy story, then you conclude that these so-called adventures were dreams brought on no doubt by the "Welsh Rabbits" consumed at the Club. However, the papers read by the club members are deliciously humorous, and show up to ridicule many a pet library rule, and hereditary practice.

The members who read and discuss the papers presented at the weekly meetings are strangely familiar to us; Tilden and Lenox, who forever play picquet, Forbes, the bibliographer, Sayles, the librarian, Ryerson, genealogist, Crerar, the short story writer; Newberry, special writer for a newspaper; Bronson, Pratt — familiar names these to all librarians.

As to the secret book, we learn but little about that, yet our interest is held to the end by the happy vein in which the story is unfolded, with many digressions. The paper on immoral books is a capital conception, and the index — well, never did we laugh more heartily than when quite unexpectedly we turned to the end of the book.

BOSTWICK, ARTHUR E., editor.

Classics of American Librarianship is the title of a new series of reprints, of which vol. 1 has appeared, covering the relationship between the library and public schools.

The book is made up of twenty-four papers and addresses, each by a different author, and each introduced by an editorial paragraph telling briefly of the writer and his work.

Such a series of books should be welcome for reference use. The print is a bit too small for comfortable reading, and the book would have looked better in larger type.

PEDDIE, ROBERT ALEXANDER. The English Catalogue of Books, 1801-1836, by R. A. Peddie and Q. Waddington.

At last we have a work long needed, and it has been well done. Mr. Peddie's name, already familiar on other title-pages, is a guarantee of careful work. This volume carries the series of cumulated English Catalogues back to the beginning of the nineteenth century, and we hope its sale will be sufficient to reward the compilers for the immense amount of research which has been put into its compilation.

THWAITES, REUBEN G. A memorial address by Frederick J. Turner.

We wish to call to the attention of librarians this recent publication of The State Historical Society of Wisconsin. This dainty little book, with its fine portrait, will be welcomed by the host of friends which Dr. Thwaites had made throughout the world. In addition to the memorial address there is a full bibliography of Dr. Thwaites' writings.

HANNAH PACKARD JAMES, 1835-1903

Hannah Packard James, librarian of the Osterhout Free Library of Wilkes-Barré, Pennsylvania, was born in South Scituate, Massachusetts, on Sept. 5, 1835. She came of a long line of worthy ancestors. On her mother's side she was descended directly from John Alden. Her father, William James, was a man of sterling qualities, being entrusted with settling estates, and many other matters of trust requiring sound judgment and discretion devolved upon him. He represented also his district in the Massachusetts legislature. Of such an ancestry she was the natural outcome, and her life and work have testified truly to such an inheritance.

She was educated in the district school at South Scituate, and later in a private school formed at the instigation of herself and her schoolmates. She showed a fondness for books very early in her life, and she has been known to say that she could not remember when she was not making a catalog. At the age of nineteen she left her early home and went to Newton, Massachusetts. During the Civil War she was an active worker on the Sanitary Commission, giving her whole mind to such work as only a noble, sympathetic soul could do.

When the Newton Free Library was opened, in 1870, she began the work that won laurels for her in her own land and across the sea. She was made librarian of the library soon after it opened, and remained there 17 years. During those years she brought that library to a high standard. Her executive ability and keen intelligence very soon placed her at the height of her profession.

In 1882 she attended the American Library Association conference at Cincinnati, and that summer went to England, where she spent three months in study as well as in pleasure, for she had been a thorough student of architecture, especially of ecclesiastical architecture, and she expended the sum of $1000, given her by the trustees of the Newton Free Library, upon photographs which she selected there, giving much time and thought to the work. Miss James was present at the A. L. A. conference at Buffalo in 1883, and became a member of the Co-operation Committee. In 1886 she served on the Council.

In 1887 she received a call from the directors of the Osterhout Free Library of Wilkes-Barré, Pennsylvania, to become the librarian and to form a library there. She accepted the call, and in August of that year began the work, which at the time of her death in 1903 stood as a monument of great thought and noble work.

She was vice-president of the A. L. A. in 1896-97. From 1890 to 1903 she served on the Council of the A. L. A., attending many annual meetings, and keeping closely in touch with library work and workers. Her interest never waned, but was always on the increase. She gave herself untiringly to the cause of library work, as this held first place in her thoughts, and her own enthusiasm gave an impetus to others that could not fail to be lasting.

In 1897 she attended the International Conference of Librarians in London, and it seems but fitting to use the words of an earnest worker in the library cause, who said of her: "I remember with especial pleasure how proud all of us had reason to be of an American woman who could talk to English men and women on formal as well as personal occasions, and make so strong and delightful an impression upon our kinsfolk across the sea." She wrote a full account of the Conference, after her return, which was published in the "Library News-Letter," a monthly publication of books of the Osterhout Library.

On several occasions Miss James was called upon to lecture before the library schools, and at such times she appeared at her best, as pupils of the schools can testify, knowing as they did how much inspiration they obtained from the earnest and delightful manner with which she presented her subjects.

During the fifteen years of her diligent work in Wilkes-Barré she established an enviable record, for she brought the Library into the front ranks of library administration and left a well organized institution to her perpetual memory. There are many of her old friends and associates at the present day who could testify to her enthusiasm as a worker for the uplift and good of the general community, and especially through the medium of a free library. Her work was not finished when she was called from it; but it had become so much a part of herself that all those who were associated with her never ceased to feel the strong and helpful influence of her personality. The Osterhout Free Library must ever stand as her library, because of the solid foundation upon which it was built, and through her ability and keen interest it came to be an institution of usefulness, as well as an ornament to the city of the generous founder. Her work has lived after her, and those who have continued it and have followed her, still realize the strong and healthful influence of such a leader.

DEPARTMENT OF APPLIED LIBRARY ECONOMY.

I. A SYSTEM OF RECORDS FOR THE BINDING OF PERIODICALS.

II. USEFUL HINTS.

The Editor will welcome "hints" for this department, whether original or not. They will be new to many libraries though an old story to you. Will librarians also send word of anything on which they would like information concerning the practices of other libraries.

THE SYSTEM OF BOOK-BINDING RECORDS OF SERIAL PUBLICATIONS USED AT THE AMERICAN ACADEMY OF ARTS AND SCIENCES, BOSTON.

By Mrs. A. H. Holden, Assistant Librarian.

This system, when established, is very simple, and has proved very satisfactory both to the library and to the binder.

There are two cards for each publication, which are duplicates except in color, and I recommend a blue or salmon, with a white card rather than a yellow and a white because more easily distinguishable. The cards are 3 x 5 in. and the perpendicular lines are red as well as the two upper horizontal lines, the remaining horizontals being blue. On the upper red line is written the title of the society or periodical, as well as the shelf mark and at the end of the line is the initial of the purchasing fund, or G., if a gift, in order that the binder may know the appropriate book-plate. On the second red, which is a heavy or double, line is the title of the publication of the society. On this same line there is a small space for directions as to binding. (As we always employ the same binder, he has all our patterns and therefore needs few directions.)

In the first column is placed the date of sending to the binder; in the second, the number of volumes of the publication sent, next, on the same line, is given the volume number of the book sent. The next column is reserved for abbreviated remarks of the binder, and the last two columns are for the price of binding. One sending usually occupies one line of the card. On the reverse, the perpendicular lines are carried to the top and all the horizontals are blue, thus giving on the whole card space for thirty sendings. (See reproduction on page 93.)

These cards are kept in pairs alphabetically arranged and when a lot of books is to be sent to the binder, the cards of these volumes are taken out, properly filled in, and the colored cards, alphabetically arranged, are sent with the books. The white cards of these books sent are kept by themselves at the library, showing at once what volumes are being bound.

The binder places the price charged in the

The column for abbreviated remarks of binder, next the price column, enables him to explain any such variation; as "ex. pl." (extra plates), "ex. tk." (extra thick), etc.

On all new books this is put in by the high school boy who has learned to do all our lettering, using a binder's kit.

Lettering for Light-colored Books.

Those who have had trouble with the black ink smearing a little might, with the hot iron, take an impression on black carbon paper and transfer this to the book. Books so lettered over a year ago look the same as the day they were done.

Storage of Surplus Pamphlets and Magazine Files.

We recently installed at the Rhode Island State Library two convenient files for keeping surplus pamphlet material. One file consists of boxes arranged in continuous rows and tiered to the height of 7 feet. The boxes are made of inexpensive stock with the following dimensions: 20 in. wide; 10 in. deep; 10 in. high; with the hinged cover fitted with a counter-sunk hinge. The boxes cost, in lots of 500, 34c. each.

The other file consists of boxes for the convenient filing of various sized magazines with the interior dimensions 12 x 10 x 9 in. In usage these boxes contain the standard monthly magazines arranged in vertical fashion and the larger magazines, such as the Literary Digest and the Independent, flat filed. By reversing the box, folio volumes up to 12 in. can be placed on end, convenient of access. I have utilized these latter boxes in my private library for the storage of the various magazines and pamphlets that accumulate in a household.

Library and Moving Picture Theatre.

The Council Bluffs, (Ia.) Public Library has persuaded the six moving picture theatres to run a lantern slide free at each performance. These are some of the notices displayed. Slides are made at an expense of 50c each, and are changed each week.

Again a new year begins, and we wish our readers a happy and prosperous journey through it, and sincerely hope our many friends across the sea will speedily find a lasting and honorable peace.

In this issue will be found the "Annual Index to Library Reference Lists for 1914," which for many years has been a feature of our Bulletin.

The "Biography of Reuben A. Guild" will make the younger generation of librarians familiar with one who for many years was a leader in the profession, and who is perhaps best known to-day, outside of Providence, as the author of "The librarian's manual."

The second of our series of Reading Lists on foreigners in the United States, covers "Italians in the United States."

The first installment of the German list of terms used in the book and printing industry will be published in our next issue.

NEW USEFUL REFERENCE PUBLICATIONS

Glossary of Library Terms

Mr. Axel Moth's "Glossary of library terms" gives in handy form the synonyms in eight languages of library terms which are distinctly technical and which cannot ordinarily be found in the dictionaries. This pamphlet lists first the English terms, with a short definition, and then the equivalent in each of seven languages — Danish, Dutch, French, German, Italian, Spanish, Swedish. Then follows the list of terms alphabetically arranged by each language, with the English equivalent.

MOTH, A. A Glossary of Library Terms in eight languages with definitions in English. (Useful Reference Series, No. 10.) The Boston Book Co., 1915, 58 pages. 75c. special net, in paper. Delivered free on receipt of price.

A List of Series and Sequels for Juvenile Readers

This little pamphlet will be of great use wherever children are reading. There is a constant call for sequels to stories, or for another tale by the same author, or in the same series. This list allows space after each series, for the insertion of other titles, or notes. Every children's room will need copies, every small library, and every branch.

MODERN DRAMA AND OPERA

We shall issue volume 2 of this series of Reading lists and Bibliographies probably in March next. It will have an introduction by Dr. Archibald Henderson, the well-known author, who also contributes three of the bibliographies. Mr. F. K. Walter of the New York State Library has been indefatigable in bringing down to date those Reading Lists which appeared in the Drama portion of the first volume of Modern Drama and Opera, while Miss Edna Sander-son has provided new and up-to-date lists on the three opera composers. Mr. J. Howard Dice com-piles the five new opera lists. There will be thirteen bibliographies of Dramatists in this volume, eight of opera composers, besides the bringing down to date of the ten dramatists covered in the publication of 1911, which will now be called vol. 1. The addition of a short biographical sketch of each author will prove very useful. The price will not be less than $1.25 for this book, and advance orders will be taken at that price by The Boston Book Co.

DRAMA

Four plays of the Free Theatre, authorized translation by Barrett H. Clark, with a preface by Eugène Brieux is the title of a book just published. The plays are: "The Fossils," by François de Curel; "The Serenade," by Jean Jullien; "Françoise' Luck," by Georges de Porto-Riche; "The Dupe," by Georges Ancey. They are typical French plays of the "Théâtre Libre," an institution which from 1887 to 1894 had a remarkable influence on French drama. It is an attractive, well-printed book and will be an important addition to our published plays.

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

RICHARDSON, E. C. Biblical Libraries. A sketch of library history from 3400 B.C. to A.D. 150.

We have already had volumes from Dr. Richardson on "Medieval Libraries," and "Some Old Egyptian Librarians"; the present volume follows the author's "The Beginning of Libraries," and taking up library history where that volume left us, carries us over into the beginning of the Christian Era. Enumeration of the chapter headings will give an idea of the scope of the book: The Babylonian Period; the Patriarchal Period; The Egyptian Period; The Exodus; Palestine at the Conquest; Period of the Judges; The Persian Period; The Greek Period; New Testament times in Palestine; Roman Libraries in Apostolic Times; Post-apostolical Roman Library buildings; The Bible itself a Library.

There are thirty illustrations and plans, a bibliography, and an introduction "What is a library?"

Princeton University Press, 1914. $1.25 net.

TOASTERS' HANDBOOK. By Peggy Edmund and Harold Workman Williams.

While we have been enjoying this splendid collection of jokes and humorous sayings, and trying to decide whether Peggy and Harold were entitled to a review in this department, a second and revised edition has appeared. We notice that the book is arranged under subject headings—surely librarians did that—and the name of the publishers has come to suggest librarians as authors of their publications. Lastly, could any one but the librarian, blindly following rules which must be obeyed, put cross references into a volume otherwise such a happy book? No, unless Mr. Wilson himself helped. Anyhow the collection has gotten us nicely over several unpromising after-dinner moments, and we commend it to others.

The H. W. Wilson Co., 1914. $1.25 net.

CHIPMAN, CHARLES PHILLIPS. Books and Libraries, their makers and their use. This little primer has been issued by the librarian of Colby College for the use of students. It is intended as a starting point for the study at first hand of the arrangement and use of the college library. A series of little essays, easily understood, it is grouped in three parts. Part one, comprising about two-thirds of the book, covers the origin of printing and the development of the modern book from the early tablets and rolls. Part two shows how library books may be intelligently used, and describes Reference books, Periodicals and Documents. Part three, entitled, The Student's Library, covers "The reading habit, The choice of books, Buying books."

ROEBUCK, GEORGE ED. and THORNE, WILLIAM BENSON. A Primer of Library Practice. This book is really a new and enlarged edition of "A Primer of library practice for junior assistants," first issued in 1904. The book has been entirely rewritten and aims to provide an easy introduction to English library practice, of service not only to the young librarian, but also to the members of public library committees who are occasionally called upon to direct. The different chapters cover: The Library Movement; Organization, Administration, Cataloguing, Classification, Library extension work, Librarianship as a profession. There are five appendices, one of which is a select list of books on librarianship; all these books are English except the Cutter and Decimal classifications, and Dr. Richardson's "Classification; Theoretical and practical."

CRUNDEN, FREDERICK MORGAN. A memorial bibliography, edited by Arthur E. Bostwick. This beautifully printed little paper cover booklet has been issued by the St. Louis Public Library. The frontispiece is a fine photogravure of Mr. Crunden, and there is a facsimile letter of his to Melvil Dewey. The text is a series of tributes to his memory, followed by "An annotated list of Mr. Crunden's addresses and papers," covering 1879 to 1906 as the period in which he wrote. An index completes the book.

LIBRARY JOKES AND JOTTINGS. We are glad to record that this English book, under the American agency of the H. W. Wilson Co., has appeared in a more appropriate and dignified cover. (See review in Bulletin of Bibliography for July, 1914, p. 58.) 65c. net.

MAGAZINE NOTES.

The New Republic, "a journal of opinion" has appeared, vol. 1, no. 1, being dated Nov. 7, 1914. It is a weekly, of quarto size, printed in an easily read type, and, judged by its early issues, must be welcomed as an ably edited and forceful weekly. We are sorry that the editor has apparently forgotten that a journal of weight will be of more than transient value. May he receive sufficient protests from librarians at paging each number separately to induce him to page the numbers of the volume so it can be readily indexed. We shudder at the possibility that perhaps he thinks indexes no longer a part of a periodical of to-day. We can live without one in Cosmopolitan, but Edinburgh Review is setting a bad example to all by omitting it.

Social Hygiene, a quarterly published by the American Social Hygiene Association is a new periodical covering a very live subject, public health and morality. Vol. 1, no. 1 is dated Dec., 1914.

Blast, quarterly, London. This new quarto quarterly, of which we have seen number one (dated June 20, 1914) is one of the most spectacular periodicals ever issued. The name, printed in 3-inch black letters diagonally across the pink cover, proclaims the decadent or ultra cubistic tendency, which within is carried to almost insane extremes. In bill-board type that he who rides may read are lists of persons, countries and things which the editor, Wyndham Lewis, wishes to "blast" or curse, or bless. The illustrations and text combine to make the thing a "freak."

John Lane is the agent. Price 2 shillings 6 pence. We hoped the war would kill it, but we learn another issue is projected for the Spring.

New England Magazine. In our last issue we reported that June was the last issue, so far. We were in error; our subscription copy stopped coming, as did many another's. July-August (double number) September, October, November, 1914 have now been issued. (November came December 30.) The July-August (v. 51, no. 6) issue is called August inside the cover and a skip of 50 pages (201-249) is made evidently in expectation of a separate July issue (51, no. 5) which was abandoned.

Title and index of volume 51 is to be wired in as a part of September issue (52, no. 1) when the unsold newsstand copies come back, evidently, and so subscribers will (sometime?) get theirs, without the publisher having to print too large an edition. Astute chap, that is, if our surmise is correct!

Massachusetts Magazine. Supposedly dead, this quarterly has surprised its subscribers by appearing again. On January 1 we received an issue called Oct., 1914, (vol. 7, no. 4), the previous number being vol. 5, no. 2-4, (April-Oct., 1912). The intention is to issue the intermediate numbers soon, though they are not yet quite ready. Perhaps it's the climate that ails our New England periodicals.

Library Chat must be dead. In October last the publisher wrote us "Library Chat is not yet dead, but has been unconscious for several months and we are very much afraid it is breathing its last." We should worry!

Legal Bibliography will probably soon be resumed.

Readers' Guide to periodical literature Supplement, Nov., 1914, issue, covering February to November, was issued early in December. It includes for the first time English Review and Spectator, two timely English periodicals. The Reader's Guide Supplement now includes 8 English periodicals, and 59 American.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF LIBRARIANS AND BIBLIOGRAPHERS

V.

REUBEN ALDRIDGE GUILD, 1822-1899

BY HARRY LYMAN KOOPMAN

One of the best beloved figures of the past among American librarians toward the close of the nineteenth century was Dr. Reuben A. Guild, the author of the "Librarian's manual," and for fifty-two years connected with Brown University as its librarian or librarian-emeritus.

Reuben Aldridge Guild, son of Reuben and Olive Morse Guild, was born in West Dedham, Mass., May 4, 1822. After having enjoyed the advantages of excellent public and private schools, he began his preparation for college at Day's Academy, Wrentham, and continued it at the institution now known as the Worcester Academy, teaching during a part of the year. He entered Brown University in 1843, and was graduated four years later. During his college course he took charge of one of the society libraries, and when, in the fall after his graduation, he became the assistant of Prof. Charles C. Jewett, then librarian of Brown University, afterwards of the Smithsonian Institution and of the Boston Public Library, he was in some measure prepared for the duties he assumed. The following spring Professor Jewett was called to Washington, and his assistant succeeded to his office.

At the time when Dr. Guild became librarian, the library contained 20,000 volumes, and was stored in Manning Hall. In 1878 the new library of the university, the bequest of John Carter Brown, was formally opened with appropriate public services. This building, a fire-proof edifice, constructed and arranged after Dr. Guild's own ideals, embodied the best that was then known in library architecture. It was built to allow the students free access to the shelves, for Dr. Guild was a pioneer in the open-shelf movement for college libraries. At the time of its removal, the collection had increased to 48,000 volumes, and the rearrangement of the books, the classification and the cataloging showed the result of the librarian's 30 years' experience. At his retirement the number of books under his care had increased to 80,000. This was in 1893, when, in recognition of his long and devoted service, he was made librarian-emeritus.

Dr. Guild's conception of the duties of a librarian was a generous one. The routine work necessarily imposed on the head of a library who has only a single assistant, work performed so cheerfully that only those in a position to observe could know how much he accomplished, did not so fill his time as to prevent his forming lasting friendships with the students on the basis of mutual sympathy and ready helpfulness. He became the centre of a constantly widening circle of influence affecting the young men of two generations, and to a man of his genial, affectionate nature, such regard as the alumni of the college showed for him on the annual return of commencement was one of the greatest pleasures of his life.

Dr. Guild's services to his profession were many and great. He was present at the first convention of librarians, held in New York, in 1853, and his "Librarian's manual" was the only practical outcome of that meeting. He was one of the founders of the present American Library Association, and was a secretary of the first conference at Philadelphia in 1876. He was a frequent attendant upon the later conferences, at which his geniality won him many friends. In 1895, upon retiring from active membership in the association, he was made an honorary member. In 1877, he was one of the party of twenty-one American librarians who went to England to attend the first general convention of English librarians.

As a writer, Dr. Guild is best remembered at Brown University for his history of the formative period of the institution; but his chief contribution to the literature of his profession was his "Librarian's manual." This was published in New York by Charles B. Norton in 1858. It is a very handsome quarto of 304 pages, with some text illustrations, and is printed in antique fashion, with long s's and ligatured ct's. It consists of two parts, a treatise on bibliography, and sketches of public libraries at home and abroad. Ten large-paper copies also were printed. Besides this he published a large number of books and essays in periodicals, mostly in the department of history, particularly the "Life, times, and correspondence of James Manning and the early history of Brown University," 1864; the "History of Brown University with illustrative documents," 1867; and the "Early history of Brown University, 1756-1791," 1897.

He wrote also an "Account of the writings of Roger Williams," 1862; a "Biographical introduction to the writings of Roger Williams," 1866; "Footprints of Roger Williams," 1886; and he edited "The Letter of John Cotton and Roger Williams' reply," 1866; and Roger Williams' "Queries of highest consideration," 1867. In addition to these he wrote "Chaplain Smith and the Baptists; or Life, journals, letters, and addresses of Rev. Hezekiah Smith, D.D.," 1885; and he edited Staples' "Rhode Island in the Continental Congress," 1870. These comprise only the more important productions of a pen that was hardly ever idle.

Dr. Guild's services were not confined to the university, but he held important offices in the city government, being for seven years a member of the common council, and for fifteen years a member of the school committee, and he served also as president, secretary, or treasurer of various religious, educational, and philanthropic organizations. He was chairman of the committee of relief for the families of volunteers, through which about $400,000 was disbursed during the civil war, and he wrote the "Final report of the committee," 1866. He was an active member of the Baptist denomination, and devoted to the cause of religion the effective service of his voice and pen almost to the day of his death.

The degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him by Shurtleff College in 1874. He was a member of the American Antiquarian Society and of several other historical associations, and an honorary member of the L. A. U. K.

He married, in 1849, Jane Clifford, daughter of Deacon Samuel Hunt, of Providence, who still survives him. Six children were born to them, of whom four, three daughters and one son, are still living. He died in Providence, May 13, 1899. The accompanying portrait was engraved from a photograph taken in 1872, when he was fifty years old.

DEPARTMENT OF APPLIED LIBRARY ECONOMY.

I. LIBRARY ACCOUNTING.

II. USEFUL HINTS FOR LIBRARIANS.

The Editor will welcome "hints" for this department, whether original or not. They will be new to many libraries though an old story to you. Will librarians also send word of anything on which they would like information concerning the practices of other libraries.

LIBRARY ACCOUNTING AT LYNN, MASS.

The Lynn (Mass.) Public Library has used for many years a system of accounting which has proved so satisfactory in every way that we give a description of it here for the benefit of other libraries. The system was instituted by Mr. John C. Houghton, who for twenty-seven years was librarian. It has been approved and recommended by the State accountants who annually inspect the city's financial accounts.

The daily receipts for fines, lost books, etc., are kept under their respective headings, on dated slips, by the desk attendants. These slips, signed by the attendant in charge, are turned over next day to the librarian's office and the summarized amounts entered in the day book. Each week all receipts are turned over to the City Treasurer who gives a receipt for the same. At the end of each month, the weekly totals for fines, and all other receipts for the month, itemized, are entered in the ledger with the payments to the Treasurer to balance accounts, and at the end of the year, a summary under separate headings is entered to show entire receipts for the year.

All petty cash purchases are made by the librarian, who renders a bill each month to the city. Regular book-keeping accounts are kept with all dealers from whom large consignments of books on approval are received. The fund accounts are kept under the name of each donor.

For keeping the accounts within the city appropriation, two sheets (Library account and Building account) 17 inches wide, by 16 inches long, are tabulated showing in detail expenditures for various purposes. (See fig. 1.) These sheets are ruled in red into 14 columns of dollars and cents, with a space $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches wide at the left side where the dates of the monthly meetings of the board are given. In the columns opposite are shown expenditures for the month. Sheet 1 shows:—Books, periodicals, binding, printing, supplies, stationery, express, postage, sundries, insurance, salaries, extra help, — total by month. Under these headings are entered the separate bills, and at the end of the month (e.g. January), the total expense for each of the divisions is given, and a line ruled across the sheet. Then follows a similar tabulation for the next month (Feb.), each column being footed to give the total for two months, and at the extreme right under total by month appear the entries showing all money spent for that month.

Sheet 2 in exactly the same way shows the building account, the columns being headed:—Janitor's salary (monthly entry), extra help (weekly entry), supplies, gas and electricity, fuel, building and grounds, express, telephone, — total by month.

Thus all amounts expended show under classified headings. All bills are made in duplicate, one monthly set with a summary sheet (see fig. 2) containing all the statistics for the month is placed before the trustees for approval, and afterward the bills, with the regular city manifest in duplicate, are sent to the city treasurer. The duplicate set of bills, with the statistical sheets, is filed for reference at the library.

The Summary sheet on its left hand side has a line for each of the following records, each line beginning with the words "Number of volumes": — Delivered for home use, delivered for reference, daily average, sent for by mail, sent for by messenger, etc, worn out, withdrawn, lost and paid for, bound, purchased, presented, added by exchange, etc.

This sheet concludes with lines for number of magazines from reading rooms, number of pamphlets added, number of new book-takers, Library was open days.

On the back of this summary sheet are cash book rulings, Dr. and Cr.

USEFUL HINTS FOR LIBRARIANS.Inexpensive Newspaper Filing Cases.

The Queens Borough Public Library has made newspaper filing cases from the regular cellular folding paper boxes, 24 x 24 x 13 inches. These are practically two covers with collapsible sides. The sides have been fastened to the bottom cover all round and to the top cover, on three sides with McGill fasteners. The fourth side of the box was made into a drop front by cutting down each edge to the top of the bottom cover, and hinged by cutting through parallel with the top edge of bottom cover and pasting on a strip of vellum de luxe, which was also used to bind the edges of the drop front. The front of the top cover was hinged in the same way, so it is only necessary to lift it up and the front falls down. As the top never has to be lifted, shelf space is saved, and the box never has to be moved, a saving in wear.

List of additions at the Loan Desk.

For medium and small libraries a typewritten classified list of new additions placed in loose leaf binder on the Loan Desk and kept absolutely up-to-date will greatly please Library patrons and largely satisfy their demand for a printed list of new books.

The No. 8 Rotary Neostyle, costing about $40.00, will save medium sized public libraries more than one-third of their annual printing bill.

Shelves for tall thin books.

In children's rooms there are always many tall, thin picture books which are continually falling down and rapidly wearing out. A carpenter can easily place thin partitions between the shelves five inches apart which will easily maintain order and save wear and tear on the books. C. E. Rush, St. Joseph.

Special Short Book Lists.

The Kansas City (Mo.) Public Library issues "Special library lists" 6 x 3 $\frac{3}{8}$ in., of which the following are some of the titles: "Books for opera lovers," "Vegetables and flowers," "Automobiles," "Modern Drama." The State Normal School, Milwaukee, Wis., has begun the issue of a series of lists on thick paper 6 x 3 $\frac{1}{4}$ inches. These are entitled "Interesting books for teachers." Number 1 is "Stories and story telling." Number 2 (a 4-page list), "Picture study," giving in addition to books a list of dealers.

Parking Space for Automobiles.

In the plans for the new library building now being erected at Waltham, Mass., it may be of interest that parking space for automobiles is provided in the rear of the building. Our city ordinance forbids leaving automobiles standing on the streets very long, — a rule doubtless in force in most other cities. Further, the library lot faces three streets, rendering easy this plan for parking space. Since the magazine and reference departments have windows facing the auto space, it will be easy for readers who wish to stay in the library for any length of time to keep an eye on their cars just outside, should they feel that they were unsafe. O. C. Davis, Librarian.

Special Book Dummy.

The Cleveland Public Library uses a special book dummy for books for which reserve postal orders are filed. It is pine board cut 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 7 inches, and $\frac{7}{8}$ inches thick. Erasable paper is tacked to edge with brass headed tacks, permitting use repeatedly for different titles.

Call slip book-marks.

The Des Moines Public Library prints lists of interesting books on colored paper slips, 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches, for the use of its patrons.

A similar idea is found in Springfield, Mass., where the Library issues little slips 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 2 inches, printed on both sides. A sample before us is entitled "Helps for Sunday School teachers recently added to the City Library, 1914."

We give below one of these lists:

THE IRRITATION OF THE LOOSE TITLE PAGE AND INDEX.

By Frederick W. Faxon

Until the early nineties nearly all publishers of periodicals considered it necessary, as a part of their magazines, to supply a title page and index when each volume was completed, and to attach these to the final issue, or at least to shut them into the number. It was the custom in those days for publishers to offer for sale bound volumes of their periodicals, a practice which presupposes a demand by the public for such books. Then as the cheaper periodicals entered the field and our population moved from houses to apartments, the demand for bound volumes of popular magazines, ceased, the call for publishers cases in which to bind them ceased, the random reading of many periodicals took the place of the practice of habitual reading of a few standard magazines and private owners no longer kept up the files, or bound them.

Public libraries are now almost the only subscribers binding popular periodicals for reference use. Publishers finding that few of their readers made any use of the title and index began one after the other to omit these from the magazines and to print a comparatively small number for such subscribers as requested them, a practice which sooner or later leads to the premature exhaustion of the supply. Many librarians have tried to induce the magazine publishers to send these loose indexes to all library subscribers without a special request each time, but no such rule seems likely to be made; we do not know of even one instance where this is now done. Many binders have made it a practice to request a supply of indexes, so as to be ready to bind when the numbers are received. A sort of wholesale demand thus springing up, which more quickly exhausts the available edition, thereby causing additional annoyance to subscribers.

A title page and a brief two or three-page index or contents, once in six months, would surely not offend those readers who do not need it, and such a four-page insert put in place of four pages of text, the weight of the magazine would not be increased in the mails, the index would always be at hand when a volume was to be bound, or used, and the publishers would save not only the expense of four pages of printed matter, but also the cost of wrapping and stamping the indexes, which, when separate, have not the privilege of the second-class one cent a pound rate. Suppose 3,000 libraries ask for a title and index; the expense of postage and wrapping on two indexes a year will be upwards of $70.00, to which under the present practice must be added the printing. We have submitted this plan to several publishers and have received such replies as: "The editor of the department which comes at the end of our magazine is constantly asking for extra pages, and surely would not submit to four pages being taken away from him." "The advertising page next reading matter brings us many dollars more than other pages, and this revenue would be lost were the index inserted." "The four pages of text omitted once or twice a year might, if present, sell many hundred more numbers of the magazine." It is not necessary to have the index follow the text, nor need the department at the end be made to suffer the total loss of space. But the magazines won't see the serious readers' or the librarians' point of view, and we must make the best of things as they are. The Boston Book Company has issued a little sixteen-page pamphlet "Periodicals which supply title and index only on request," compiled by Miss G. P. Hill of the New York Public Library. This will serve as a help. Some libraries have specially printed request post-cards which need only the filling in of name of magazine (see Bulletin of Bibliography, Jan., 1914, vol. 8, page 5). If the request is not made promptly there is danger of the supply of indexes being exhausted, while in many cases the index is not ready immediately on the completion of the volume, and so one or two requests go unheeded, or bring replies that the index will be sent when ready. But often it does not come, and usually, when copies for several subscriptions are solicited, one only will be received, and frequently this one being sent without card-board, arrives too crumpled or torn to be of use.

The Enoch Pratt Library of Baltimore, a subscriber to sixteen copies of Current Opinion, writes us that application was made for titles and indexes to vol. 55 (July-Dec., 1913) on Jan. 25, Mar. 9, May 6, May 21, June 24, Aug. 12 and Oct. 7, 1914. Five copies had been received on May 6, and on Oct. 22 when eleven copies were still due, a card was received from the publishers stating that the "supply is entirely out of stock." We submitted this complaint to the circulation manager, who writes us that after an exhaustive inquiry he finds a record of only three complaints from the library in question, and states that indexes were mailed each time complaint was made. He is "at loss to know why they were not properly received." As to the early exhausting of the supply, he states that many bulk orders from binders were received, twenty-five copies being the favorite demand. He sends us for proof three cards from one binder asking for 25, and 25 and 50 copies after having received 25 when the index was first issued. To this address he sent 45 copies in all, a seemingly liberal supply it would seem, though not all asked for. He concludes his letter to us as follows: "It has been a good thing to have this correspondence with you, because it has resulted in largely increasing our orders for indexes, and will assure all requests in the future being filled. We would like to see you take this matter up for discussion in the Bulletin of Bibliography. We believe that publishers, generally, would prefer that subscribers, particularly libraries, request their indexes to be sent direct to them and they themselves supply them to the binders."

We have written to the bindery which had the supply and asked if we could buy any copies, and have a reply that sufficient copies for their actual binding orders in hand were not received. The International Studio within the past year has run short of titles and indexes to vols. 47 and 51, a serious loss, as the indexes to this valuable art periodical are very well done, and cover the volumes much more minutely than the general periodical indexes, which refer only to the principal articles.

Another form of irritation appears in the following announcement which we have received at least three times since July 1, in response to our requests for a title and index to National Geographic Magazine for volume 25, Jan.-June, 1914.

"I would inform you that this index has not yet been published. It has not yet been definitely decided whether this index will be published now or at the end of the year, owing to the fact that many of our members would rather wait until all twelve issues have been received and have both volumes bound at the same time."

We had taken some measure of credit to ourselves, because after our repeated requests, this publisher decided to make two volumes instead of one a year. One book with twelve numbers was impossible to use without a derrick. Now, though the change has been made, libraries are held up six or seven months in the binding of one of their most useful magazines.

In Public Libraries for October last (p. 340) under the heading "British Ways," is a letter from an "American librarian," giving the rather curt reply made to his request to an English publisher for a title and index to a volume for which his library had paid. He was told that "in common with many of your fellow-countrymen . . . you appear to be laboring under the delusion that we supply the . . . gratis. Such is not the case." (Why does Public Libraries omit the name? Such information ought to be given.) Last month Cosmopolitan, Hearst's Magazine, and Good Housekeeping each issued a mimeographed reply to our requests reading as follows:

"We are in receipt of your order for . . . copies of the Index for volume . . . of . . . magazine. Inasmuch as the free distribution of the indexes in past has not brought in any income, direct or indirect, to offset the relatively heavy expense of producing them, we now have a fixed charge of 15c. a copy to cover cost of compiling, manufacturing and distributing. We shall be glad indeed to send you the index you request upon receipt of your remittance."

Thus "American Librarian" will see that that even some of his home periodicals follow British ways. We wrote to the publisher of the three magazines named above for a statement of his position, and he writes as follows:

"Your letter has come to hand. Your understanding that we will not issue any further titles and indexes is correct. This applies to all the publications listed at the head of this letter-sheet [Cosmopolitan, Good Housekeeping, Hearst's, Harper's Bazar, Motor Boating, Motor].

"Please understand that no indexes whatever will be prepared and therefore neither subscribers nor the trade will be supplied with them. We give below a list of the indexes we now have on hand, and which we can supply at the moment of writing [Dec. 23, 1914]. We can give no guarantee, however, how long the supply will last, and therefore it is a question in our minds as to whether or not it will be worth while publishing this information. These indexes, while they last, can be supplied at the rate of 15c. per copy. Cosmopolitan, vols. 50 to 57 inclusive; Good Housekeeping, vols. 53 to 55, 57 to 59; Hearst's Magazine, vols. 22 to 26.

Luckily librarians will not be especially bothered by this new decision, except in the case of Good Housekeeping which seems to us too good a periodical not to be indexed. We give these facts to indicate the tendency with popular periodicals, first to issue indexes loose in small editions, free for the asking while they lasted, and now to charge for them, or to give up the issue as an unnecessary expense. The English Review for Dec., 1912, printed a form of order on the top of one of the advertising pages, the receipt of which blank by the publisher would entitle to a copy of the title and index of vol. 12. This seemed a fine plan, and would eliminate all unjust demands, such as binders' requests for copies in advance of actual need. We sent two of the blanks back within four months of the date of issue, only to receive word that the supply of titles and indexes had been exhausted. Alas!

"The apparently total lack of appreciation or demand for the title pages and indexes has caused us to discontinue supplying these. A useless expense." Vol. 6 is the last provided with an index.

The Boston Book Company, as a special collector of periodicals in order to make up sets for libraries, will endeavor to keep its list of "periodicals issuing titles and indexes only on request" up to date and to supplement it with a list of "periodicals which issue no title and index."

The irritation will still remain, and the problem will still be with us for all future time, as only two solutions are possible, the inclusion of the title and index as a part of some issue of the periodical, or its total abolition. It is a much larger question than whether the library or the binder should ask for it, for future demands for back files for libraries require the use of second-hand issues, as many numbers soon are out of print. Nearly any odd number may sooner or later be found second-hand, but once a title and index is out of print, all hope of ever securing it vanishes, unless it was originally sent out as a part of some issue of the periodical. We discover sorrowfully that the age of serious magazine reading and the consequent preservation of consecutive files of periodicals outside of public libraries and universities has passed. The available supply for future library wants must come therefore from the titleless and indexless files of owners who bought and read the latest issue for amusement, and who never knew that a magazine was supposed to make up into volumes, who would not recognize a title page if perchance they met one.

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS OF THE LIBRARY PRESS

Fourth Quarter, 1914

A glance at the titles of the principal articles appearing in the library periodicals from month to month will help the busy librarian to keep in touch with library progress.

In some cases we elaborate the title slightly, to give a better understanding of the subject covered by the article. We hope to include the other library periodicals of Europe in our later issues.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

We are glad to show this month so characteristic a likeness of Mr. Whitney, and we are especially fortunate in having for his biographer Mr. Lindsay Swift, who, for so many years has served on the staff of the Boston Public Library as editor of its publications, and who has thus known Mr. Whitney as librarian, and fellow worker.

Our reading list on Masfield we believe will be found timely and useful.

Of Miss Firkins' lists on foreigners in the United States, we publish that on Scandinavians in this issue.

Mr. Moth's list of German book terms is again held over, but we are planning to issue all his lists in book form shortly, also giving under the English form, the synonyms in the different languages. This book will be practically volume 2 of Mr. Walter's "Abbreviations and Technical Terms used in Bibliographies," which we published as "useful reference series, number 5."

A. L. A. CALIFORNIA TRIP

At this time all are interested in California, its two expositions, and the A. L. A. Conference at Berkeley, June 3 to 9. The trip planned, personally conducted by the A. L. A. committee this time, is an attractive one, and considering what it includes is cheaper than could be had with any of the excursion companies.

Let everyone and his friend plan to go.

The A. L. A. Bulletin for March gives full information, also a list of books on California, and on the scenic places along the routes of travel. To this list we should surely add our librarian friend's new book, "Among the Canadian Alps," by Lawrence J. Burpee (see notice under "New books by librarians" below).

Another book of which special mention should be made is Hiram Martin Chittenden's "The Yellowstone National Park, historical and descriptive," of which a new and enlarged edition has just been published by the Stewart & Kidd Co., Cincinnati ($1.75 net). The author, from his intimate knowledge of this wonderful park, through years spent there in charge of the road-making, gives us a full account of all the features — geysers, springs, fauna, flora, forests, geology, climate. He also gives much space to tours of the park, and to its early history, and exploration.

A NORMAL SCHOOL TEXT-BOOK

"Instruction in the use of books and libraries," by Miss Lucy E. Fay, and Miss Anne T. Eaton of the library of the University of Tennessee, will be published May 1. This work is designed to be a text-book for Normal schools and colleges, and appears at an opportune time, when so many schools and libraries are taking up instruction in the use of books. The work, which comprises 440 pages, with 18 illustrations, and over 50 reproductions of catalogue cards and book records, is based on the authors' experience in giving courses in library methods, for teachers in the Summer school of the South, at Knoxville, Tenn. Here is available a text-book that gives in comprehensive, yet compact form, practical lessons on the use of books. It covers Children's Literature and such technical library subjects as teachers who have charge of school libraries will need. The book will do away with the use of much pamphlet and mimeographed material, hitherto very necessary in library courses for teachers, thereby saving much time and labor on the part of both teachers and students.

This text will be useful where apprentice classes are conducted. School superintendents, principals and teachers will need it. Every library will find it most helpful in suggestion in connection with work with children and schools.

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

BURPEE, LAWRENCE J. Among the Canadian Alps.

In this royal octavo, beautifully printed volume, Mr. Burpee has given all mountain lovers a treat. There are four full-page colored illustrations, and forty-five reproductions from photographs. It is evident that the author knows at first hand the Canadian Rockies and National Parks of Canada. In the first chapter, "The lure of the mountains," he gives a sketch of the history of this mountain region, its early exploration and how best to visit it.

The publication is most timely for librarians in view of the coming Pacific coast trip of the A. L. A., and the projected return through these wonderful American Alps. "The Incomparable Lake Louise" and "In and about Banff," are especially apropos.

The book, besides being an eloquent description of the region by an enthusiast, will well serve as a guide. It has five maps, covering the various parks. A bibliography closes the volume.

John Lane Co., New York. $3.00 net.

HEWINS, CAROLINE M. Books for boys and girls, a selected list.

The third edition revised of this well-known compilation has been issued by the A. L. A. as one of its annotated lists. It comprises 112 pages, including a preface of 16 pages which will be found a splendid essay on the child and the book. First published in 1882, and a second edition some ten years ago, this new compilation may well be termed a new list, for many of the old favorites are no longer available, and many new subjects have of late years become of interest to children.

Miss Hewins has been for many years an authority in this field, and it is pleasant that now others than her Hartford children may have the benefit of her guidance.

A. L. A. Publishing Board, Chicago, 1915. 20 c.

POWER, EFFIE L., ed. Lists of Stories and Programs for Story Hours.

A handy little pamphlet of 110 pages has just appeared with the above title. A graded list of stories — for children of three or four, five or six, for older children, for reading aloud. Then there are suggestions for story-hours, a list of books about story-telling, a title index to stories listed and at the end of the pamphlet a list of books referred to, with publisher and price of each. This compilation is by the Children's Department, St. Louis Public Library, and was first printed in the August, 1914, Bulletin of that library. We wish the chapter headings had been carried at the tops of the pages, instead of the general title, "Programs for story hours," which has been used throughout the booklet.

H. W. Wilson Co., White Plains, N. Y. 20 c. 10 copies, $1.25.

QUIGLEY, MARGERY CLOSEY. Index to Kindergarten Songs, including Singing Games and Folk Songs.

This Index, covering 286 pages, and nearly ten thousand entries, should prove the kindergartner's "Bible." It covers sixty-three collections, and is practically a title-a-line index in one alphabet with cross-references. Entries are by composer, first line, title, and author of the words "when he is at all important."

Evidently a carefully compiled list, which reflects much credit on the author, and her assistants — members of the staff of the St. Louis Public Library.

A. L. A. Publishing Board, 1914. Cloth. $1.50.

STEVENSON, BURTON E. Little Comrade.

A description of the early days of the great war now raging in Europe is given us in this latest book from Mr. Stevenson's pen. In the form of a story, with a beautiful French girl as heroine, we are taken through the thrilling and horrible scenes of early August on the Belgian frontier. Though distinctly anti-German throughout, the book seems a true portrayal of those terrible days when Germans overthrew the Belgian army. The author seems well acquainted with the topography of the country in which the scenes of the story are laid. He gives us, amid the horrors of war, a pretty love-story with an American surgeon as hero.

Henry Holt, New York. $1.20 net.

WIDDEMER, MARGARET. The Rose Garden Husband.

A novel by a librarian, with a library assistant heroine has appeared. "Liberry Teacher," as her children called her at story-hour time, is a lovable girl of twenty-five who is "discovered" by a pleasant old couple, and led into a marriage, strange though not at first romantic. It is a pleasant little book, and might almost be called a fairy story. The author's use of English is individual and happy and quite different from the ordinary novel; the touch of the library assistant's point of view running through the book is true to life. Who but a library girl, on seeing the two pretty children of her old-time classmate, would think: "They were the kind that every girl wishes she could have a set like." Miss Widdemer hitherto favorably known for her poems, gives promise in this her first novel, of becoming one of our foremost writers of fiction. We predict a large sale as the book becomes known.

We commend this little story to all who wish to spend a pleasant couple of hours in reading.

MAGAZINE NOTES

Information, a digest of current events, new series vol. 1 no. 1, Feb., 1915. This is the successor of Index to Dates, and will be published monthly by the R. R. Bowker Co. of New York City. Terms: Monthly, with quarterly numbers, $4.00; without quarterlies, $3.00. Quarterly numbers only $2 per annum.

This initial number gives a good idea of the service intended to be rendered. A sort of "continuous encyclopedia bringing up to date the ordinary reference books" is the plan of publication, and the periodical should find active use in every reference room.

The Musical Quarterly. This new periodical of which No. 1 is dated January, 1915, is a welcome publication. Not since Music died in 1902 have we had a really good periodical covering the literature of music. With O. G. Sonneck as editor and G. Schirmer publisher, we may expect a quarterly worthy of its subject. Among the ten articles which make up the first issue are, "Edward MacDowell as I Knew Him," by T. P. Currier; "Some Aspects of Modern Music," by W. H. Hadow; "Is Musical Reservation Justifiable?" by Francis Toye. The price is $3.00 a year; 75c. a copy.

The New York Times Current History, The European War, a monthly magazine, $3.00 a year, 25c. a number. This is octavo, standard size. (We almost hesitate to call it standard any more, so many periodicals are changing to the quarto and folio.) It is beautifully illustrated with rotogravure portraits, and has also maps and a selection of the notable cartoons from leading publications in the countries at war. The text, and there are 1,228 pages in fine type in volume 1 (the first six issues), is really the news history, and the documents of the war supplied not only for immediate availability but in a permanent form. Upon the conclusion of the war this Current History will treat the greater affairs of the world, including the vast questions arising out of the peace settlements.

No. 1 was issued Dec. 12, 1914, and the first four numbers were semi-monthly; since then it has become a monthly.

School and Society is the title of a new weekly, edited by J. McKeen Cattell, and published by the Science Press. Vol. 1 no. 1 is January 2, 1915, quarto size, 36 pages. $3.00 a year, 10c. a copy. This journal "will emphasize the relations of education to the social order, scientific research in education and its applications, freedom of discussion, and reports and news of events of educational interest." No weekly journal of this character has hitherto existed in any country. The early issues give promise of a standard and well-edited periodical which all libraries should help support by subscription. Number one opens with articles by Charles W. Eliot and G. Stanley Hall.

The World's Advance is a new title in magazinedom, and April, 1915, is the initial number. Oh, no, not a new magazine, it is vol. 30, number 4; it was Modern Mechanics recently, and back of that — but let it tell its own story of absorptions, marriages, serial-canibalism or whatever you may call its checkered life hitherto. "The World's Advance, formerly Modern Mechanics, with which is combined Popular Electricity and the World's Advance, Modern Electrics and Mechanics, Electrician and Mechanic, is the outgrowth of a number of consolidated magazines. First was Popular Electrician founded in Lynn, Mass., in 1890, taken over later by Electrician and Mechanic, Boston. This absorbed Amateur Work, and Building Craft and in January, 1914, was itself merged in Modern Electrics of New York, and called Modern Electrics and Mechanics. Then Popular Electricity and the World's Advance of Chicago was combined with it under the name of Popular Electricity and Modern Mechanics. This name being too long Modern Mechanics was decided upon for the new name, but this being found liable to confusion with a similar periodical [called Popular Mechanics], the name World's Advance was adopted." Some pedigree! But it's now a capital magazine for those of a mechanical turn of mind, and is profusely illustrated.

New England Magazine. May we add a word about our neighbor? Dec. 1914 was vol. 52 no. 4 and appeared Feb. 15, 1915. March 1915 is vol. 52 no. 5, and was sent out to subscribers March 30. "This is done by the permission of the U. S. Post Office Department to correct a long standing discrepancy in date of issue. All subscriptions will be carried forward, each subscriber receiving twelve issues." Oh, joy!

Hearst's Magazine for March, 1915, appears in a large quarto form, instead of the octavo to which we had become accustomed. March is vol. 27 no. 3. Of course the question of how to bind a volume with two small numbers and heaven knows how many big ones still to come does not concern the publisher. He won't even publish a title and index any more; yet Hearst's does have a fine array of talent, the best both in reading matter and illustrations.

McClure's Magazine, for years one of the better class of the cheaper-price monthlies, shows of late unmistakable signs of bidding for circulation after the methods of Cosmopolitan. The May issue, vol. 45 no. 1, is folio size, 13½ x 10½ inches, thus joining with Hearst's, Metropolitan and others to gain more space for display advertising, and to lessen expense of manufacture. That McClure's has waited to make the change with the beginning of a new volume is a refreshing fact — indicating that at least one publisher still lives who really feels he won't be ashamed to see his magazine in bound form hereafter. "Praise be!" as Mr. Dooley would say, and let us hope the new size will justify by its contents both indexing and preservation. The new price will be $1.00 a year, 10 cents a copy.

American City. Beginning with the issue of September, 1914, a Town and Country edition has been issued monthly as well as the regular edition. Both editions may be had by paying an extra dollar a year. Both are indexed in the Readers' Guide. About half of each issue is common to both, the other half is different. Here is a binding problem of a new sort for the library preserving both editions, and the Town and Country edition begins with vol. 11 no. 3.

Periodicals temporarily discontinued on account of the European war. A list of sixty-two French technical and economic periodicals which have suspended publication, showing last number issued, is published in Special Libraries for January, 1915. The list is prepared by G. E. Stechert & Co.

Recommendations of periodicals should be dated. In this time when magazines are changing so rapidly in character and in physical make-up, addresses on the subject should, when printed, have a date attached. In Public Libraries for March, 1915, page 108, in a list of magazines recommended for subscription and subsequent binding, we note World To-Day included. This name ceased to be used in April, 1912. Is the author using notes made three years ago, or has his address been waiting since 1912 for publication?

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF LIBRARIANS AND BIBLIOGRAPHERS

VI.

JAMES LYMAN WHITNEY, M.A. (1835-1910)

BY LINDSAY SWIFT

Mr. Whitney was in the service of the Boston Public Library for forty-one years lacking about sixty days. He entered the catalogue department with the title of "Deputy" on November 7, 1869, and was made its chief in 1874, remaining in that position until March 31, 1899. He then, on the resignation of Dr. Herbert Putnam who went to the Library of Congress, was appointed Acting Librarian, March 31, 1899, and Librarian, December 22 of the same year. On February 1, 1903, he resigned the office of Librarian, and filled the position of Chief of the Department of Documents and Statistics from that date until his death on September 25, 1910. Such is the brief record of the later years of a life, not eventful, but full to the brim of the sort of work he best liked to do. During all these years he seldom permitted himself any long absence from his tasks; his one break away from routine was a trip to England with the American Library Association in 1897, when he enjoyed himself like a boy out of school.

He was born in Northampton, Massachusetts, on November 28, 1835, and was nearly seventy-five years old at the time of his death. His schooling was had at Mount Pleasant, Amherst.

In 1856 he was graduated from Yale College, and during the following year was Berkeley Scholar of the House, a distinction conferred on those who pass the best examination in the classics. While in college he began to show the bent of his career by evincing a fondness for statistical matters and a practical knowledge of books. For two years he was editor of the Yale Banner, for a year was assistant librarian, and for another year librarian of the Brothers in Unity Library, then possessing some twelve thousand volumes. He was playfully called "Big Head, Little Whit," by his college mates, for he had the splendid cerebral development characteristic of the remarkable Whitney family. It is not amiss here to call attention to the record of some of the sons of Josiah Dwight Whitney, himself a noteworthy man, as follows: Josiah Dwight Whitney (Yale, 1839), Sturgis-Hooper Professor of Geology at Harvard, and Chief of the important Geological Survey of California; William Dwight Whitney (Williams, 1845), Professor of the Sanskrit Language and Literature and Comparative Philology at Yale, and Editor-in-Chief of the great Century Dictionary; Henry Mitchell Whitney (Yale, 1864), Professor of Rhetoric and English Literature at Beloit College, and later Librarian at Branford, Connecticut. Nor were the daughters of this eminent stock behind their brothers in cultivation and energy.

Surely this is a record of which Yale University and American scholarship have some right to be proud.

After leaving New Haven, Whitney entered a book-publishing house in New York City, and in 1858 began business as a book-seller in Springfield, Massachusetts. He retained an interest in this business for some years. In 1868 he was made Assistant Librarian of the Cincinnati Public Library, and held this position until he entered the service of the Boston Public Library.

The activities outside of library work in the later part of his life were few, but he discharged the duties of a good citizen wherever he lived. While a resident of Concord, Massachusetts, a place of which he was very fond and where he had many friends, he served from 1879 to 1887 (for seven years) as Chairman of the School Board and as Secretary of the Committee of the Public Library. He was a member of the Club of Odd Volumes and of the Bostonian Society, and was chairman of the book committee of the latter society. He helped found the now famous American Library Association in 1876, and remained a member until his death, having served for a term as treasurer and then as head of the finance committee. He was also a member of the American Antiquarian Society and of the Colonial Society of Massachusetts.

His chief bibliographical work, by which he will be best remembered, is the "Catalogue of the Spanish Library and of the Portuguese books bequeathed by George Ticknor to the Boston Public Library." Mr. Whitney began his work of preparing the catalogue of this famous collection after the death in October, 1874, of Mr. William A. Wheeler, who had begun it. The volume was issued in 1879, and to this day has commanded the interest and praise of scholars, enriched as it was by the notes of Mr. Ticknor himself, of Don Pascual de Gayangos, President of the Real Academia Española, and of Professor William I. Knapp, Professor at Yale, as well as by the careful learning of the compiler himself. Mr. Whitney was also the author or compiler of the following works: A Modern Proteus; or a list of books published under more than one title (1884); Catalogue of the Library of J. Montgomery Sears, including the poetical library of Ferdinand Freiligrath

(1882); Handbook for readers of the Boston Public Library, 9th edition (1890); Catalogue of the bibliographies of special subjects in the Boston Public Library (1890); Accents (Library Journal, vol. 14, pp. 259-261, 1889); Catalogue of town libraries (Library Journal, vol. 4, pp. 268-275, 1879); Consideration as to a printed catalogue in book form for the Public Library of the City of Boston (Annual Report of the Trustees, 1898-99); Incidents in the history of the Boston Public Library (Proceedings of the American Library Association, 1902); Justin Winsor (Proceedings of the American Antiquarian Society, April 27, 1898); The literature of the nineteenth of April, 1775-1875 (Proceedings at the centennial celebration of Concord fight, 1875); Catalogue of the illustrations and plans of library buildings in the Boston Public Library (Library Journal, vol. 11, Oct., 1886; or Bulletin of the Boston Public Library, no. 72, 1886); Appendix to same (Bulletin of Boston Public Library, no. 77, 1888); a second enlarged edition of same entitled, "Index to the pictures and plans of library buildings" (monthly bulletin of the Boston Public Library, August, 1899). His last piece of writing was his "Reminiscences of an old librarian" (Library Journal, December, 1909) which appeared after the dinner given in his honor on the completion of the fortieth year of his service at the Boston Public Library. This dinner was in the Hotel Vendome, on the evening of November 8, 1909, and was attended by a large number of his colleagues and by the president of the trustees. A loving cup was presented to Mr. Whitney on this occasion and affectionate tributes were paid to his modest and unassuming worth. Greater, perhaps, than all published evidences of his scholarly activity, is the impersonal labor that he bestowed on the monumental Card Catalogue of the Boston Library. Since his day, important changes have been made, to the marked improvement of this catalogue, but it is due to Mr. Whitney's memory to say that during the crucial period of its development and growth his judgment was sound and far-sighted and his patience boundless. The foundations on which he built were sure, and will remain.

James Lyman Whitney was not a great librarian; he did not aspire to be or deceive himself into thinking that he was. His one ambition seems to have been to show himself worthy to be ranked with the other members of a most remarkable family. A family group taken about the old elm which stood on the Whitney place, formerly the home of the first and greatest Jonathan Edwards, reveals a New England group of character and power, and our Whitney well deserved his position in it. He was singularly gentle and unpretentious, and his quiet humor undoubtedly revealed to him how much bluff there is after all in the word "success."

As librarian of a great institution, he did not put on any "side," but went on diligently as before, and happiest when busy. To him a library meant books and then more books, well chosen, well catalogued and available. He was not an enthusiast about converting his profession into a subsidiary branch of settlement work. A hard worker himself, he found quite enough demand on his energies in perfecting a great collection of literature on simple and normal lines. The three-ringed circus library of to-day made slight appeal to his excellent intelligence, and his zeal was small for photograph collections, music records and "amateur-night" lecture courses—all now accepted excrescences of progressive library work. I do not mean that he set his face against such things, but his genial countenance wore an ironic smile over most bibliothecal vaudeville, because he was certain that his chosen path was the harder, and called for more intelligence and devotion than did these easily conceived and easily performed novelties. He was a book man and not a showman, and his reputation must rest on drudging toil well performed with an almost pathetic modesty.

In large institutions there is commonly no little indifference on the part of one individual toward another. The various members of a great force of workers enter the service, marry, have children, grow richer or poorer, get older every day and then die, without exciting much interest on the part of their colleagues. In marked contrast to this callous indifference to one's fellow-workers, Mr. Whitney cherished an actual affection for each and all of them. After his death it was found that he had left a small sum to practically every one who had served with or under him. The total of these bequests among so large a body of employes amounted to a considerable sum. He was too shy a man to express feelings of this sort, and so he took this quaint and kindly way of telling his colleagues that he loved them all. He left a sum of money to the library to carry on certain undertakings that he had well begun; he also left a bequest to his beloved Yale. No college in the land ever had a more loyal son, yet no one ever heard Mr. Whitney utter a word in disparagement of any other man's alma mater.

He was a man of peace, of singular purity of life and character, a bibliographer of wide attainments—and those who knew him best have cause to regret the inevitable disappearance of his type from the ranks of book men.

DEPARTMENT OF APPLIED LIBRARY ECONOMY.

I. COLORED BAND CLASSIFICATION.

II. USEFUL HINTS FOR LIBRARIANS.

The Editor will welcome "hints" for this department, whether original or not. They will be new to many libraries though an old story to you. Will librarians also send word of anything on which they would like information concerning the practices of other libraries.

I. THE COLORED BAND METHOD OF FILING PAMPHLETS AND BOOKS.

Used by the Newark (N. J.) Public Library.

Bands of gummed paper of many colors, made by the Dennison Mfg. Co., price 30c. per 1000, are pasted across the backs of books and pamphlets at different heights from the bottom. These determine the relative location of the books so marked on the shelves and serve as guides in keeping them in order.

Pamphlets too small for designated guide are put in manila envelopes and the band is pasted on the envelope.

Pamphlets too large for the shelf are put in an oversize box and a cardboard dummy is placed on the shelf with the band around the dummy.

Seven different colors are used;—dark blue, orange, pink, green, light blue, red and yellow. A guide card, 8 x 11 inches for each color is made. Gummed colored bands, three and a half inches long and a quarter of an inch wide, are placed over one edge and pasted over both sides of these cards at intervals of a quarter of an inch. Beside each strip, on one side of the card, is written that section of the alphabet which is represented by the color on that card at each of its given heights. By these seven guides of seven different colors the alphabet is divided into 112 parts.

The divisions of the first guide, dark blue, for example are as follows: Aa, Ae, Am, An, Ap, Ar, As, At, Au, Ba, Be, Bi, Bl, Bo, Br, Bu.

Each guide reads from the bottom up, "Aa" being at the bottom and "Bu" at the top.

To determine the colored band to be used on any pamphlet, select the guide which includes the first two letters of the subject of that pamphlet. A pamphlet on bankruptcy would call for the first guide and would have a dark blue band across the back at the same height as the letters Ba on the guide.

A pamphlet whose subject begins with C would call for another guide and a different color.

The pamphlets and books, thus marked, are arranged on the shelves, first by colors, and second by the height of the strips they bear.

One great advantage of this method of marking is that it enables one to tell at a glance when a pamphlet is out of place. A pamphlet with a blue band at a height of five inches, if placed among pamphlets whose blue bands are only three inches high, is quickly noticed as out of place. The same is true of a pamphlet with a green band placed with those with another color. Even when the band is on a thin cardboard dummy it is easily detected if out of place. With this system it is possible to run the eye over a collection of a thousand pamphlets and tell in a few moments all that are out of order. The system is capable of almost indefinite expansion. By using a band of one color at the top, 7 different colors may be used to mark 7 different collections. Other combinations may be made by the use of two or more bands of the same color and so on.

For the arrangement of books and documents by states or countries the same bands are used; but they represent places instead of sub-divisions of the alphabet. This method brings together in one place all publications about a certain state followed immediately by all publications relating to parts of that state.

Guide used in placing colored bands at proper height. There are seven guides in all—one for each color. The reverse of this guide is divided off in the same way and is used for the usual alphabetical arrangement in filing. Reading from the bottom up it contains the following divisions of the alphabet: Ea, Ed, El, Em, En, Et, Ex, Fa, Fe, Fl, Fra, Fre, Go, Ga, Gl, Go.

The system here described has many advantages, chief of which are the following:

Pamphlet material is placed on the shelves on the same day on which it is received.

Pamphlets and books too thin to bear call numbers are easily kept in order. Ephemeral material is cared for at a minimum cost. Examples of the application of the system in this library:

Catalogued Material — Books

1. Music collection; - piano, songs and orchestra, 400 vols.
2. Yiddish books, 700 vols.
3. School text books, 300 vols.
4. Model school libraries, 500 vols.
5. Teachers' reference collection, 1000 vols.

Nos. 3, 4, 5 are modifications of the colored band arrangement. Instead of a band a small colored label is used, a different color for each collection.

Uncatalogued Material — Books and Pamphlets

1. Telephone directories, 800. Arranged alphabetically by states.
2. New Jersey reports, latest, 70. Arranged alphabetically by subject.
3. U. S. Census reports. States and territories, 51. Arranged alphabetically by states and filed on shelves after bound census reports.
4. U. S. geological survey reports on spirit levelling, 41. Arranged alphabetically by states and filed on shelves after Gannett's Dictionary of altitudes.
5. Manufacturers' catalogs on office appliances, 200. Arranged alphabetically by the name of the company.
6. State and city material, reports, pamphlets, railroad circulars, board of trade publications, etc., over 1500. Arranged alphabetically by states, the cities of each state following immediately after each state.
7. Miscellaneous material too large for Vertical File: books, pamphlets, etc., 600. Arranged by subject. References are made from Vertical File to this collection wherever necessary.
8. School reports and catalogs arranged alphabetically by states, 300.
9. Price lists of U. S. government publications for sale by Supt. of Documents, 61. Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Public Writing Room in Library

That there is a demand in a public library building for a room where citizens are furnished with writing materials free of charge so that they can use it as a guest would use the writing room in his club or hotel seems to be indicated by the increase in the use of the new writing room in the St. Louis Public Library. The introduction of this room may be said to mark a step further toward the equipment of the Central Library as in some sense a club for the citizen, so far as his intellectual occupations are concerned. In the week of March 8-13 it was used by 260—an increase of over 500% in 5 months. Pens, blotting-paper, ink, note paper and envelopes are furnished by the Library free of charge, and users are supplied with note paper of a better grade and postage stamps at cost. The paper and envelopes have printed on them, "Public Writing Room, St. Louis Public Library." The custodian of the room is also a stenographer, typewriter and notary public. Her services are available to those who wish them at current rates. She is also in a position to procure translations in about a dozen languages. During the existence of the room, its users have had occasion many times to avail themselves of this public

The following, printed on a card of standard catalogue size has been found a useful method of helping the public in St. Louis:

EDITORIAL COMMENT

DRAMATIC NUMBER

We place before our readers a special Drama Number of the Bulletin of Bibliography. Dr. W. Dawson Johnston of St. Paul Public Library writes on "Public Libraries and the Drama;" Mr. Barrett H. Clark, a director of the Drama League of America, and author of "British and American Drama of To-day," and other works in this field, contributes a paper on "The Drama League and the Libraries." We thus cover both points of view on the subject of Libraries and the Drama. We begin the publication of Miss Foshay's "Bibliography of Twentieth Century Drama; American, English and Irish," by giving the English list: — Plays by English authors published between Jan. 1, 1900 and May, 1915.

Under "Books by Librarians" we review that new publication in the Useful Reference Series, "Modern Drama and Opera, Volume 2," perhaps the fullest bibliography of the more famous contemporary dramatists yet available.

Under "Magazine Notes" will be found a record of new dramatic periodicals and finally the Quarterly Dramatic Index for April-June, 1915, makes a suitable ending to our Dramatic Number.

OUR FRONTISPIECE

Since the beginning of the new series of the Bulletin of Bibliography in January, 1914, we have had in each issue the portrait of a librarian. We opened our series with likenesses of the early presidents and officers of the American Library Association, persons whose pioneer work has meant so much for all libraries to-day, and whose portraits should be familiar to all present day library workers, few of whom were privileged to have a personal acquaintance with our early leaders. With each picture we have had an intimate appreciation of the librarian portrayed, written by one fully conversant with his character and his achievements.

JOHN THOMSON, A.M., LITT.D.

In this issue we are glad to give a portrait of John Thomson, who has been the efficient librarian of the Philadelphia Free Library, since its establishment in 1894. It has been our intention from the beginning not to confine our portraits to leaders whose work is closed. Dr. Thomson deserves a high place among living librarians for the success with which, under many adverse conditions, he has built up in Philadelphia, a library system adequate to the public need, and doing a work which will compare favorably with that in any other large city. Previous to being called to his present position, he was private librarian first to Clarence H. Clark, of Philadelphia, for eight years, then to Jay Gould for three years.

He has held the office of President of the Keystone Library Association, and of the Pennsylvania Library Club, and is a member of the Pennsylvania Library Commission, and of the Council of the American Library Association. He is Treasurer of the Philobiblon Club of Philadelphia, and an authority on Incunabula.

BRITISH PERIODICAL INDEXES

Our British library friends, as a result of the paper at their 1913 conference by Mr.

T. W. Lyster of the National Library, at Dublin, showing the evident need of something to take the place of Poole's Index, have now a pair of indexes in the field. The Librarian offers "The Index to Periodicals, compiled by authorities, arranged by A. C. Piper, Public Library, Winchester, under the general editorship of Alex. J. Phillip. Crown quarto, cloth, vol. 1, April-Sept., 1914, is now ready, 21 shillings; vol. 2, Oct., 1914-Mar., 1915, is in the press. Subscription 36 shillings per annum.

The Periodical Index committee of the Library Association, apparently ignoring this index, undertaken evidently without their official approval, have now issued a circular giving details of "a provisional scheme arrived at between your committee and the proprietors of The Athenæum for the publication of an Index to Periodicals on the lines advocated by Mr. Lyster in 1913." It is to be a monthly Subject Index to principal contents of the leading English serials, and to be republished in one alphabet as a cloth volume, at the end of each year. Price to be £2-10s, 50% discount if second or additional copies are ordered.

Thus we have the "official" and unofficial plans. No comment on the merits of either can be made until we receive the first issues. But it is to be regretted that the two plans cannot be brought together and one index published so that the support, always meagre at best in such enterprises, might all be available for the one project, — we doubt if Great Britain could support two such indexes, even in time of peace.

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

Modern Drama and Opera, Volume 2

Those who have used and found helpful the little book "Modern Drama and Opera," issued in 1911, will be glad to know of the publication of a second volume of bibliographies under the above title. A substantial book of 255 pages, this covers very thoroughly the dramatists and composers of present day fame. The compilation is by eight librarians. Dr. Archibald Henderson, one of the foremost critics of dramatic literature, writes the introductory chapter and contributes three of the bibliographies.

Each list is preceded by a biographical sketch, and the references are as a rule annotated, a fact which alone will make the book invaluable to all students of modern drama. It is by far the most complete compilation on the subject, the title-index at the end of the volume referring to nearly 675 different plays and operas. The dramatists covered are Barker, Björnson, Brioux, Chekhov, D'Annunzio, Echegaray, Fitch, Galsworthy, Gorki, Hervieu, Hauptmann, Ibsen, Jones, Maeterlinck, Phillips, Pinero, Rostand, Schnitzler, Shaw, Strindberg, Sudermann, Synge, Tolstoi, Wilde, Yeats. The opera composers included are Humperdinck, Leoncavallo, Mascagni, Massenet, Saint-Saëns, Debussy, Puccini, Strauss. In addition to the introduction, "The Drama in America" by Dr. Henderson, there is a reading list on "The modern drama, its traits, tendencies and technique" by Mr. Frank K. Walter. The compilers are Dr. Archibald Henderson, of the University of North Carolina, Frank K. Walter, New York State Library, Tommie Dora Barker, Carnegie Library, Atlanta, Ga., Mary L. Davis, Public Library, Troy, N. Y., Justus H. Dice, Ohio State University Library, John Adams Lowe, Massachusetts State Library, Alice T. McGirr, Carnegie Library, Pittsburgh, Edna M. Sanderson, New York State Library, Eleanor B. Woodruff, Pratt Institute Library.

The edition of this valuable reference book (Useful Reference Series, no. 13) is limited to one thousand copies; we predict that it will be out of print within the year. Nearly a thousand of volume 1, 1911, have been sold, and all who have that book will need its continuation.

The Boston Book Co., 225 pages, $2.00 special net.

Technical Terms

MOTH, AXEL. Technical terms used in Bibliographies and by the Book and Printing Trades.

Forming a Supplement to F. K. Walter's Abbreviations and Technical Terms used in Bibliographies and Book Catalogs. Although called on the title-page a Supplement to Mr. Walter's book, the present volume is far more than that. While it omits all terms given by Mr. Walter, and has but few abbreviations, we find 263 pages of "technical terms" in eight languages (Danish, Dutch, French, German, Italian, Latin, Spanish, Swedish) used by book sellers, publishers and manufacturers, printers, paper makers, engravers, book-binders as well as bibliographers. This is a much broader scope than that covered by Mr. Walter.

Mr. Moth, whose "Glossary of Library Terms" was recently published, has been for many years gathering material for this compilation, and has included as the first chapter of the book a dictionary of English technical terms used in printing, paper-making and the book trades with synonyms in the other eight languages. This feature of the book will be found especially useful, and is really an index to the rest of the book. It covers 86 of the 263 pages. Mr. Walter contributes the Latin chapter as noted by the author in his preface.

Thus Moth and Walter have thoroughly covered a difficult subject and their books should be side by side on every booklovers table ready for instant use.

The Boston Book Co., Boston, vii + 263 pages, cloth, $2.25 special net. (Useful Reference Series, No. 14.)

Instruction in the Use of Books and Libraries

LUCY E. FAY and ANNE T. EATON. Instruction in the Use of Books and Libraries.

A text-book for Normal Schools and Colleges. This text-book covers an actual need in giving courses in library methods to teachers. Teaching outlines by several authors have been issued but there has been no one text-book to put into the hands of Normal School students. To teach students how to use books and libraries, so that they may in turn impart this information to children in schools is the first purpose of this book, and its authors, themselves librarians as well as teachers, have well covered this subject.

To help teachers acquire that knowledge which a teacher must have in order to encourage in children an appreciation of literature is the second purpose the authors of this manual have had before them. and Miss Eaton's treatment of this important subject will be found helpful to all librarians where work with children is done.

Finally, in Part Three the purely technical field of classification, cataloging, etc., is covered by Miss Fay, the aim being to give only the elements necessary to the adequate administration of the school library.

It is at once apparent on examining this volume, that it will prove very useful, not only to teachers, but to every small library. It condenses and eliminates in just the way the small library will find most welcome. Essentials for the little, without the details necessary to the big.

The part of the book covering children's literature is especially useful and timely, covering nearly 150 pages, divided into chapters: "An Historical Survey of Children's Literature," "The Present Problem of Children's Reading," "Fairy Tales," "Poetry," "Classics for Children," "Children's Stories," "Other Books for Children," "Illustrations of Children's Books," "Choice of Editions," "Children's Magazines," "Lists of Children's Books." Wherever children come to read, this volume will be a welcome source-book for the librarian in charge.

In Part One is a thirty-page list of books for a high school library, and forty pages devoted to general and special reference books, with good lists. The book has 17 illustrations and 53 figures or reproductions of catalog cards. An index completes the volume.

The Boston Book Co., Boston, 449 pages, $2.25. Special net. (Useful Reference Series, No. 12.)

THOMSON, O. R. HOWARD. Resurgam: Poems and lyrics.

In our last issue we were glad to note that novelists had appeared in the ranks of librarians; now we have a true poet in the person of Librarian Thomson of Williamsport, Pa. His little book of verse shows him to be a real master of poetry. There are but eighteen titles in the volume, but there are many beautiful thoughts in his writing, and we commend the book to all lovers of verse.

Wm. M. Bains, Philadelphia. 50 cents.

HITCHLER, THERESA. Cataloging for Small Libraries. Revised edition.

This book of 316 pages has recently come forth. It is surprisingly larger than the earlier publication, but the author well says in her preface that the small library does not by any means presuppose a collection of simple books. Points in cataloging arise which seem to justify this amplified edition of a useful work. The experience of the author as a lecturer on her subject shows in the very clear arrangement of the topics covered.

A. L. A. Publishing Board, $1.25.

FIRKINS, INA TEN EYCK. Index to short stories.

A royal octavo, or small quarto volume of 273 pages in double column has just appeared that should delight the hearts of all reference librarians, and those having occasion to hunt up short stories.

All the short stories of nearly three hundred writers have been made available, as well as selected stories of some one hundred and twenty-three minor authors. The arrangement is in one alphabet, by title and author, — and under each author all his stories are listed, as well as in their regular alphabetical place.

The analysis of Kipling being especially noticed in the publishers announcement, we turned to that portion of the book, as we have been especially interested in Kipling's contributions to periodicals. We fail to find many references to important periodicals. The "Just So Stories" appeared in St. Nicholas, but no mention of that source is made, though every public library has St. Nicholas available. "How the Whale got his Tiny Throat" was printed in St. Nicholas in 1897. "How the Whale got his Skin," is referred to in the present book. Seems as if he must have got it from the rhinoceros just above, when the compositor was not looking. "Collar-Wallah" was also in St. Nicholas. "Enlightenments of Pagett, M. P." was in Contemporary vol. 58, not 68, as the printer makes it read. "Flag of their Country" was also printed in McClure's, vol. 13; "Folly Bridge" is noted as in "Daily Express, June 15, 1900"; rather a blind reference. Collier's Weekly, July 4, 1900, would have been easier to find. "Garm" was also in Saturday Evening Post, Dec. 27, 1899. We surely read "Editha's Burglar" in St. Nicholas, when we were a child. No reference to this source of Mrs. Burnett's story is found.

Still such a work should not be criticised too harshly for omissions when it really does fill so well the ever present need of a short-story indicator. It will save countless minutes of valuable time in many a library.

H. W. Wilson Co., White Plains, N. Y., $6.00.

STEVENSON, BURTON E. The Charm of Ireland.

A most readable travel book by this well-known author has been published under the above title. It is the story of the visit of Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson to the Emerald Isle in 1913, and makes the reader wish he had been along too. Certainly they made a thorough reconnaissance of the country, for the index reminds one of a guide-book, — at least all the places we ourselves had visited are there and most charmingly described in the book. Ireland's history is as well covered as the present day aspect of the cities and countryside. The illustrations, most of them from the author's camera, give added interest.

Dodd, Mead & Co., New York, 1914. $2.50.

CALIFORNIA INDEX CARDS

An interesting new departure in printed cards has come to our attention. Messrs. DeWitt & Snelling, booksellers, of Oakland, California have started the publication of a card index to the history and literature of California, compiled and annotated by Frederic M. DeWitt. The issue will be in sets of ten cards, each set to include a recent book, thus covering not only the past, but keeping the index up to date. The cards are neatly printed on gray paper, and are sold in sets of ten at 10 cents, and slightly less when 500 or more are subscribed for at once.

MAGAZINE NOTES

The Opera Magazine, an illustrated periodical devoted to the higher forms of musical art, edited by Roderic C. Penfield. This quarto monthly has now been running for a year and a half, and has not only good portraits, nearly all at them full page, but interesting and well written articles. It is $2.00 a year, 25 cents a copy. It will be included in the next issue of The Dramatic Index.

The Movie Magazine, a national motion-picture magazine, volume 1, no. 1, March, 1915, comes to hand from Los Angeles, California.

It's a quarto, well illustrated, and mostly given up to news items of the new art, and notes about its actors. While March had 32 pages, June has 48. A healthy child surely.

Public Affairs Information Service. Bi-Monthly Cumulation. This new publication of the H. W. Wilson Company of which the March 1915 issue (vol. 1, no. 2) has just come to hand, makes a good appearance and will be welcomed by all who have to do with public affairs, legislative and state problems, or with municipal subjects. It is printed in the style familiar to users of the Readers' Guide, and the other indexes issued by the Wilson Company. A weekly Bulletin is issued to the coöperating institutions, and these are cumulated bi-monthly, until at the end of the year the final issue will come as a bound volume. For the cumulated numbers, exclusive of the weekly Bulletin, $25.00 a year is charged. The cost of the full service is $100.00 a year.

The Catholic Historical Review, for the study of the church history of the United States. This new quarterly, of which volume 1, no. 1 is April, 1915, is published by the Catholic University of America, at Washington, D. C.

Its purpose is to cover American Catholic history, of which since the days of Columbus, there has been much worthy of preservation in such a form as this quarterly offers. $3.00 a year, $1.00 a copy is the price announced.

Minnesota History Bulletin, vol. 1, no. 1, February, 1915. A quarterly publication of the Minnesota Historical Society, St. Paul, which will be sent free to members, and to other institutions. Copies sold will be priced separately, as the issues will vary considerably in size. Edited by Solon J. Buck; the first issue has but one article, "The relation of the State to Historical Work," by C. W. Alvord, followed by 8 pages of "Minnesota Historical Society Notes."

Reference Bulletin, published by the Index Office, Chicago, has appeared. Vol. 1, no. 1 is April, 1915.

The subscription price, it is announced, will depend on the number of subscribers received before the second number is published. A rather indefinite price, we should think, but we wish the undertaking all success.

Technical Book Review Index, prepared by the Carnegie Library, Pittsburgh, and published by the Index Office, Chicago. This quarterly, of which no. 1 is dated April, 1915, should be a welcome visitor to all who have occasion to use technical books, or who are interested in science in any of its branches. $3.00 a year, quarterly.

On the A. L. A. special train to California, we noticed only three magazines in use, exclusive of those provided on the observation car in the selection of which our party could have no choice. They were Red Book, Cosmopolitan and Everybody's Magazine. But there were comparatively few Massachusetts Library Club members aboard, it must be remembered.

At Yale they use Literary Digest to make cornucopias for cherries. The Library Party bought them in that form as the Canadian Pacific train paused at the above named station in British Columbia.

It was interesting to note that every bridge on the C. P. Ry. was patrolled by a soldier. Looking for Powder Magazines?

DRAMA NOTES

The World Drama Prompters, of La Jolla, Cal., have issued a little 4¾ x 6 inch booklet. Bibliography of published plays and other dramatic literature, available in English. Part I covers plays arranged by playwrights. Part II criticism, essays, etc., also by author. The little book ends with an index by title to the plays covered.

It seems strange that no mention of The Dramatic Index is made in the lists of books, though such works as "Who's Who in the Theatre" find a place.

JAMES SHIRLEY, DRAMATIST, a biographical and critical study by Arthur Huntington Nason.

This beautifully printed and finished book, published by the author and the product of the De Vinne Press, has just appeared. Mr. Nason's aim is to clear up inaccuracies in previous accounts of Shirley, the principal dramatic poet in the Reign of Charles the First, and give him his true place in romantic tragedy and comedy. A scholarly work covering his life and plays and supplemented by an annotated bibliography of both his published works — chronologically arranged — and of works containing references to Shirley. 471 pages.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES AND THE DRAMA

By W. Dawson Johnston, Librarian St. Paul Public Library

The importance of drama libraries was shown by such men as Bronson Howard, called "Dean of the American drama," Clyde Fitch, and Augustin Daly.

Howard bequeathed his library to the Dramatists' Club in New York; a large part of the Fitch library was given to Amherst College; the Daly library, perhaps the finest of its kind ever formed, was scattered.

Howard felt so strongly the importance of a professional library relating to the drama that in his bequest to the Dramatists' Club he included not only his library but a fund of $5,000 for its increase. The well-known dramatic critic, Mr. Montrose J. Moses, is not satisfied with this, however. A club library is not adequate, he says; the dramatic library we need should be a public one. It should not be made part of a university library, because a university cannot keep pace with any other than academic interests; it should not be made part of a public library because the public library cannot do more than satisfy the demands of the general reader. "I do not care to see a dramatic library lost amidst other collections," he says (American dramatist (1911) p. 276-87).

Whether it be possible at present to establish useful professional libraries in university and public libraries or not, it is becoming each year more important to do so in the interest of both the dramatist and the student of the drama, the professional and the amateur, the playwright and the playgoer. Among the universities Harvard, Yale, Columbia and Pennsylvania already have noteworthy collections, and among city libraries those of New York and Boston already compare favorably with the largest university library collections. (New York's oriental drama was described in its Bulletin, 10:251; 11:18; its Beck collection of prompt books in its Bulletin, Feb. 1906, p. 100-48.)*

In the development of the drama department of a public library affiliation with national and local societies and clubs is of the greatest importance. The most prominent of these is the Drama League of America, 736 Marquette Building, Chicago. Its published bibliographies, drama study courses, and bulletins are most useful. Among its bibliographies are "A selective list of essays and books about the drama and the theatre." "A list of plays for drama study to be obtained for 75c. or less per copy," a "list of books and plays, the total cost of which will not exceed $50, which should be in every public library," "Plays for amateur acting," and "Plays for children." The American Pageant association, 400 Metropolitan Tower, New York, and the Educational Dramatic league, 17 E. 38th St., New York, should also be noted.

The library should receive even greater assistance from local societies and clubs. In Evanston the Drama Club gives $300 a year to the Public Library for the drama department. Amateur players may also give entertainments for the benefit of this department. And the library in turn may be of the greatest service to clubs in documenting plays and in advertising them.

Scope of Collections.

The definition of the scope of a drama library given by Mr. Moses is suggestive. In general, he says, the material to be collected may be classed as either historical, theoretical, or practical. "In the first of these divisions there should be placed (1) the lives of the players and of all those connected with the stage in any way; (2) the stage history of plays; (3) the record of performances and the preservation of programs; (4) collections of pictures and plans, together with (5) the histories of theatres as homes for the acted drama. There would likewise be made available (6) complete bibliographies of all topics likely to be of immediate service to specialists.

"In the second should be gathered books of a critical cast, treating (1) of the drama and its evolution, (2) of the plays in their construction (3) of the dramatists and critics in relation to their theories and practice, (4) of characters and their various interpretations, in such style as is suggested in the Variorum Shakespeare, and finally (5) of the drama and its place in society.

"In the third division should be gathered (1) every detail which bears upon the theatre as a working proposition; one should be able to obtain suggestions and historical guidance (2) for all designs of costume, and (3) for particular furniture or architecture peculiar to any special period. There should also be every facility (4) for tracing the entire evolution of the mechanism of the stage, such as the progress of lighting."

The smaller library can, of course, make only a selection from the more popular literature upon these subjects — the Drama league library Committee indicated a collection costing not less than $50.00 as a minimum; but all properly organized libraries may undertake the collection of everything relating to local dramatic history, pictures of theatre buildings and actors, and stage scenes, theatre hand bills and such material of this character as comes to them. At any rate they should seek to give their collections in this direction the same measure of completeness which they have in other departments of local history.

Bibliographical tools.

In the collection of the more popular literature of the drama the catalogues of the following publishers are useful; Dramatic

*A list of works on the American drama will, we understand, be published in the Bulletin of the New York Public Library, probably in November next. Ed.

Publishing Co., 542 South Dearborn Street, Chicago; Samuel Franch, 28 W. 38th Street New York; Walter H. Baker, 5 Hamilton Place, Boston; A. Flanagan Co., Chicago; Edgar S. Werner & Co., Dick & Fitzgerald, New York; Penn. Publishing Co., Philadelphia.

For reference use the most useful books in addition to those published by the Drama league are Wentworth Hogg's "Guide to selecting plays" and "The Dramatic Index, 1909 to date, edited by F. W. Faxon, an index to dramatic literature in American and English periodicals, including texts, biographies, and reviews. This index is continued quarterly in the Bulletin of Bibliography.

The larger libraries will also secure, if possible, Wegelin's "Early American plays," and Roden's "Later American plays, 1831-1900."

Open shelves, etc.

Beside displaying the important works of reference on the drama in the reference room, and the important periodicals in the periodical room, the more progressive libraries have special reserve shelves in the reference room for classes or clubs pursuing special courses in the drama, and special shelves in the open shelf room for popular dramatic literature, particularly the texts of plays produced in local theatres.

They are also displaying on their bulletin boards picture bulletins, with lists of books and articles in magazines relating to plays produced in local theatres.

And a few libraries have published in separate form or in their bulletin lists of dramas in the library, either complete or select. A good example of these is the New York Public library "Plays of thirteen countries" just published.

It is desirable that these bibliographical notes be published also in the drama column of the local newspapers wherever possible, and in the theatre program.

THE DRAMA LEAGUE AND THE LIBRARIES

By Barrett H. Clark. Author of "British and American Drama of To-day," and a director of the Drama League of America

Just how far the Drama League of America is responsible for the immense increase in the demand for printed plays during the past five years, may still be open to question; it is an undoubted fact, however, that it has fostered and stimulated that interest through its bulletins, its reading lists, and its study outlines; and from month to month it is called upon to suggest, guide, and help, an increasing demand on the part of both librarians and those who make of the library the center of their interest in books.

Nowadays, it is practically impossible for any but a specialist to keep track of the new dramatic publications: plays as well as critical and historical matter dealing with the drama; and, as the libraries cannot be expected to specialize, the need for systematic help in this direction is felt as an ever-growing need. This is the function of the League, then, one of its numerous functions. During the past few years it has published over a dozen of what are acknowledged to be among the most valuable catalogs on the modern drama in existence. Dramatic experts, critics, and other students of the subject have made an exhaustive study and given the fruits of their labors to the public.

Two years ago, shortly after the League was organized, about a hundred libraries were regular members of the League; as a result, they received all the League literature, made use of the lists in order to start separate drama departments, and in many instances, organized drama classes, throwing open one of their rooms to public meetings for the discussion of current plays (on the boards), or new plays (recently obtainable through the medium of the printed page). Of this branch of the work, Mrs. Best (former president of the League) wrote two years ago;

"To illustrate concretely: The Drama League enters a medium-sized town, and induces the two or three women's clubs each to take up a course in modern drama, the League also interesting the teachers in the high school—even persuading the grade school to do drama work with the younger pupils. Usually there are formed also several little reading circles. Of course, the first demand is for published plays.—The students flock to the libraries to get the desired dramas."

During the past two years this work has more than quadrupled, so that the libraries, especially in the smaller Western and mid-Western towns, have become veritable study centers. As a result, the libraries encourage reading (their chief function) and the readers encourage the libraries to increase and systematize their departments.

In the great welter of dramatic literature which comes weekly from the press, the greatest need is for selection (for even the great libraries of New York and Chicago do not pretend to purchase everything on the subject), and again the League offers a guiding hand. The Drama Quarterly, published by the League, prints a list, in every number, of all the plays and books on the theatre, with brief descriptions of each work; these are finally collected and printed in a large list, the first of which appeared in 1912, the second of which is to appear during the present year. In this way, the librarian has no excuse to be at a loss as to what plays he should buy or what works he should recommend. There are enough books on the drama and enough representative plays published to enable the beginner, the intermediate student, and the advanced scholar, to cover the subject in a thorough-going manner.

Perhaps the greatest need in this direction is for a large dramatic library; so far, no library has undertaken the task, but even the smaller libraries can work toward this goal. If I might offer a concrete suggestion it would be that each library which is interested in organizing a dramatic department should gather all the League bulletins and lists and study-outlines, together with the other valuable drama lists (to be found in The Bulletin of Bibliography, in the bulletins of the "World Drama Prompters," etc.) and purchase what books it can, at the time they are published. This last point is all-important, as drama books after a short time have an irritating tendency to get out of print. Many valuable plays are now unobtainable which, a very few years ago, could be bought at a dollar or less. Another important consideration: if a librarian has these lists, he will at least be able to know what has been published, and what is worth buying. It is infinitely better to know exactly what you have not, than to have what you do not know about.

The Drama League has made it its business to help the libraries know what they have not and help them get what they want.

An account of Dr. Ibsen's literary works strung in the order of their appearance upon the thread of his personal career. The accounts are just what such reviews ought to be. Mr. Payne's translation stands the test that there is no conscious jolt when the reader runs from the last chapter to the original one, which is wholly Mr. Payne's. The bibliographical notes in the preface are useful. W. H. Carruth, Dial 32: 16, Jan. 1, 1902.

Add to this the fact that Mr. Goldschmidt has called to his aid Canon Scott Holland, who knew Jennie Lind from boyhood, and Mr. W. S. The book is a record of Amundsen's peaceful and successful conquest of the South pole, a conquest due to careful calculation, fore-thought and good management. There was no guess-work under the Norwegian flag: every stress and pressure had been as carefully determined as though it had been for a bridge that was building. Saturday review.

Björkman's sketch of the author's life: showing the relation between the man himself and what he wrote, his influence on his contemporaries, especially Ibsen, and on the national life, forms a fitting introduction to these three plays.

Text and translation on opposite pages. Each poem is prefaced by two designs by Prof. Collingwood. These at their best leave little to be desired. The text is based on Gering's ed. (1904.) In the translation, Miss Bray has overcome with marked success the difficulty of giving a rendering into English of the Icelandic original that shall be both accurate and intelligible. Albany F. Major. Folk lore, 19: 495, Dec., 1895.

Campbell, Oscar James, Jr. Comedies of Holberg. Harvard University press, 1914. (Harvard studies in comparative literature, no. 3.)

Of all Holberg's literary work, his comedies reflect best his cosmopolitan interests. The object of this volume is to consider these comedies in relation to their sources, and to show thereby how the author's distinctive dramatic qualities developed through his imitation of foreign models. Introduction.

Ibsen, Henrik. Ghosts, and two other plays. N. Y., Dutton, 1911. (Everyman's library.)

Vikings, a saga-like drama, a tale of blood and fate, which recalls Wagnerian opera in its primitive massiveness, in the vigor of its legend, in its tragic pathos and in its full-blooded characters larger than life and yet pitifully human. Brander Matthews, Inquiries and opinions, p. 244.

Anatole France once wrote, "If the will of those who are no more is to be imposed on those who still are, it is the dead who live, and the live men who become the dead ones." And this idea is the motive of Ghosts. In An enemy of the people he (Ibsen) undertook to show that the reformer — the true pioneer — is always abused and pilloried as a dangerous foe to society, and that the majority is always in the wrong. Strindberg, Johann August. By the open sea: authorized translation by Ellie Schleussner. N. Y., Huebsch, 1913.

In the great novel By the open sea, Strindberg's Nietzschean mood achieves its grand zenith. This book with its splendid nature descriptions, the tragic dignity of its hero and the azure swiftness of its limpid style, is one of Strindberg's most impressive feats. Horace B. Here are fairy tales and fables and slight thumb-box affairs of things and people. Here is the lighter humor, which Strindberg was supposed to be without . . . It might be inferred from the title of this work that it deals simply with the phenomena of the spiritual world and its three distinct regions, but it will be seen that in its deeper meaning and purpose it sets forth the true relations and the disordered relations between man and man, or the heavenly life and the infernal life as exhibited in human experience everywhere. THE FOLLOW-UP SYSTEM IN SERIAL RECORDS IN THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY.
By Gertrude P. Hill.

In the order division in the reference department of the New York Public Library, extensive use is made of steel "signals" attached to top edges of cards on which are noted records of serial publications ordered for purchase or asked for and received as gifts. For checking outstanding orders, for following up promised or expected gifts, for many other purposes they have justified their use. They were introduced primarily to help in checking up our records of receipts of serials.

Colored signals bearing figures in black are used to show the year covered by the latest report received by us. The last figure of the year is used (e.g. 4=1904 or 1914), the position on the card determining whether the figure indicates the latest year or ten years back. We began with a 7 (1907) between the two vertical lines of the ordinary catalogue card and worked to the right, so that a 4 near the center means 1914, while a 4 to the left of the vertical line means 1904.

Three groups of colors were selected because the volumes after receipt would go to one of three separate catalogues, the document catalogue in the document division, the serial catalogue in the cataloguing division, or the report catalogue. The latter included publications of charitable organizations, educational institutions, religious bodies, etc. It has since been merged with the serial and document catalogues, so if we were beginning anew we should need but two groups of colors.

The colors used for public documents have the following significance:

- Orange, annual, even year
- Yellow, annual split year
- Brown, biennial, even year
- Black, biennial, split year
- Red, biennial
- Maroon, annual
- used for House and Senate journals, legislative manuals, collected documents, laws and governors' messages.

Red, in a light and a dark (or maroon) shade, was chosen for such important publications as legislative journals, collected documents, statutes, etc., for purposes of emphasis. Plain black signals are used on guide cards for a state which has no collected documents, to call attention to the extra importance of watching each separate card in that state.

On cards for governors' messages, which we are sure to write for, and for any publication that reports "no mailing list," we place signals bearing the names of the months using the name of the month in which we expect to write.

For the serial catalogue the following scheme is used:

- Blue, light, even year
- Blue, dark, split year
- Green, olive, even year
- Green, bottle, split year
- Societies, not charitable, railroads, Boards of trade, etc. Churches, educational institutions, charitable institutions, etc.

For illustration: To indicate 1914 to be the latest volume of an annual document, year ending December, we use an orange 4 in the center of the card. For an annual document, year ending July, 1914, we would use a yellow 4.

Orange and blue signals without figures are used respectively for important documents and serial-catalogue begs until they answer. We do not find that we need a separate color for biennials outside of the document work. Our object in showing the difference between even and split biennials is to distribute the work of stirring more evenly through the year, e.g., we pick out the yellow signals (split annual) before it is time for the orange (even annual), etc. Our reason for distinguishing documents from other serials is the importance of our document catalogue. A large proportion of our begging is for documents, and their slowness or absence is more noticed than the other serials.

We do not put signals on every title, as in many cases the publications are sent regularly and there is no need for any follow-up system. We use signals for titles not received regularly, for publications not having a regular mailing list, for all new titles until we find they come promptly, and for important begs.

The work of changing the signals when only the figure needs to be changed is done by a boy. New signals are added by a person who understands the subjects and knows how the publications are issued.

Though signals were first thought of in connection with our begging system, they are also found useful in our serial order-box. In this place they show an outstanding order for a current periodical by the month when it was ordered, thus enabling us to hurry it if it is not promptly received. To help us keep track of the amount of money we presumably will have to pay for back volumes of serials ordered, we place a signal on the order card, using the last figure of the year. These cards are few in number compared with the continuation orders with which they are filed, so the labor of revising our figures is small with the signals to guide us to the cards. For example: In 1915 we use a 5: thus a 4 by July 1915 would be so old that we could withdraw the order. White is the color used in the order-box.

We use also a few letters both in the gift record and order-box:

L laws
D directory
R report price
P and S two special funds used in the order-box.

Signals have been used by us about five years and have proved a great blessing.

II. USEFUL HINTS FOR LIBRARIANS.

Temporary binding for weeklies.

The Seattle Public Library, in its Queen Anne Branch, fastens the issues of each month of its weeklies together for reference use. To a press board, the size of the periodical, is glued by one edge, a strip of binder's linen about two inches wide. The four or more issues of the month are laid in order upon the board, and the linen folded over to form a back to the volume, and the numbers are then held together with Ballard "Klips," the month and year being printed in black ink on the linen back. These monthly "volumes" lie, backs out, upon the shelves ready for easy reference.

Magazine Serial Stories.

We saw a little card catalogue of "Magazine Serials," kept at the desk in one of the Seattle Public Library Branches. Cards are made, under authors, giving name of story, and telling in which issue of what magazine it began.

Babies and the Library.

The Seattle Public Library has printed little 4-page folders with the following dialogue and list of books:

LIBRARY BABIES ARE BETTER BABIES

A Dialogue in a Seattle Home

Characters:

Mrs. Hadley
Mrs. Clark

William Randolph Clark (10 days old).
Place: A small cottage on Queen Anne Hill.
Time: Some few weeks ago.

Mrs. Hadley, a matronly woman, is seen standing by the baby basket looking down at the baby.

"My, but he is a cunning little duffer. What a lot of hair! It's so red it fairly screams. Does he sleep well?"

Mrs. Clark: "I should say he does. Can hardly wake him up to nurse him."

Mrs. Hadley: "Do you know Mrs. Royce? You don't? Why, she lives right over on Garfield. Well, you just ought to see her baby — the smartest, strongest baby I ever did see. He's six months old now. She has certainly had fine luck with him. Not luck, either. She was telling me the other day that soon after the baby was born, she got a postal card from the public library saying there was a book by a Dr. Holt on the care of babies. She borrowed it and thinks it is the finest book — tells most everything a mother wants to know in simple language that anyone can understand. I tell you, Mrs. Clark, you certainly ought to go to the library and get one. It would be lots of help."

Mrs. Clark: "Oh, you can't tell me anything about the Holt book. I have already raised one baby on it. But then, I know what good books the library has on raising children. Johnny was delicate when he was a baby."

Mrs. Hadley: "You would never know it now."

Mrs. Clark: "Well, he was. I got several books at the library that were a big help to me. Then Mr. Clark and I are always reading books on how to bring up children. You can't learn everything out of books, that's true, but good books and your own common sense will go a long ways when it comes to raising youngsters. There's the mail-man. Excuse me a minute." (Mrs. Clark comes back holding a postal card in her hand.) "Why, this is from the library. It must be like the one Mrs. Royce got. I'll read it to you:

"Seattle Public Library

You may be interested at the present time in the the two following books, "The care and feeding of children," by Dr. L. Emmett Holt, and "A mother's guide," by Francis Tweddell. You will find these books in the central library and in all of the branch libraries and they may be drawn from the library for four weeks with the privilege of renewal for four weeks more. The library also has other good books on the care and feeding of the baby.

Yours truly

J. T. JENNINGS
Librarian "

Mrs. Hadley: "They must send these cards to all the mothers. I suppose they take the names from the birth notices in the paper. Beats all — guess librarians are interested in babies as well as books."

OTHER GOOD BOOKS FOR MOTHERS.

ADLER Moral instruction of children

"One of the most interesting and informing books upon the subject. Of value in the home and school. Contains an especially good chapter on the use of fairy tales."

COTTON Care of children

"The care of the baby before birth and of the new baby; healthful clothing; development and growth of the child; authoritative and specific directions for feeding; food disorders; food for older children; treatment of children's ailments; hygiene of the child through the pubescence period, etc."

GRIFFITH The care of the baby: a manual for mothers and nurses

HOGAN How to feed children

OLCOTT The children's reading

A trustworthy guide, written by an authority on children's books and aiming to answer the following questions: Of what value are books in the education of my children? What is the effect of bad reading? How may I interest my children in home reading? What kind of books do children like? What kind of books shall I give my growing boy and girl?

WASHBURNE Study of child life

Contents: Development of the child.—Faults and their remedies.—Character building.—Play.—Occupations.—Art and literature in child life.—Studies and accomplishments.—Financial training.—Religious training.—Application of principles.—Other people's children.—The sex question.—Fathers.—The unconscious influence.

"Thoroughly sensible and practical directions for the treatment of children."

Magazines Recently Received.

The Public Library of Portland, Oregon, posts on a Bulletin board under the heading "arrived for July" the names of current issues of periodicals that have just been placed on file; but instead of writing or printing the names, the titles are cut from the covers of the magazines and pasted on the Bulletin, thus attracting attention, and reminding readers of their favorite magazines by the style of type and color of the cover.

The same idea is carried out in the case of Technical periodicals under the heading "Magazines on file in Technical Room."

A notice posted in the Public Library, Portland, Oregon, reads:

Because the Public are not finding what they want, please do not take more than one magazine at a time from the cases.

Library Advertising.

The Omaha Public Library, has accepted the offer of a local advertising firm, to place on large advertising thermometers which are put up at important corners in the city the words: "Omaha Public Library, 19th and Harvey Streets, open daily, free." The cost is $1.00 a sign, which is merely the expense of having it painted on the glass.

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS OF THE LIBRARY PRESS

Second Quarter, 1915

A glance at the titles of the principal articles appearing in the library periodicals from month to month will help the busy librarian to keep in touch with library progress.

In some cases we elaborate the title slightly, to give a better understanding of the subject covered by the article. We hope to include the other library periodicals of Europe in our later issues.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY

Completion of Volume 8

With this issue we include (wired between pages 222 and 223) a title and index to volume 8. This number brings to a close the first volume of the new series. It covers two years and is complete in eight numbers.

CHILDREN'S CHRISTMAS BOOKS

We are glad to be able to present at this time, just before plans are laid for the holiday season, Miss Hewins' account of how she conducts her Christmas exhibit of children's books. We once dropped in upon her in the midst of one of these timely exhibitions and were greatly impressed with the idea, the way it had been worked out, and the good it was doing in Hartford, Conn.

M. D. BISBEE

Mr. Bisbee, the subject of our frontispiece, and of Mr. Jenkins' biographical notice, was a librarian not widely known, but one who for many years devoted his life to Dartmouth College Library and whose work should be thus recorded.

"TECHNICAL TERMS USED, ETC."

A new and vivid expression from a book-seller's Australian cable, offering a set of periodicals. He says bound in new morocco "fresh as paint." That dealer deserves to make a sale for coining a new technical term not to be found in either Walter or Moth.

TWENTIETH CENTURY DRAMAS

Miss Foshay's "Bibliography of Twentieth Century Dramas," of which Part II is published in this issue, has been reprinted entire as Bulletin of Bibliography Pamphlet No. 22, 10 pages, quarto, with cover. Price 25 cents (stamps acceptable).

PERIODICALS WHICH SUPPLY TITLE PAGES AND INDEXES ONLY ON REQUEST

We expect to publish about the first of the New Year, a second edition, revised to date, of this useful index, to which the author Miss G. P. Hill, of the New York Public Library, intends to add a list of periodicals which publish no title and index.

THE SAN FRANCISCO FAIR

Now that the librarians have returned from their "ten thousand miles of A. L. A. travel," and are telling every one what a wonderful exposition they saw, we want to call attention to a little book "The City of Domes," by John D. Barry, recently published. This seems to us by far the best published description of the Fair and gives one an intimate acquaintance with the artistic triumph that has magically arisen on the shores of the Golden Gate. Over fifty beautiful illustrations add greatly to the charm of the book. Planned as a guide book, it is much more than that, it will always be a book of reference on this, the most beautiful exposition thus far created. The sub-title gives its scope, "A walk with an architect about the courts and palaces of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, with a discussion of its architecture, its sculpture, its unusual decorations, its coloring and its lighting, preceded by a history of its growth."

MAGAZINE NOTES

Illustrated World is the new title of Technical World. September, 1915, vol. 24, no. 1, is the first number with the new title.

Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, vol. 1, no. 1, January, 1915, is the beginning of an octavo monthly periodical, designed to be the official organ of the Academy, with reports of its meetings, and notices of the Scientific and Biographical Memoirs published by the Academy. It will also publish brief original papers, thus securing promptness of publication and wide circulation of the results of American research. $5.00 a year, 50 cents a number.

Educational Administration and Supervision is the rather heavy title of a new educational periodical published monthly, except July and August, by Warwick & York, Inc., Baltimore, Md. Vol. 1, no. 1 is January, 1915, $2.00 a year, 25 cents per copy. The purely administrative side of education will be its field.

The Texas Review is a new quarterly published at the University of Texas, and edited by Stark Young, with Thad W. Riker as managing editor. Vol. 1, no. 1 is June, 1915. The initial number is an interesting one, and shows the policy of the editors to publish a literary review of high class, and with a notable list of contributors. $2.00 a year, 50 cents a copy.

Journal of American History, vol. 8, no. 4, dated October-November-December, 1914, was issued in August, 1915, as was also vol. 8, no. 3.

Popular Science Monthly, after a long and useful career, since 1872, has disposed of its name to the Modern Publishing Company, and The World's Advance, the history of which we tried to give in our April issue, will now become Popular Science Monthly. On the other hand The Science Press, publishers of the old Popular Science Monthly, will continue all subscriptions with a new magazine, The Scientific Monthly ($3.00 a year, the same price as Popular Science Monthly has been). The new Popular Science Monthly will continue the $1.50 price of World's Advance, whose name it absorbs. The Scientific Monthly will make its appeal to "educated readers, as opposed to the public generally." We may add that only the "educated reader" will be expected to understand this attempt of the publisher to mix everybody up. He admits: "We fear this change may cause temporary difficulties."

McBride's Magazine, is the new name of Lippincott's Magazine, September, 1915, being the initial number under this title — vol. 95, no. 572. (It is really vol. 96, no. 573). Since McBride Nast & Co. (now Robert M. McBride & Co.) bought this periodical, the numbers have, during 1915, each been paged separately, showing the publisher's desire that henceforth the periodical be classed as not worthy of preservation in bound form. Furthermore the change of name comes in the middle of a volume. October is called vol. 96, no. 574 as it should be. Perhaps all will now be well once more.

We hate to write this, but the truth must be told. Leslie's Illustrated Weekly Newspaper, with the issue of September 2, 1915, adopted a new type dress and made its printed page two inches shorter than hitherto. Therefore vol. 121 will consist of the issues of July and August of the old folio size, and September to December in the new and shorter form. (The book binders should worry.) No word of the change is found in this new-size issue, perhaps the publisher was on his vacation, and we are wrong to assume that it will continue, or that the volume will end with December, or anything.

We approve of the new size; but why, oh why, make the change in the middle of a volume! "Let the thinking people rule" is its motto!

American Forestry ought to have known better, but the deed is done. August, 1915, vol. 21, no. 8 is quarto size, previous issues are octavo. Another periodical changing size in the middle of a volume. We have learned to forgive Hearst's, but American Forestry — Leslie's Weekly — what next?

A. L. A. Booklist. Isn't it annoying to have the indexes to the volumes of this periodical come out in several loose sections each. If one part gets away from the others, no one can tell to which volume it belongs, or put the pieces together correctly again. Humpty Dumpty experienced this same difficulty long ago, but the Booklist might easily wire its indexes and set a good example to others.

Since last February, the Sunset Magazine, that beautiful and ably edited exponent of the Pacific Coast, has formed a bad habit. Not content with paging all the ads in and mixing a liberal amount of text among them, it now sandwiches in between a beautiful frontispiece and the first page of real text an Ivory soap advertisement and to make sure it will stay there, a poem, called for in the contents, is printed on the back. Wonder if Hand Sapolio would remove Ivory soap from paper?

Smart Set is a monthly magazine, which calls itself an "aristocrat among magazines." This position evidently gives its smart editor the smart privilege of paging his issues just as he pleases. In 1914 up to December each volume was made up of four issues, each issue paged separately. December, 1914, was paged to continue the November number, but the pages really lapped over. In 1915, January continued December's paging — almost — and was called vol. 44, no. 5 instead of vol. 45, no. 1. February began page 1 and was called vol. 45, no. 2. March and April paged along, each overlapping a few pages.

May, June, July being the first three issues of vol. 46 paged consecutively — but not quite — and August being vol. 46, no. 4 began page 1 again. September, 1915, vol. 47, no. 1 continues the paging of vol. 46, no. 4 though it overlaps two pages. Isn't it great to be above any considerations of mere pagination!

The Horseless Age sends a librarian the following letter. He asks us, "Isn't this adding insult to injury?"

Dear Sir:—We have decided not to print an index for the various volumes of The Horseless Age in the future, as each issue contains a table of contents from which the volume index may be readily compiled.

We are however, prepared to furnish a typewritten index for the entire vol. 35 which we can send you upon receipt of $1.00, which will cover the cost of preparation.

Yours truly,

THE HORSELESS AGE,
Julian Chase, Editor.

M. A. C. (meaning Modern Art Collector) is the cabalistic title of a new magazine, or rather a monthly collection of modern designs. Vol. 1, no. 1, just published (Sept., 1915), consists of 16 unpagged pages with lurid green and black borders, and 15 loose supplemental plates, all in a decorative cover. It is quarto size, and each number retails at $1.00. Modern decorative art is its field, and the poster effects shown in the plates remind one vividly of the German craze for bizarre color effects, such as we are familiar with on the poster stamps. There is a most attractive poster Art Stamp supplement of 12 pages, with many poster art stamps attached, included with the first issue.

When you write to some Periodicals always use a long envelope. For example:

American Association of Instructors and Investigators in Poultry Husbandry, Journal, vol. 1, no. 1, Nov. 1914.

Association de Documentation Bibliographique, Scientifique, Industrielle et Commerciale, Bulletin et Chronique Documentaire, vol. 1, no. 1, Feb. 1911.

DRAMA NOTES

We call attention this month to two books by Barrett H. Clark recently issued, and covering contemporary French, British and American dramatists. Contemporary French Dramatists is a collection of studies on the modern French theatre—Curel, Brieux, Hervieu, Lemaitre, Lavedan, Donnay, Porto-Riche, Rostand, Bataille, Bernstein, Capus, Flers, Caillavet—the more important French dramatists of the past twenty-five years, excepting Maeterlinck, who from his Belgian origin, and by his ideas and plays is not typically French. A chapter on characteristics opens the book, in which are interestingly compared the different dramatists. Following this is an account of the Théâtre Libre. In the studies of the different dramatists that follow are many quotations from their representative plays. A bibliography and an index complete the volume.

British and American Drama of To-day, Outlines for their Study, is issued as a companion volume to the author's "The Continental Drama of To-day" and gives biographies, bibliographies, and historical sketches for use in connection with the important plays of Pinero, Jones, Wilde, Shaw, Barker, Harkin, Chambers, Davies, Galsworthy, Masfield, Houghton, Phillips, Barrie, Baker, Sowerby, Francis, Lady Gregory, Synge, Yeats, Murray, Ervine, Howard, Herne, Thomas, Gillette, Fitch, Moody, Mackaye, Sheldon, Walter. The book closes with a chapter on certain plays which have not had a stage-presentation, and notices of several dramatists who will not allow their plays to be published.

British and American Drama of To-day by Barrett H. Clark. New York. Henry Holt & Co. 1915. $1.60 net.

Moving Pictures. In the Moving Picture World for July 17, 1915, is a list arranged by authors of plays and books that have been produced in Motion Pictures since 1910. It is the intention of the publisher to bring this list up to date from time to time. Though it is not strictly alphabetical in the arrangement of each letter, this fault will doubtless be corrected in a later revision, but even as it is the list is very useful.

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

EASTMAN, MARY HUSE. Index to Fairy Tales, Myths and Legends.

Here we have a useful and very important book for every library. The increased use of the story hour in work with children and the ever widening use of fables and myths in school work have made the need of this index so real, it seems as if the only notice this book needs, is the announcement by title of its publication. Still we may give a short account of what it contains. It includes Fairy tales, Fables, Stories from Greek and Norse mythology which are most frequently called for, Hero stories, and such modern stories as "Leak in the dyke," which, though not strictly fairy tale or legend, are constantly asked for by teachers and story-tellers. The book is a title index, with cross references from variant titles to that best known, or most descriptive. Cross references from one story to another are given to aid story-tellers by suggesting similar stories in case the one wished for is not obtainable. There are also references from subjects—holidays, stars, etc.—to aid in identifying stories of which the title has been forgotten. The indexing of the stories in the various editions of Grimm, Andersen, and Æsop is worked out well, showing the variation of titles, and the edition.

Titles marked with an asterisk (*) are suitable for small children. The book has at the end a list of the books analyzed—nearly five hundred in all, arranged by authors and giving publisher, date and price.

GATES, ALICE JANE. Catalogue of Technical Periodicals [in the] Libraries in the City of New York and Vicinity.

This new list, covering as it does the Metropolitan district of New York, will be found a most helpful one to librarians everywhere. The information given about the complicated field of technical periodicals, and their early and changed titles will be very welcome. We are glad to note that this catalogue includes periodicals that have ceased publication, as well as the live ones. We wish the compiler had given the number of volumes published up to her date of compilation in the case of periodicals still in progress. The "Vol. 1+, 1874+" conveys a very indefinite idea. "Vols. 1-74+, 1874-1914+" would, to our mind, have added greatly to the usefulness of the list, with but little increase in its size.

Library Board of the United Engineering Society, New York 1915, quarto 110 p. $3.00 cloth: $2.50 paper.

REECE, ERNEST J. State Documents for Libraries.

This pamphlet, forming vol. 12, no. 36 of the University of Illinois Bulletin (May 10, 1915), will be a great help to all librarians, as it throws much light on a rather difficult field of printed matter, and aids to bring into usefulness many a book and pamphlet hitherto neglected. The treatise gives a clear description of the many and varied publications of the several states of the Union. Then under "Treatment of state documents in libraries" the author gives methods of cataloguing and classifying these publications. Then follows a chapter on "The distribution of state documents" giving the rules laid down by each state. Under the heading "Bibliographical matter" we find the sources of information about state documents concisely and methodically given, and compilations of state official literature listed under subjects covered. An index ends the volume.

Urbana, Ill., 1915, 163 p. 75 cts.

WIDDEMER, MARGARET. Why not?

The author of "The Rose Garden Husband" has published another novel, and it is another of the "Happy" books so pleasing to read. The heroine, quite as unconventional as a good fairy, shows how we can all be happier and realize our childhood's dreams, Why not? The author's bright style of writing and her use of the unexpected phrase make her books quite charming in a way all their own.

BOSTWICK, ARTHUR E. The Making of an American's Library.

The republication in book form of five articles originally published in The Bookman, N. Y. (Oct. 1913 — Feb. 1914), by the well-known librarian of the St. Louis Public Library. The five essays are entitled: — Books as roommates; The art of borrowing; A literary laboratory; The boy and the book; Recuperative bibliophily. An index of three pages, double column, at the end of the books shows the many topics touched upon in this little book of 160 pages. An interesting volume, as are all of Dr. Bostwick's writings; a book all may read with profit.

Boston, Little Brown & Co. 1915. $1.00 net.

JOHN SHAW BILLINGS A Memoir by Fielding H. Garrison, M. D.

This memoir, attractively printed, and written by one who has succeeded remarkably well in giving an intimate account of the widely varied activities of Dr. Billings, will be welcomed by librarians. A glance at the contents will show the wide field of an active life: Experiences of a medical officer during the Civil War. Official life in Washington. The Johns Hopkins Hospital and Medical School. The Surgeon-General's Library and Catalogue. Philadelphia (Dr. Billings' work at the University of Pennsylvania). The New York Public Library.

Two chapters are given to his "Scientific and literary work" and "Character and personality"; a bibliography by Miss Adelaide R. Hasse closes the volume and shows how prolific were Dr. Billings' writings on medicine, hospitals, heating and ventilation, sanitation, etc. The last seventeen years of his life were devoted to the upbuilding of the New York public library, in which work his reputation became perhaps best known. He was President of the A.L.A. in 1902. The book contains two excellent portraits of Dr. Billings.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF LIBRARIANS AND BIBLIOGRAPHERS

MARVIN DAVIS BISBEE, (1845-1913)

BY FREDERICK WARREN JENKINS

For nearly a quarter of a century the Library of Dartmouth College was under the able administration of Marvin Davis Bisbee. To few men is given the privilege of serving their college longer or better. Professor Bisbee came to Dartmouth after seven years spent in the Christian ministry and five as associate editor of "The Congregationalist." From the ministry he brought to his new task the fine ideals and high standards of that calling; perhaps from his editorial duties had come the ability to write in that strong forceful English which marks his frequent contributions to periodical literature. When he came to Dartmouth, in 1886, he is described by an associate on The Congregationalist staff, as "A man whose modest bearing, friendly spirit, sound judgment, and wide interest in human and Christian affairs made him respected and influential wherever he went."

To understand the work of Professor Bisbee one must know something of the college and its remarkable growth. He found, in 1886, an institution with 250 men enrolled; when he retired, in 1910, the number had increased to 1,112. This rapid growth of Dartmouth brought to the library especially, new and difficult problems in every department of its administration. New and changed methods of instruction made necessary ready access to the books at all times. Professor Bisbee was a firm believer in the "Open Shelf" at a time when such a scheme was considered impracticable. With the increased demands came little or no increase of funds for administrative purposes. In the twenty-four years of his splendid service, he had not one trained library assistant, and for many years only student helpers, who naturally were more concerned with their studies — and relaxations — than with library economy. To his unlimited patience, his ability to train for himself assistants as needed, to his personal zeal, hard work, and enthusiasm, are due the results which have left an indelible mark on the college library.

The establishment of departmental and seminar collections to correlate with modern methods of teaching; the organization of a great reference library and reading rooms, open days and evenings; the establishment of a standard collection of the world's best literature, freely accessible to the students as an incentive to good reading; the arranging and cataloguing of valuable old newspaper files and the establishment of exchanges with other libraries, — these are but a few examples of his progressive work. At the same time he was directing the reclassifying and recataloguing of a library of one hundred thousand volumes he was searching for valuable acquisitions with which to enrich the collection, and especially for books or pamphlets of Dartmouth graduates with which to round out the Alumni Alcove. To his energy is due largely this wonderful collection of Dartmouth material of priceless value to future Dartmouth historians.

His enthusiasm was contagious and many valuable collections came to the college through the affection of the donor for him. Among such gifts may be mentioned the Connor library, containing about four thousand valuable books relating to the history of medicine, the Chamberlain donation of about two thousand volumes, largely works on English literature and American history, the Koschwitz collection, the gift of Amos Tuck, comprising a large number of books on romance languages, the Shurtleff collection, composed largely of the classics and philosophy, and the Kennerson fund, used to establish the Standard Library, known to Dartmouth students as the "Octagon." Another donation was the legacy of ten thousand dollars, by Mrs. Susan Brown, to be known as the Roswell Shurtleff Memorial Fund. The income from this fund is used largely for books on philosophy, economics, and political science.

"The religious aims of the founders and their devotion to their faith appealed to his own deep piety and he was untiring in his attempt to make the college collection of the earliest manuscripts and pamphlets as complete as possible. His work in this line is a part of the most valuable endowment to the college." *

Librarianship is justly laying more and more stress on the personal side, and it was in this respect that Professor Bisbee's influence was the greatest. Many a student perplexed by financial difficulties owed to him the opportunity given to earn his way through college. Many another needing help in those doubting years found in Professor Bisbee's faith a help into a stronger life. The quiet evenings spent with Professor and Mrs. Bisbee will be remembered by those who were privileged to feel that they were a part of his family, and the influence of that home has left its impress on many lives.

Professor Bisbee loved books, but after all it was the lives of men, their mental and spiritual development, in which he was most interested.

DEPARTMENT OF APPLIED LIBRARY ECONOMY

I. A HOLIDAY EXHIBIT OF CHILDREN'S BOOKS

II. USEFUL HINTS FOR LIBRARIANS

The Editor will welcome "hints" for this department, whether original or not. They will be new to many libraries though an old story to you. Will librarians also send word of anything on which they would like information concerning the practices of other libraries.

I. THE HARTFORD PUBLIC LIBRARY HOLIDAY EXHIBIT OF CHILDREN'S BOOKS

By Caroline M. Hewins

A small collection of holiday books, shown for a few hours in our boys' and girls' room, ten years ago, excited enough interest to warrant us in repeating and enlarging the exhibit the next year in two connecting rooms above, where it was kept open for several days. We had the use of these rooms every year until the Art Society moved across the street and we came into possession of its large studio, which we use for storing our schoolroom libraries, for our story-hours, and for our holiday show, now kept open from the first of December till Christmas.

All through the autumn, after the annual output of children's books begins, we look for the best, buy them and keep them back from circulation till after the exhibit is over. We get most of our stock from a local bookseller, and also have friendly relations with the head of the book department in a large store, who literally "lets us in on the ground floor," before a remainder sale is advertised. Through him we secure many bargains, and once after a fire, when finely illustrated books from the surplus stock of several New York publishers, some in absolutely perfect condition, others with only a spot or two on the covers, were offered for sale, we were able to buy them at from a fourth to less than half of their value. Even when there is no occasion like this, the children's librarian goes with me to the book department, to look for and perhaps find among the cheap series and vulgar picture-books, treasures that are worth owning. We buy books there through the year, and the head of the department is always willing to lend us all that we ask for at Christmas time, knowing that we usually keep more than half of them. We also borrow books from our bookseller, and keep a part of them, returning those that are not bound well enough for library use, but are strong enough to recommend for careful family handling.

All the year we watch sale catalogues and buy wherever we can, often books that we could not afford at their first price, Mary Macgregor's "Story of France," for example, reduced to $1.50, and the "Baby birds," "Baby beasts," and "Baby pets," for about the same amount. We also show books that have been published for several, indeed for many years, like Scudder's "Children's book," and remind mothers who think it expensive that it is a good investment as a gift to the whole family.

Late in October or early in November, the children's librarian and I spend a day or two in New York looking for books that we have not seen at home, — importations in English and foreign languages. We have the small beginning of a collection of the best picture-books in French, German, Italian, Swedish, Danish, Russian, and Dutch, to which we add a few volumes every year. We go to Dutton's, Wanamaker's, Brentano's, Bonnier's (a Swedish bookseller in Third Avenue near Thirty-seventh Street), and sometimes to little bookshops where there are attractive wares in the windows.

When we have collected our stock, we begin to write press notices of the date and scope of the exhibition, and send post-cards of invitation to mothers' clubs and libraries in nearby towns. Several of the libraries have book-displays of their own for a few days or a week in December, and the members of a little informal club of children's librarians within fifteen miles often come to see what we have bought before ordering their own new books.

The studio, not including the space shelved for schoolroom libraries, measures 36 by 21 feet, is on the same floor as the boys' and girls' room, with entrances from two streets, and has ample space for displaying four or five hundred volumes on tables long and tables short, some on trestles, some on legs, and on the top of a long low case for storing bulletins and unframed pictures. We cover these pieces of furniture with white paper under holly-sprinkled crêpe paper "runners" to give the room a Christmas air, and hang framed pictures on the walls and unframed from wires run across the book shelves. At least one grandmother has bought the Longmans English history color-prints, two or three at a time, and had a movable frame like ours made for her grandson because she saw it hanging with the pictures in the exhibit.

A table nearly as long as one side of the room is covered with picture-books in eight languages, and the students at the Art School always receive a special invitation to come and see them. Other tables, plainly marked in letters printed with rubber type, are labelled "Books for little children," "Fairy tales," "Books for boy scouts," "Stories for girls," "Stories for boys," "How to do things," "Out-of-door books," "Bible stories," "Plays and games," "Lives," "Histories," "Books for growing-up boys and girls," and last and most important, "Inexpensive Books from X & Co. and Z & Co." and "Fifty must-haves." We always try to keep in mind a country minister and his wife, college-bred and lovers of the best, who have five dollars or less to spend for Christmas books. We do not sell books or take orders for them, but have type-written lists with prices attached from which our readers may copy titles and buy or order of the firms who we know have them in stock. With regard to our book bargains, we say "We bought this of or for, but you may not find it in stock now for that price," and give the publisher's name with the price from the latest U. S. Catalog, suggesting that an order may be sent through one of the Hartford firms above named.

The English department of the Hartford Public High School, with the help of the Hartford Public Library, has issued a list of suggested, not required, reading for every one of the four school years, and we have a case of the most attractive editions, both expensive and cheap, of these books, with the school pennant over it. Recent editions of Shakespeare's plays published separately, illustrated in color, and indeed all the best color illustration of the last few years, are in this case to tempt young readers; but we remember, too, the advice in the teachers' list to begin to build up a library with the Everyman editions, and also that many fathers and mothers whose children are in the school have small incomes.

The exhibit is open from nine till six on week-days, and from two till six on Sunday afternoons, when fathers sometimes like to browse among the books. I give as much time and personal supervision as possible to it, and am ready to suggest names of books or give opinions on their value. We have the "Pratt" and the "Wilson" lists for sale, or sometimes towards the end of the exhibit, for free distribution, and other lists for reference.

The display of so many carefully chosen and well printed, bound and illustrated books must in time make an impression on book buyers, although we cannot always see tangible results. We know that there have been many calls, both at the bookseller's and in the department store, for books that we have shown and recommended, and that our display has given great pleasure to grandmothers, mothers and children. The happiest visitor of all last year was a flax-haired boy with an engaging stammer, who had finished his school "tests" several days before vacation, and spent his free time at the long table of picture-books, full of delight when he found some of them in Swedish, for he remembered his life in Sweden, where he had been left for several years with his grandparents after his father and mother had come to this country.

II. USEFUL HINTS FOR LIBRARIANS.

To Prevent Ink Running on Book Labels.

My assistant discovered a few years ago that if she vased the white label, after marking the call number on it with Carter's Koal Black Ink, that when she came to varnish over it the ink did not run. We had tried various schemes before, but none were uniformly successful; now and for several years we have had no trouble about our labels as far as ink running is concerned.

Rules for Children Who Borrow Books:

The Children's Department is open on school-days from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m., and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. On Sundays and holidays the Children's Department is closed.

Two books may be taken out at one time.

Books may be kept for two weeks. If you wish to keep your books longer, bring them to the library and ask to have them renewed.

If you keep your books beyond the time allowed, you will not be permitted to use your card for a while. That is, if your books are

1 day overdue you must wait 5 days

2 days overdue you must wait 6 days

3 days overdue you must wait 7 days

4 days overdue you must wait 8 days, etc.

Books may be returned before the end of two weeks. If books are returned the day they are taken out, you will not be permitted to take other books that same day.

Remember always to return your books at the desk when you enter the Children's Room, and to have your books charged before you leave the room.

Keep the card with your name on it in the pocket in front of the book. Whenever you return a book bring the card with you.

If you lose your card let the librarian know at once. You will have to wait two weeks before another card is given you.

Books that you lose, you must pay for.

Books that are torn or damaged show that you have not been careful, and you will be accordingly fined for it, and you will not be permitted to take other books until the fine is paid.

Whenever you change your address, be sure to let the librarian know at once.

Be careful about lending your card, as you are held responsible for any fines.

The Way a Library Book Makes Many Visits.

Be very careful of all books loaned you. Remember to be even more careful than if the books really belonged to you.

Being careful means a great many things. It means seeing that your hands are quite clean when you handle the book. It means also that you are not to turn down the corners of the pages, or to mark or tear or in any way harm the book. If you are interrupted while reading and wish to keep your place, use a very thin book-mark, one that is no thicker than a single sheet of paper. Thick, heavy book-marks injure books. Then if you wish to make the book very comfortable and secure, you may wrap it up carefully, always remembering to leave it in a safe place, so that no harm may come to it when you are not by to guard it.

If you remember what being careful means and treat your books accordingly, they can visit many boys and girls and make them all as happy as they have made you.

THE WOMAN MOVEMENT

A short, selected list on woman suffrage, essentially allied subjects, including both recent popular books, and reference books for clubs, debaters, and competitors for prizes.

Compiled by Miss Alice Hayes

Abbott, Edith. Women in industry. Appleton, 1909. $2.00.

An historical and statistical study. Women are "not a new element in American industrial life," nor have they "driven out the men." For reference.

Addams, Jane. Newer ideals of peace. Macmillan, 1907. $1.25.

Chapter VII treats directly of the municipal franchise of women. Co-operation in solving city problems (emigration, labor, protection of children), creates mutual understanding, breaks down racial prejudices, and thus fosters ideals of universal, permanent peace.

Allen, William Harvey. Woman's part in government, whether she votes or not. Dodd, Mead, 1911. $1.50.

A primer of woman's actual and potential activities in American civics, illustrated by numerous graphic devices; with frequent references to city, state and national documents. Popular, stimulating.

Beard, Mrs. Mary (Ritter). Woman's work in municipalities. Appleton, 1915. $1.50.

Concise summaries of innumerable, contemporary movements for social uplift. "Intended to increase men's appreciation of women's co-operation." Suggestive reference book for clubs.

Björkman, Frances Maule. Editor. Woman suffrage: history, arguments, results. National woman suffrage publishing co., 1915. 25 cents.

Collection of seven popular booklets, by Alice Stone Blackwell, Jane Addams, and others, covering practically the entire field of suffrage claims, and evidence.

Butler, Elizabeth B. Women and the trades. Charities publication committee, New York, 1909. $1.50.

Admirable, detailed study of all trades in which Pittsburgh women are employed; their wages, hours, health, economic foothold, etc. Typical of manufacturing centres. Bibliography. Reference book for clubs.

Crothers, Samuel M. Meditations on votes for women, together with animadversions on the closely related subject of votes for men. Houghton, 1914. $1.00.

A series of short, witty, non-controversial papers in which current arguments and criticisms are examined through the spectacles of a modern Addison.

Dorr, Mrs. Rheta Childe. What eight million women want. Small, Maynard, 1910. $1.25.

One chapter deals explicitly with woman suffrage, while the entire book, in describing the normal development of women's clubs, teaches woman's need of direct political influence. Popular.

Gilman, Charlotte (Perkins) [Stetson]. Women and economics. Small, Maynard, 1898. $1.50 net.

Applying the terminology and methods of biology and sociology to the economic relations of the family, this book has met with much popular misinterpretation and frequently garbled quotation. Its proved power of stimulating thought entitles it to a place in discussions of this movement.

Hale, Mrs. Beatrice Forbes-Robertson. What women want. Stokes, 1914. $1.25.

The woman movement, reflected in drama, comedy, fiction, dress, is a part of the century-old impulse towards democracy. Moderate, genial, readable.

Hall, Mrs. Florence Howe. Editor. Julia Ward Howe and the woman suffrage movement. Page, 1913. $1.00.

Collection of the best speeches made by Mrs. Howe before national and state legislative committees. Notable for breadth and elevation of thought.

Harper, Mrs. Ida Husted. Life and work of Susan B. Anthony. Brown-Merrill. 1899, 1908. 3 vols. $5.00.

Includes public addresses, letters, and press comments. "Much too long to be read, except by an enthusiast." Useful for reference.

Harrison, Henry Sydnor. Angela's business. Houghton, 1915. $1.35.

Amusing account of the search of a youthful student of character for a womanly woman. Reading between the lines, suffragists have recognized an application of Schreiner's "Woman and labor."

Hecker, Eugene A. A short history of women's rights from the days of Augustus to the present time. Putnam's. Revised, 1914. $1.50.

Includes interesting chapters on the influence of Roman and the canon law, the early Christian church; and also, recent developments in England and the United States which show the rapid advance in laws relating to women and children, accompanying the extension of the suffrage agitation.

Higginson, Thomas Wentworth. Women and the alphabet. Houghton, 1900. $2.00.

With an essay, first printed in "The Atlantic," February, 1859, are collected those in "Common sense about women," being contemporaneous comment on the various steps in the advancement of women during the last half-century.

Kelly, Mrs. Florence. Some ethical gains through legislation. Macmillan, 1905. $1.25.

Treats the relation of the right to childhood, leisure, the ballot, and the rights of purchasers to national and state laws. Advocates the further co-operation of men and women in behalf of child-labor legislation, and its enforcement. Five appendices contain a series of pertinent, judicial decisions.

Mill, John Stuart. The subjection of woman. 1869. With introduction by Stanton Coit, Longmans, 1906. 40 cents. With introduction by Mrs. Carrie C. Catt, Stokes, 1911. 60 cents.

Written in 1860-61, but published two years after Mill's speech in Parliament. Based upon Mrs. Mill's "Enfranchisement of women" (published in his name, Westminster review, July, 1851, and inspired by the Worcester, Mass., Convention of October, 1850).

The strongest presentation of the fundamental arguments for suffrage.

Miller, Alice Duer. Are women people? Doran, 1915. 60 cents.

Satirical verse, and short prose statements, paraphrasing the contradictions of current objections. Selections are adapted to recitation.

Putnam, Mrs. Emily (James). The lady. Sturgis, 1910. $2.50.

A study of the historical development of a type. Woman suffrage is not mentioned, yet clearly underlies the evolution of the thesis.

Rembaugh, Bertha. The political status of women in the United States. Putnam's, 1911. $1.00.

A brief digest of the rapidly changing laws concerning women, arranged alphabetically according to state or territory, and treated under three heads: general state suffrage; special or local suffrage; office holding. For reference.

Schreiner, Mrs. Olive. Woman and labor. Stokes, 1911. $1.25.

"The influence of the financial dependence of woman upon man under the changed industrial conditions of modern life tends towards parasitism and moral degeneracy."

Shaw, Anna Howard and Elizabeth Jordan. The story of a pioneer. Illustrated. Harper, 1915. $2.00, net.

From a Scotch child in the steerage, joining her father, a workman in New Bedford and Lawrence, through a girlhood in a Michigan log cabin, to teacher, preacher, physician, and leader of the great liberation movement of American women,

Dr. Shaw's life illustrates the developing power of American free institutions and the priceless contributions of our emigration.

Stanton, Elizabeth Cady, Susan B. Anthony, Matilda Y. Gage and Ida Husted Harper. The history of woman suffrage, 1848-1902. 4 vols. Fowler and Wells, 1881, 1882, 1887, 1902. $8.00.

Bulky volumes conserving a mass of details regarding workers, methods, results. For reference.

Stinson, Alvah L. Woman under the law. Hudson printing co., Boston. 1914. $2.00.

Not a legal treatise, but a lawyer's statement of the rights, privileges, and disabilities of women, in contrast with men; based upon the common law and the statutory provisions of the states. Very useful for reference.

Veblen, Thorstein. The theory of the leisure class. Macmillan, 1899. $2.00.

Discusses the origin, place, and value of the leisure class as an economic factor in modern life, dwelling upon pecuniary emulation, conspicuous leisure, consumption, standard of living, canons of taste, dress and the higher learning. An implicit argument for suffrage.

Anonymous. How it feels to be the husband of a suffragette. Doran, 1915. 50 cents.

A vivacious, popular account of how one man reacted to the common arguments for suffrage, set forth in threescore pages, with the help of a half-dozen illustrations.
